

Produce the Evidence, Mr. Lucey

On Oct. 6 the Democratic nominee for governor, Patrick J. Lucey, made the following statement before an audience in Madison:

"It is common knowledge in the Fox River Valley that every appointment that the incumbent governor made which had to do with natural resources was subject to veto of Kimberly-Clark."

This is a most serious charge against the present governor of Wisconsin, Warren P. Knowles, and against Kimberly-Clark Corp.

Gov. Knowles has been this state's chief executive for six years. In effect, Mr. Lucey has charged him with malfeasance in office.

Kimberly-Clark is one of Wisconsin's largest employers, and is a highly respected name among the nation's manufacturers of paper products. Its thousands of employees, stockholders and customers have a right to know if it has been exercising improper control over appointments in the Wisconsin state government.

Mr. Lucey's charge was specific — against a specific governor and a specific company regarding specific acts.

If Mr. Lucey can prove his charge, he will deserve the admiration and gratitude of all the people of this state.

But if he cannot prove it, he will stand convicted of having made a wild, unfounded accusation in the midst of an election campaign. And that in turn will call into question his qualifications to be governor for this state's first four-year term.

We are waiting to see your evidence, Mr. Lucey.

Argument on State Of U.S. Economy Goes Three Ways

WASHINGTON (AP) — A three-cornered political argument over whether the nation's economy is improving or getting worse under President Nixon's policies is enlivening the congressional campaign.

"There is no economic upturn in sight," AFL-CIO President George Meany, said Tuesday, and added that things could get worse. He cited 10 per cent rise in living costs and nearly 2 million more unemployed in Nixon's first 20 months in office. Herbert Stein, top Nixon economic adviser, countered by saying the rate of inflation is declining, production output is no longer falling and the general economy is headed for recovery.

House Speaker John W. McCormack—a Democrat—chimed in by charging the administration had planned to withhold until after the Nov. 3 elections a new report showing five more major industrial cities with substantial unemployment of 6 to 8.9 per cent—compared with the national rate of 5.5 per cent.

1970—Good Year For French Wines

PARIS (AP) — A favorable combination of sun, rain and wind has made 1970 a good and perhaps a great year for French wine, experts are saying with the grape harvest half picked.

For red Burgundies, it may be the year of the century. White Burgundy is abundant and good.

In Bordeaux, vintners and wine-masters agree that this year's vintage is better and much more abundant than 1969. Last year's Bordeaux were the best for quality in a decade. But the harvest was thin. The grapes the workers are picking now are higher in sugar content — and therefore alcohol—than a year ago and have a generous tannin ingredient.

Beaujolais also will be plentiful and good, if lacking a bit of the body the 1969 vintage had. The abundance should mean a slight drop in price.

In Champagne, an expanded planting program in the last decade is producing a record yield.

Government officials have argued that many youths still listing themselves as looking for work during the Labor Day week quit job hunting and returned to school within a few days, artificially swelling the September unemployment total. Meany used his favorite epithet of "bunk" to describe administration claims of economic improvement.

"This is complete deception. It is plain, ordinary calculated deception. There has not been an improvement and there is no indication that there is going to be an improvement," said the 76-year-old leader of 13.6 million union members in an interview. The AFL-CIO primarily backs Democratic and liberal Republican candidates.

'Compatible' Spaceships Favored for U.S., Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — The president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences said today that the Soviet government considers it "expedient" to build spaceships sufficiently compatible with U.S. spacecraft to permit Soviet-American docking and rescue operations.

Mstislav V. Keldysh told a news conference that Soviet space experts had just completed two days of exploratory negotiations with representatives of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Moscow.

In answer to a question on the prospects of close U.S.-Soviet space cooperation, Keldysh replied:

"The fact that we had these talks shows that we are interested in having compatible spaceships. But this is a very complex matter that requires further study."

Publications of Leftist Speaker List Is Barred

'Infringes on Individual Rights'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public distribution of an official House report on so-called radical campus speakers was prohibited today by a federal judge.

"The report of the House Committee for Internal Security is without any proper legislative purpose," U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell said in his ruling, "and infringes on the (Constitutional) rights of individuals named therein."

The American Civil Liberties Union, which won the permanent injunction against publication of the official report at public expense, called the decision the first ever in which a court restricted Congress' authority over its own reports.

65 Speakers
The House committee report lists 65 speakers it identifies as members of militant, radical or Communist-oriented organizations and concludes the campus speaking circuit is a significant source of financing for revolutionary and disorderly activities.

"There are undoubtedly individuals who would destroy our institutions and form of government," Gesell said in his ruling.

"If any of them are listed in this report, our Constitution nevertheless preserves their right to speak even though their acts may be restrained."

The judge said there has been an increasing tendency by Congress to investigate "for exposures sake" and said he hopes Congress on its own will limit its investigation to subject directly related to legislation.

Gesell's injunction is only against the U.S. public printer and only prohibits publication of the House report at public expense.

Open Court

The judge indicated in open court last week that he could not realistically accept the ACLU's request that congressmen and everyone else also be enjoined against reprinting the official House report on their own.

A committee spokesman said "the case will be appealed and the matter undoubtedly be brought before the House when Congress reconvenes, but beyond that there will be no further comment until the injunction has been examined and brought to the attention of the committee chairman."

Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., chairman of the House committee, earlier announced he wants to challenge a court right to restrict publication of an official report.

ACLU lawyer Lawrence Speiser said he will not appeal the ruling, even though it does not grant all he asked. He said he will wait to see what Ichord and the government do.

3 Spacemen Fly 747 Jumbo Jet

SEATTLE (AP) — American astronaut Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., and two visiting Soviet cosmonauts took turns flying a Boeing 747 jumbo jet Tuesday.

Maj. Gen. Andrian Nikolayev, 41, who commanded the 18-day Soyuz 9 flight, took the plane off, Vitali Sevast'yanov, 35, his companion on the Soyuz trip, put it through a couple of maneuvers, and Aldrin was at the controls for the landing.

The three spacemen were accompanied by a Boeing test pilot.

Turks Question Second Soviet Hijacker Pair

Speculators Fear Actions Will Harden Life for Captives

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkish authorities today questioned two Soviet students seeking asylum after the second successful hijacking of a Soviet plane in two weeks. There was speculation that the hijacking would harden the Soviet government's attitude toward two U.S. generals whose plane crossed into Soviet Armenia last week.

Nikolai Gintov, 20, and Vitaly Pozdeyir, 25, "put a bag over the pilot's head, trussed him up and landed the plane at Sinop themselves" Tuesday, the semi-official Turkish news agency Anatolia reported.

"They said let's go, and we came," pilot Alexei Menshikov, 50, said.

The Turkish government sent state security police and an interpreter to Sinop, on Turkey's Black Sea coast, to investigate. Anatolia said the pair had been planning their escape from the Soviet Union for two years.

The Turkish state radio said Gintov and Pozdeyir told security police they wanted to go to the United States.

The plane, a small two-engine craft of the government-owned Soviet airline Aeroflot, was on a domestic flight from Kerch to Krasnodar, north of the Black Sea, when Gintov and Pozdeyir took it over. One other passenger was aboard, Yuri Derbinov, 55.

Earlier Hijacking

The first hijacking of a Soviet plane to Turkey was carried out Oct. 15 by two Lithuanians, Pranas Stasio Brazinskis and his son Algirdas. They diverted an Aeroflot airliner to Trabzon, Turkey.

Agnew Says He's Changing Tactics

No More 'Mr. Nice Guy'

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says he has "loved every minute" of his controversial campaign travels this fall and has "relished this assignment for President Nixon."

"No task any vice president has ever had could begin to measure up to mine this year in importance to the people of the United States," Agnew told a Navy League dinner Tuesday night in what was billed as a nonpolitical speech, but turned out to be anything but.

After his one-night visit to New York, Agnew had campaign stops scheduled today in Albany, Ga., and Birmingham, Ala.

Bright Kids and Modern Morals

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of every 10 high school academic leaders contacted in a national survey say they personally use marijuana.

More than 22,000 youths 16 to 18 years old in 18,000 private, public and parochial schools responded to the 70-question survey distributed by Merril Publishing Co., Northfield, Ill. Recipients, all juniors and seniors, were top scholars and student leaders recommended by the schools, the sponsors said.

When asked whether they use marijuana now, 10 per cent replied yes, 38 per cent said no and 2 per cent didn't respond. In answer to another question, 21 per cent indicated that they would use it if marijuana were legalized.

When asked whether they approve of premarital sexual intercourse, 5 per cent failed to respond, 53 per cent said no and 42 per cent said yes. But 24 per cent of the respondents ducked the question when asked whether they participated in sexual relations. Of those answering, 16 per cent said they had and 60 per cent said they had not.

The sponsors said nine students were selected to write the questions, which ranged from Vietnam to drug use and national politics to ecology.

Most of the students said that ending the Vietnam war is the nation's No. 1 priority and a whopping 85 per cent said that respect for this country had suffered because of the Vietnam conflict.

On race relations, 68 per cent opposed busing students from either black or white communities, but 84 per cent said they would move into an integrated neighborhood.

On national politics, 75 per cent favored lowering the voting age to 18, and 85 per cent would abolish the electoral college. Forty-six per cent said they would have voted for President Nixon in 1968, 40 per cent for George Wallace.

Fifty-two per cent said they felt Nixon is doing a good job as president.

Mitchell to Meet With Police Chiefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and a baker's dozen of the nation's top law officers meet Friday for a discussion of the escalation in police shootings and terrorist bombings.

The conference grew out of an invitation dropped by the attorney general in a speech earlier this month to the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Such a meeting, Mitchell said then, "would be most constructive and most helpful in clarifying all of the problems relating to these subject matters."

Adding urgency to the attempt to find solutions are figures released recently by the IACP showing 560 attacks on policemen and 21 deaths for the three-month period starting last July 1.

141 Bombings

The IACP count also listed 141 bombings during the period.

Among the problems likely to be discussed by the 13 state and local law enforcement heads invited: Alleged failure of federal authorities to pass on some information to local police.

Such a failure was alluded to

Foe Hospitalized, Candidate 'Plays Fair'

BOSTON (AP) — Mayor Kevin H. White, the Democratic candidate for governor in the Nov. 3 election, has had to undergo an operation for a perforated ulcer.

Physicians at Massachusetts General Hospital, where he was taken after being stricken at his Beacon Hill home recently said he would be unable to resume campaigning by the voting date.

His Republican opponent, incumbent Gov. Francis W. Sargent, said that in the interest of fair play he also would suspend campaigning.

U.S. Consumer Agency Due for Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — A gray matter between their high-level Nixon administration source says one of the government's largest consumer-protection agencies is headed for a major shakeup at the hands of a tough, new administrator hired to do just that.

The official is Clayton Yeutter, named three weeks ago as administrator of the Consumer and Marketing Service in the Department of Agriculture. His primary target will be the agency's vast meat and poultry inspection system.

Yeutter, 39, a long-time friend of Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin, reportedly has been given the go-ahead for overhauling the cumbersome meat and poultry system.

"I think we'll see some tough decisions made and probably some heads roll around here," the source said in an interview. He asked that his name not be used.

Muskie Feels Agnew Charges Losing 'Clout,'

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, says Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's strident campaigning against "radical liberals" is becoming less effective.

"The sharpness of his impact has been blunted," said Muskie, who is considered a front runner for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination. "He can't top himself every night."

The senator spoke Tuesday at a rally in support of New York State Democratic candidates, headed by Arthur J. Goldberg for governor and Rep. Richard L. Ottinger for senator.

Muskie was one of a group of visiting Democratic leaders, including Sens. George McGovern, South Dakota; Fred Harris, Oklahoma; Abraham Ribicoff, Connecticut; national party chairman Larry O'Brien and Rep. Carl Albert, Oklahoma.

All the Democrats attacked the campaigning of Agnew and President Nixon.

Muskie charged that Nixon is "trying to wrap the mantle of law and order around the Republican party" and to "suggest that we Democrats are responsible for all the unrest in our society."

Harris said: "What happens in New York State will be of great importance outside the state."

Most polls show Goldberg trailing Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller but place Ottinger ahead of Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell and Conservative James L. Buckley.

Ottinger accused Agnew of "spreading hate and division."

Goldberg attacked Rockefeller as a "fellow traveler" of Nixon and Agnew who "doesn't say openly and candidly where he stands."

$2.7 Million Cost Overstatement by Boeing Is Claimed

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' watchdog investigating agency says the builder of the Apollo Saturn 5 rocket booster increased potential earnings at least $695,000 by overstating costs $2.7 million.

It says the overstatement by the Boeing Co. was found in a check of a third of the materials cost for the first-stage boosters that blast astronauts off Cape Kennedy.

The findings of General Accounting Office investigators on part of the $1 billion contract for 15 Saturn boosters were in a report released Tuesday.

It said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has accepted a recommendation to evaluate other Boeing material cost estimates for the Saturn 5 and "obtain appropriate price adjustments from the contractor."

Report Disputed
The report quoted Boeing as disputing most of the alleged cost overstatements and NASA as disputing one of them.

The GAO, which seldom names contractors in its reports, said Boeing's cost overstatements increased its potential earnings because under the contract the government pays costs plus an incentive fee.

"As a result," the report said, "the total fee Boeing could earn under the contract was increased by about $695,000."

It said $378,500 of the overstatement was for 40 retrorocket motors Boeing told the government would cost $20,800 apiece but which the GAO said should cost $14,200 each.

The motors help separate Saturn's first-stage after liftoff.

Another $351,600 overstated cost, the investigators said, was for 74 outboard fuel duct units when Boeing's records showed only 67 were required.

They said Boeing also overstated costs of second-source pressure switches by $372,000 as a result of "pricing errors."

The report quoted Boeing as replying that $20,800 each for the retrorocket motors was the supplier's price quotation and that GAO investigators did not count all costs in the other two examples.

The report said Boeing "should have recognized" the $20,000 price quotation was too high and said all proper costs for the other two items were counted.

The report said NASA generally agreed with the findings but disputed an alleged $81,800 overstatement for six excess liquid oxygen prevalues on grounds the extra prevalues are needed for reserves.

In all, GAO investigators checked Boeing's estimate of $92 million for 243 high-cost items against Boeing's purchase orders and suppliers' quotations to find the $2.7 million overstatement, the report said.

In previous years telephone callers were told Picasso was out of town. This time the telephone didn't answer.

John Lennon Sought As Tate Trial Witness

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Lennon of the Beatles is being sought as a witness in the Sharon Tate murder trial. The defense wants him to say whether the group's songs could have inspired Charles Manson to violence.

"We want John Lennon to testify," a defense source said in an interview Tuesday. "We feel he may want to explain the lyrics."

The state has asserted that Manson ordered his followers to kill Miss Tate and six others in August 1968, aiming to trigger a race war which he felt was predicted in a Beatles song, "Helter Skelter."

The source, who asked not to be identified, said the defense had been trying for months to subpoena Lennon, believed to be in the Los Angeles area, but "there is an unbelievable wall surrounding him."

Most Articulate

He added, "We still hope to reach him. He's the most articulate and philosophical of the Beatles and he understands his social and political effect on the world."

The defense case is scheduled to open next week—the 21st week of the trial. The source said it would last about a month. Manson, 35, and three young women followers are charged with murder-conspiracy in the slayings.

Other entertainment personalities have been subpoenaed, the source said. Among those scheduled to take the stand are Mama Cass Elliot and John Phillips, both former members of the Mamas and the Papas singing group.

Knew Manson

Both are said to have known Manson in 1968 when he tried for a career as a musician and socialized with recording personalities.

"All of these people are extremely reluctant to testify," said the source, "but they are under subpoena."

He said the women defendants in the case are not expected to take the witness stand.

Manson is scheduled to be the last witness for the defense.

"He is naturally the last witness," said the source. "You but the children on before you put the father on. He is the natural conclusion. We'd like this testimony to be vivid in the jury's mind."

Much of it is expected to be Manson's version of the philosophy he preached to members of his hippie-type "family."

The commanding officer and executive officer of the Army company to which T'Souvas was assigned in Korea both told the court that the soldier was placed under observation because he was suspected of taking drugs.

"Did you shoot two Oriental human beings?" he was asked. "Not that I can remember," he said.

Pollution's Daily Effects Are Grim

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

Since the early 1900s, air pollution over the North Atlantic Ocean has doubled. It has at least doubled over the Indian Ocean.

In the eastern United States, air pollution may be so widespread as to damage plant life in rural areas far from the urban sources of pollution.

From 1955 to 1969, samples of marine phytoplankton from Monterey Bay, Calif., showed DDT residues had tripled.

Millions—literally millions—of menhaden die in fish kills in Florida and Pennsylvania... woodcocks may be so loaded with DDT as to be unsafe for eating... the official list of endangered species lengthens.

On and on. Despite beginning efforts by government and industry—prodded by environmentalists—the daily accounting of the small details of what is happening to man's environment is often grim.

Gypsy Moths

And the good and the bad intermingle: The use of DDT to control the gypsy moth was discontinued in mid-1960. Now the gypsy moth threatens hardwood timberland in the Allegheny, Appalachian and Ozark mountains. Government scientists try a synthetic sex attractant to detect and control the pest.

For all the frustration in the face of sometimes overwhelming problems, the fight to save the environment goes on.

Several years ago traces of lead were found in samples of antarctic ice. Traces of DDT were found in penguins. This fall, the National Science Foundation is sending scientists to sample the relatively pure antarctic atmosphere for whatever traces of lead, copper, iron, aluminum and other metals there may be and compare the levels with those found elsewhere in the world, to see how such pollutants may be transported about the globe.

Brown Pelican

—The Brown Pelican of Louisiana and southern California has nearly been exterminated because of failure to reproduce. The failure is due to thinning of eggshells caused by the accumulation of chlorinated hydrocarbons such as DDT. Other specialists were found to suffer from the same problem this year. Now, scientists from the University of California at Berkeley hope to gather information about the distribution patterns of such hydrocarbons by studying the reproduction of a wide-ranging sea bird, Wilson's Petrel.

The Petrel, ranging from polar to polar region, may serve as a monitor of this kind of pollution.

Pollution Findings

The finding about air pollution came from scientists at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Agency—NOAA or "Noah"—after studying new data and comparing it to findings from ocean voyages in the early part of the century.

William E. Cobb, a NOAA meteorologist at Boulder, Colo., said the study found clean air over the South Pacific, emphasizing man's effect on the atmosphere elsewhere.

"We know we are changing the atmosphere," Cobb said. "We must know how and at what rate we are changing it."

So far, he said, nature has been able to take care of her own atmospheric pollution, such as the spewing into the atmosphere of cataclysmic amounts of material from the eruption of the volcano Krakatoa.

Ice Ages

"It is essential," Cobb said. "That we keep a close watch on her attempts to handle man's continuous pollution since nature's reaction could be something drastic. Even another ice age is possible."

References to ice ages are often criticized in the continuing debate over the consequences of environmental damage. Critics say there is too little known about the chances of an ice age, than decay, although not in reference to Cobb, what they term excessive emotionalism.

However, "A little hysteria required" is the title of an editorial in a recent issue of Chemical & Engineering News, a publication of the American Chemical Society. In it, Managing Editor Melvin J. Joseph writes:

"If real and steady progress is to be made in improving the quality of the environment, then, perhaps, continuous and steady, albeit modest, inputs of alarm, panic and hysteria are required of interested citizens. Otherwise progress comes haltingly, if at all."

Strident Complaints

"Only when the complaints of the citizenry have become strident, when some measured alarm, panic and hysteria come on the environmental scene, has any real action toward general pollution abatement taken place. The rational, systematic, scientific approach seems to work better with a healthy dollop of emotion added."

The unusual also plays a part in the environmental story:

—A University of Rochester team of scientists has begun a study of Irondequoit Bay, a bay of Lake Ontario. Among the other pollution problems, the team found a "vastly higher" salt concentration than expected. The probable cause: Salt entering the bay in runoff from the area's city streets, where salt is

Students, Faculty Want ROTC Isolated

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A group of graduate students and faculty members has asked Duke University to isolate military training classes so that any potential "act of violence against the ROTC headquarters" would not endanger non-ROTC members.

The petition was presented Wednesday to Chancellor Kenneth Fye by Jay Salkin, an assistant professor of economics. Most of the faculty signers have offices in the social sciences building where military training classes are held.

Pollutionless Auto Engine Is Developed

Idea of Belgian Based on Workings Of Vacuum Cleaner

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Felix Grissard has invented what he says is an automobile engine that is almost noiseless and practically pollution-free. He got the idea while repairing his wife's vacuum cleaner.

The engine is a cylinder with a fan at one end and a piston at the other. "The suction created by the ventilator attracts the piston toward it, while the piston is attracted in the other direction by a system of magnets," Grissard explained.

"The force of attraction of this system is equal in strength and in speed to that of the suction of the ventilator. This makes the whole assembly move forward just by the depression created behind the piston, combined with the inertia of the vehicle."

"But bear in mind that the power is not transmitted to the wheels in any way. This is very important. To make the vehicle move in the other direction, just reverse the ventilator. If you want to accelerate, increase the speed of the ventilator."

Lives on Pension

Grisard, who lives on an old-age pension, built a miniature version of the motor but said he hopes to build a larger one soon and attach it to a bicycle frame atop a four-wheeled platform. He said the contraption's top speed would be about 20 miles an hour.

"It really is quite simple," he said, "and it has the kind of advantages motorists have been wanting for years. With practi-

Father Reveals Cause of GI's Death in Vietnam

An Appleton soldier, Army Pfc. Gary Schroeder, was killed while working on high tension lines in Vietnam, according to his father. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Schroeder, route 3, Appleton.

He was stationed with the 120th Transport Company at the time of his death. Army sources have informed his parents the body will be returned to Appleton within a week.

Schroeder graduated from Freedom High School in 1967 and entered the Army in September, 1969.

Survivors are his parents and maternal grandmother, Mrs. Etta Nehring, Clintonville.

Evolution to be Colloquium Topic

APPLETON — David Dilcher, of the University of Indiana botany department will speak on "The Evolution of Early Life" at Lawrence University's Science Colloquium at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, in Youngchild Hall. The colloquium offers an opportunity to learn of a wide range of scientific activities. It is open to the public. Colloquium speakers represent a variety of disciplines and institutions.

Dilcher's talk will deal with the diversification and evolution of early plant life. Dilcher teaches general botany and paleobotany at Indiana University.

People are what hospital costs are all about.

Not too many years ago, working in a hospital called for quite a lot of sacrifice. A registered nurse, for example, after undergoing three to four years of intensive preparation for licensing, could expect to work for a clerk's wages.

Not so today. Competing for good people with industry, business and government, hospitals know it takes more than "nobility of purpose" to recruit qualified men and women for health care. They must go after career-dedicated people with career-level salaries. Result: payrolls account for about 70% of most hospital budgets.

And these payrolls account for many new services and job categories that didn't even exist a few years ago. Caring for 100 patients in a modern hospital takes an average of 46 registered nurses, 13 practical nurses and 45 nursing aides. To say nothing of all the others — specialized nurses, x-ray and laboratory technicians, physical therapists, pharmacists, dietitians, housekeepers, etc. — who provide today's hospital care.

As health care services expand requiring more and better qualified men and women, Blue Cross and Surgical Care Blue Shield coverage expands to include these services.

Halloween Activities Help Children Learn

BY MALJA PENIKIS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

At Washington School, Halloween and learning are almost synonymous these days.

After all, Halloween is for children, and they are having fun learning to count witches, color pumpkins, write poems and sing songs.

And not one minute of that time is anything but educational, for learning is counting, coloring, writing, and singing.

To anyone who's spent years and years opening and closing a specific lesson book at a specific time each day of every school year, watching children learn many things at the same time, and have a good time doing it, is seeing progress.

"Learning is intertwined. Why should we teach math alone, when we can teach spelling, writing, reading and coloring at the same time?" explains Miss Mary Jo Weingarten, principal.

She's got a pretty good point and it's well illustrated by 6 and 7-year-olds in a math class.

"Nancy, we're going to the Halloween store today. I want you to tell me how many Halloween things you are going to buy there," the teacher says.

Five Pumpkins

Nancy picks out five pumpkins and five witches' hats.

The teacher knows that adding five and five is taking the easy way out.

"Your mom says not to bring home five of two things," she rallies hopefully.

"Okay, I'll take two witches' hats and put back three," says Nancy.

"Right," says the teacher and writes the whole statement on the board.

The children in her group think they are learning addition, but they aren't aware that there's also been a little bit of subtraction. And the extra catch is that they are learning letters, reading, spelling and drawing all at the same time.

The same type of thing goes on in all the rooms. Equations are easier to learn, for example, if you can equate three chocolate cupcakes to three white cupcakes.

Writing is more fun if you can write your own poem; coloring is easy if you can color a pumpkin that looks just like the one on your front porch.

In short, the attempt is to humanize the education process.

"We find out their interests and start for their experiences and build on these, at the same time emphasizing basics," Miss Weingarten explains.

Teachers Plan Program

Each day the five teachers plan the program for the children. A careful record of each child's weaknesses and strengths are kept.

Each weakness in any of the basic subjects is attacked through skill groups where the boy or girl meets with other children who may be weak in the same area.

The same is true of strengths, which are cultivated in other separate strength groups.

The needs of the individual child are met in a variety of ways — one-to-one basis, and small and large groups.

Because, like adults, the children don't develop at the same rate, the idea that age goes with a certain stage of advancement has been deleted here and many 7 and 8 year-olds work together.

"In this way we meet the needs of the individual child by letting him progress at his own rate with his equals. The

Airport Considered For Landfill Sites

County Looking at Noise Control Zones

The feasibility of locating sanitary landfill sites in the noise control zones off the ends of Outagamie County Airport runways will be explored by the special solid waste disposal study committee.

A meeting with the county board's airport committee, the airport manager and a representative of Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) will be sought by the study committee to determine whether there would be any conflicts in the use of the land.

Investigation of use of the noise control zones had been suggested by Supv. Joseph DeBruin, Town of Buchanan, a member of the study committee.

The airport area was one of two locations for which cost and use studies were then conducted by the Fox Valley Council of Governments. The second location is north of Appleton in the Town of Grand Chute.

Larry Michaels, public works director for COG, urged meeting with airport officials before proceeding with any technical studies. "When you put in a landfill you must know what use the land will be put to in the future," he said.

Use of the noise control zones was suggested by DeBruin because of the limited construction allowed in those areas. Under proposed FAA standards, no residential or commercial building should be allowed near the ends of the runways because of potential complaints of noise.

The county now owns some of the land in the noise control zones and will possibly have to purchase more land in the future, officials said.

Michaels said both the airport and Grand Chute sites were found suitable for sanitary landfill and both could be operated for about $1.25 per ton.

In the evaluations, Michaels said, it was assumed Kaukauna would have solved its own solid waste disposal problems by the time the county got into operation.

The Grand Chute site, Michaels said, would basically serve Appleton, Grand Chute, and possibly Kimberly, along with any other neighboring towns that would desire to join.

The airport would probably be accessible to the same communities, plus Neenah and Menasha, he said.

With User Fee

COG recommendations include operating the landfill on a voluntary basis with cost being born through a user fee.

If the recommendations for use of the airport would be approved, COG proposed adoption of a master plan for development of the airport to prevent land use conflicts, and an operational and restoration plan.

Robert Miller, Appleton public works director, reaffirmed the city's interest in joining a county program but again warned that time was running out for the city at its Mackville site.

Gerald Paul, Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission representative on the study group, contended selecting only one site for consideration now was not fulfilling the directive to the group to design a county-wide solid waste disposal program.

Supv. Henry Breiting, who represents three rural towns in the northwestern part of the county, agreed with the project as presented, however. "Appleton has the waste problem," Breiting said. "We should try it here first. If it works, the towns will be more favorable to it when we do need it," he said.

Breiting said rural opposition to a county-operated solid-waste disposal program had been based on the fear the cost would be put on the county tax roll. If the cost is paid through a user fee, Breiting said, he did not feel there would be much opposition.

City Wants More Time to Consider Bus Line Subsidy

The finance committee of the Appleton City Council wants another six months to decide whether the city should continue to subsidize Fox River Bus Lines, Inc.

The committee recommended the delay Monday to give time to watch the effects of recent changes in routes and time schedules, designed to put the bus line on a firmer financial footing.

Finance Director David Champion reported that the line has listed losses of $4,458 for July and $3,842 for August, in expenses in excess of revenue.

The council last spring authorized a temporary subsidy to cover monthly losses up to $3,000 from April through June, with the council to decide later whether to continue the subsidy.

"While these losses are in excess of $3,000 per month, nevertheless we feel that the next four months of operation should show a vast improvement in their operating statements," Champion reported.

School Routes

He explained that one source of revenue missing during the summer months is from special routes for school students living within the city limits and therefore ineligible for regular school bus service.

The committee also recommended petitioning the Public Service Commission to reopen a hearing on the bus line's proposal to divide its operations into two corporations with city bus service handled by a subsidiary of the present firm.

Floodplain Map

The PSC granted the requests and recently gave the firm additional time to carry out the division. City and regional planning officials object to the plan, saying it would complicate bookkeeping rather than clarify the firm's financial situation as was the intent of the proposal.

In other action, the committee recommended authorizing Planning Director Jack Hetu to spend what funds are needed to prepare a floodplain map as the basis for a floodplain zoning ordinance required by the State Department of Natural Resources.

Officials of industries in the Fox River flats area have criticized the map currently in use, which is a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers map of 1932 vintage, Hetu said.

Flats industrial officials say the map is obsolete and object to basing the floodplain restrictions on it. The ordinance would regulate future expansion or construction in the floodplain, and the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce has warned that the ordinance as presently drafted would choke off future industrial growth.

The chamber recently asked for funds to be allocated to Hetu's office to prepare an up-to-date map.

Coding System

The committee also instructed Hetu to write a letter to Dr. Milan I. Vuchich, director of the Bureau of Urban and Regional Research at Oshkosh State University and ask what became of $3,000 the city contributed toward census data and making the information available for local government and commercial decision-making.

Committeemen and other officials criticized the university bureau's project for failing to measure up to their expectations of results. Hetu said Vuchich is now canvassing valley governments for additional funds with little success. The planning director said there apparently is little understanding among government leaders concerning the objectives of the university project.

Learning should be fun. That's the premise for the curriculum at Washington School. Mrs. Shirley Strange, one of the teachers on the team, works with a small group of children on a math lesson. An informal atmosphere gives the children a feeling they can openly ask questions and discuss problems. (Post-

COG Fulfills Purpose, Franchett Claims

Even if its planning priorities require changing, as some critics have proposed, the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) is performing its basic function of providing technical assistance to member municipalities, Eugene Franchett, COG executive director, said today.

Franchett's comment came as he prepared a list of program priorities on which delegates from member municipalities will be able to indicate their preferences, numerically. The list of 32 program areas will be sent out this week.

The lists, which will be studied by the COG policy committee before recommendations are made, are expected to have a strong influence on the future of the three-year-old agency. COG originally was the Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission, started in 1966.

Some delegates have indicated in recent weeks that they feel the metropolitan planning agency isn't directing its studies at the right problems. A few also rapped the agency for inefficiency, and they complained that the planning staff is running the program, instead of COG delegates.

The result was an agreement at the October monthly delegates' meeting that a priority list be sent to members to get a consensus on what they think the agency should be studying. Franchett listed study areas alphabetically, and the only indications on the list is an asterisk on programs essential to qualify individual communities for federal grant in aid programs.

"It's up to the council members to decide," Franchett said, noting it's COG responsibility to perform the functions outlined by its members. He noted the eligibility argument is "overplayed."

He said he was encouraged by the requests for priorities. "It shows the interest in the municipalities clearly is to participate in determining the direction of COG," he said. "We would welcome greater participation on the part of the municipalities."

Menasha Mayor James Adams complained that the planners ran COG, instead of the delegates, and suggested twice-a-month meetings.

Franchett declined to outline what he felt the priorities should be. However, he indicated that he felt COG has performed its basic function — that of providing technically able personnel for assisting communities in various programs.

"We have the technical expertise," he said.

Not Our Place

COG planners have provided technical help to many communities, he added, "but it's not our place to jump in to say they're doing this or that because COG told them to. It's their action, and we provide only the assistance and support they seek."

Franchett said that if there is to be a serious change in the direction the agency is taking, it would be evident in the response of the delegates. For such an organization, he said, change or additions might be good and, in any case, "It's healthy to periodically touch base formally with the municipalities."

The priority list could

Kaukauna Asks $150,000 Cut in School Budget

Fiscal Board Refers Spending Proposal Back for Review

KAUKAUNA — The $3,268,633 proposed school budget was handed back to the board of education by the fiscal control board Tuesday night with instructions to attempt to cut $150,000 and then plan another review.

"The board could likely live with a $75,000 cut," Supt. Julian Bichler told fiscal board members, "but any attempt to reduce the budget by $150,000 would seriously affect the standard of education."

Board members indicated that the higher figure merely was a suggestion, a point for school board members to aim at.

The decision to return the budget for cost came after almost three hours of discussion, during which the main argument was that the proposed budget would necessitate tax increases of from $10 to $12 per $1,000 assessed valuation. This increase was based on a district tax levy increase of $44,564 for the schools. The proposed budget is $47,125 higher than this year's.

Postponed Before

The school board admitted that areas recommended for cuts by the fiscal board had been discussed, but since they had been postponed for so many years, school board members felt they should at least be proposed to the fiscal unit.

These included about $40,000 for renovation of the high school auditorium, $10,000 for bleachers at the athletic field, $4,200 for tennis court resurfacing, $7,000 for a school nurse, and $20,000 for auditorium maintenance.

Leo Driessen, school board member, questioned why the school budget was always the "whipping boy" for officials. He said that, using comparative figures, the school budget had increased less in a five-year period than either the city or county budgets.

In that period, he pointed out, school spending has gone up 34.5 per cent while city budgets increased 44.3 per cent and those for the county, 65.8 per cent.

Questioned Items

Fiscal members questioned the need for three custodians at Victor Haen Elementary School, to open in 1971, and suggested the board of education look into charges for a cleaning service. They also questioned the need for resurfacing a high school parking lot and roof coating over the new gym and vocal areas at the high school, and suggested $2,100 as a more realistic figure for athletic field bleachers.

School officials pointed to the lack of state aids received by the city as one of the causes for the levy increase. It was noted

Welfare Plea Is Revived By Buckley

In a revival of an earlier move, Mayor George Buckley today asked Outagamie County Board chairman Russell DeLaHunt whether the county might consider assuming city welfare administration duties and charging the city for the costs.

The mayor made his request "in the interest of avoiding duplication of services."

He asked DeLaHunt to notify him as soon as the board chairman knows the county position on the request, pointing out City Council initiative is necessary to do away with the city welfare administrative staff and turn the duties over to the county.

The mayor said Green Bay is in the process of making a similar change and has the matter before the Brown County Board. The Appleton chief executive quoted Green Bay Mayor Donald Tillman as saying the measure stands a very good chance of passage.

Buckley made a similar request some time ago but it was received with out enthusiasm from the Outagamie board.

The 7th District Incumbent Obey Never Stops Campaigning

In a sense, to hold elective office is to campaign. In that same sense, Rep David Obey has been on the campaign trail since April, 1969, when he was elected to represent the 7th District in Congress.

The 32-year-old Wausau Democrat has visited his district an average, he says, of two out of three weekends since then while the House was in session.

He has sent out a newsletter to constituents each quarter, submitted a column to weekly and daily newspapers in the 15-county district, appeared on television in interviews and on taped announcements made in the House TV studio, and sent special communications to business and professional organizations and interest groups, when legislation of interest to them has come up.

He points out that he has to pay for own fare for trips in excess of the one per month allotted him for "legislative business," and similarly must either keep his stationary expense within his office budget or write a personal check to pay excess costs.

Uses Advantages

Nevertheless, he has made full use of the advantages that go to an incumbent — and which all of his colleagues use similarly, though to varying degrees.

While his opposition — the Republican challenger is Andre LeTendre, 32, of Wausau, until recently national president of the Jaycees — grumbles about the advantage Obey has, he has good reason to use it.

He beat his opponent in 1969 by a 3.25 per cent plurality, after his Republican predecessor, Melvin Laird, had rolled up a 2-1 margin over the Democratic candidate in the previous fall's regular election.

The district is known for its tendency to "swing" across party lines, depending on who the candidate is. To fail to use every means available to swing the vote his way would be foolhardy.

Campaigning in Waupaca County shortly after the House recessed for the election, Obey told several constituents he disapproves of the way elections have to be run, even though he uses some of the devices to which he objects.

Should be Educational

The object of his comments was the political "spot commercial." The 91st Congress' youngest member received a master's degree in political science from the University of Wisconsin in 1962. He says he believes that a campaign should be educational, and agrees with those that say spot commercials oversimplify and mislead.

He would like to see them abolished and replaced with debates or discussions with newsmen or a panel.

Nevertheless, he uses spot announcements extensively. "You have no choice. You have to, to compete," he told a butcher in Weyauwega and a weekly newspaper editor in Iola.

He voted for the bill recently vetoed by President Nixon, to limit the amount of money a candidate can spend on TV. "All you are doing is guaranteeing that the guy with average means can get in the ball game," Obey explained in defense of the bill. Nixon vetoed it, in part, on grounds it would close only one loophole to heavily-financed candidates, and shift their spending to other forms of advertising. Obey calls this a "phony argument."

It's not his only disagreement with Nixon policies.

A central theme of the 7th District campaign has been federal spending.

The topic is a natural because of the debates it has

The 15-county 7th Congressional District presents a race between 18-month incumbent David Obey, a Democrat, and former national Jaycees President Andre LeTendre, a Republican.

When Mel Laird was representing Wisconsin's Seventh Congressional District in the House, he used to put away his Democrat election opponents by 2-1 margins.

Now, Laird is secretary of defense, and a Democrat, Rep. David Obey of Wausau, has had his old job for the past 18 months.

But Republican Andre LeTendre (pronounced LaTahn) is running on a combination of the Laird popularity and the Nixon record, in the belief that is the formula that can win the post back for the GOP.

A conservative and proud of it, LeTendre says the 15-county Seventh is essentially a conservative district — too conservative to be satisfied with Obey, who LeTendre happily tells people was labelled in a recent national news magazine article as "an unabashed liberal."

LeTendre, who ended a year's stint as national president of the Jaycees before taking to the campaign trail, also believes that three out of four voters in the district "approve of the way President Nixon is handling things."

He received the President's strong support when Nixon attended the Bart Starr testimonial in Green Bay Oct. 17, and Secretary Laird issued a veiled statement that while avoiding direct endorsement of LeTendre, at least closely paraphrased statements made by LeTendre during the campaign.

"Support President"

Pointing out that as defense secretary "you are in a non-political position," Laird went on to say he hopes his former constituents will choose a representative who "will support the President's efforts to bring peace." Obviously, that shoe fits a Republican more closely than a Democrat.

Laird also said the nation must be strong militarily, economically and morally if peace is to come — a theme hit often and in closely similar terms by LeTendre.

Nixon said LeTendre is "like Mel Laird," whom he described as "tops in American."

by the tardiness of the news release — in sharp contrast to the general promptness with which the more mundane releases have been issued on a daily basis from the campaign headquarters.

Other Hitches

The newsmen who conducted the TV interview — through special arrangements with a White House aide and the LeTendre organization — said the station refused to give up the tape until the fullest exclusive use had been made by the station.

The timing of the release isn't the only hitch that has arisen in the campaign. One Republican insider with the time the county got into operation.

Neenah Committee Okays Six People For Police Force

NEENAH — If the decision of with Hauser saying. "We don't the finance committee stands, have mutual aid, as such. What the police department will be we have is outside aid. Mutual beefed up with the addition of a aid is when other departments minimum of six full-time people respond on the first alarm, while the fire department will while outside aid brings in other remain at its present strength. departments on the second and third alarm."

Police Chief Lawrence Malouf's request for four girls to man the desk and handle radio and telephone calls was granted. Malouf's intent is to have the girls handle the routine calls at the desk so sergeants, who now take care of those chores, can be freed to handle patrol and supervisory duties.

The committee also went along with Mayor Roman V. Adams for cutting back on the Hauser's recommendation to add another two men to the department's strength. designed to beef up the surveillance of the city.

But Fire Chief Ronald Mertz's request for an extra three men was turned down. According to Mertz, he was asking for the men to start working toward a full complement of men over the next three years.

Originally, Malouf had asked for the four girls, plus an extra five men so he could add one full patrol. "Then we could divide the city up into three sections, instead of two," he said.

Actually, Malouf will be able to hire three new men, but the third man will come from the overtime and vacation pay account and will not require raising his $478,638 operational account.

Hauser, however, had suggested cutting down the request to two men in an economy move. The committee also went along with a suggestion to replace the full-time policeman, who mans the N. Commercial - Forest Avenue intersection, with a crossing guard.

Referring to the fire department request, Hauser pointed out, "I'm not recommending any increase in manpower, because we have mutual aid pacts with surrounding municipalities."

Mertz, however, took issue

Sale of Easter Seal Christmas Articles Slated This Week

A Christmas sale of articles made by the homebound clients affiliated with the Easter Seal Homecraft Program of Outagamie County is set for Thursday at the Charles Buchanan residence, 229 N. Union St.

The articles made by the handicapped people include gifts and decorations, Christmas and place cards, toys, games, aprons, favors, clothing, stationery, doll houses and rugs.

Another sale has been set Nov. 12 at the Neenah-Menasha YMCA Community Center.

The people who make the handicrafts are under the supervision of a state homecraft instructor, Miss Barbara Trachte, who serves Outagamie, Waupaca, Calumet and Winnebago counties.

She has been an instructor with the Wisconsin State Vocational Rehabilitation Program for 27 years and has received many honors for her work with the handicapped.

During the year the articles made by the clients are sold in the Easter Seal Homecraft Shop in Appleton. The workers receive the full amount for which their articles are sold. However, due to the limited space, many of the articles had to be sent to the Milwaukee Easter Seal store.

The Easter Seal Society has worked with the handicapped for more than 50 years nationally, and since 1926 in Wisconsin. Among the services are Camp Wawbeek, summer camp for handicapped youths and adults; homecraft shops, purchase and loan of orthopedic equipment; local care and treatment and research funds. It also provides information and referral services for assistance. Chester Soley, Appleton is on the state board of directors.

Winnebago Terminal Bids Under Estimate

OSHKOSH — Bids for the new airport terminal have yet to be tabulated, but on first inspection it looks like the county is going to get a good buy. Airport manager Michael Brock was pleased. Ben Gantner Construction Co., Oshkosh, had the apparent low base bid at $1,090,500. Precor Construction Co., Oshkosh, was second with $1,128,000 and Charles Gambosky Co., Inc., Menasha, was third at $1,155,000. The highest of seven general bids was made by Howard Immel, Inc., Green Bay, $1,362,354. The specifications required a base bid with 14 alternates and a number of possible substitutions. Architects Howard, Neeldies, Tammen & Bergendoff have the bids and will tabulate them.

The base bids include apron, parking lot and remodeling work on the existing building. This brings the cost above $1 million for the total job, but the terminal building itself is well within the $1 million top limit set on it by the county board.

Brock said there were nine plumbing and drainage bids. The lowest apparently is by the Andrew Co., $73,480. Tschank & Christensen was lowest of 14 heating and air conditioning bidders at $237,800, and Seco Electric Co. appeared to be low of seven electrical bidders at $134,652.

The aviation committee meets Friday morning to review the bids.

"At any rate, bids will be accepted prior to Nov. 9," Brock said. That is the meeting day for the county board. It must approve the bids before work starts, and work will begin this fall.

Twin Cities Chest Drive Gets $63,046

NEENAH-MENASHA — As the Neenah-Menasha Community Chest campaign moved into its second week, a total of $63,046 was reported in cash and pledges, almost 20 per cent of the goal.

Lee Forman, campaign chairman, said that a study of comparable pledges from 1969 indicate that individual contributions are running ahead of the 7 1/2 per cent average increases needed to realize the Chest budget.

At least two major industrial firms, Neenah Foundry and Wisconsin Telephone, reported completion of solicitation drives, although dollar figures are not available and are not included in the totals reported to date.

Dave Volkman, coordinator for the Menasha city government, reported $1,946 pledged to date, up 29.2 per cent over last year, and more reports are yet to come in.

The Neenah city library has reported 100 per cent participation and a 38.6 per cent increase over last year.

Forman said that at this stage of the campaign, results come in slowly because many campaign workers do not report their totals until solicitation of their assigned unit has been completed.

Biggest gainer for the week was the Industrial Employees and Corporate section which reached a total of $28,765. Totals reported by other groups are as follows: public-civic, $2,010; mercantile, $244; commercial, service, construction, $1,462; professional $7,185; general, $820 special gifts $22,560.

Winnebago May Move Guidance Unit

Sanitorium Could House Offices in Remodeled Structure

OSHKOSH — It looks like the Guidance Center will be moving next spring. Its lease with Miles Kimball Co.'s WNAM runs out at the end of April.

The study committee on health service has a few more details to iron out, but will recommend that the center move to a remodeled wing of the nurses quarters at Sunnyview Sanatorium. The building is now almost unused.

Guidance Center staffers recommended that the operation be split into Oshkosh and Neenah-Menasha locations to better service patients, many of whom have transportation problems.

"The property is there, and whether Guidance Center people are in favor of it, or they aren't, it looks like they'll go in there," said Supv. Ted Neely, Menasha, of the Sunnyview building.

3,000 Square Feet
Supv. George Christoph, Neenah, went over the building's plans and calculated 3,000 square feet of available space. The center is now cramped in 2,200 square feet. Architects Boettcher Ginnow are looking at the three floors of the new wing.

Center people want nine offices, a staff meeting room and space for expansion. Two unused bedrooms in the old wing were suggested as the place for expansion. They now have seven office rooms.

Sunnyview superintendent Jesse Fissel and four employees now live in the building. Fissel will not be disturbed, but the four employees will have to move. "We'll give them notice. They can be out in 30 days, just like a rented room. There should be no problem," said Christoph.

Fond du Lac Unit
A meeting will be held with the Fond du Lac building committee to get its approval. Fond du Lac owns half of Sunnyview. The possibility of federal funds will be checked out. Remodeling costs were estimated at $40,000. The business is entrusted with committees. A partial list includes: Study Committee on Health Service, Institutions, Guidance Center, Fond du Lac's Buildings and Grounds. It also must be approved by the state.

An even heavier committee crust lies on top of the problem of what to do about Sunnyview itself. The place is an ancient, dingy collection of cells without adequate fire protection. A remodeling program was canned after costs came in so high that economy would have been better served with a new building.

Remove the Guidance Center Board and add the 25-member Comprehensive Health Planning Committee for eight counties with its central committee to the list. All of these are mulling about in Sunnyview's problems.

Neely said that after Guidance Center space needs were solved, Sunnyview had top priority. Mrs. Alberta Goff pushed for a unilateral decision by Winnebago County to build a TB hospital, and then get it approved as regional center by the eight counties.

Parents will confer with teachers on student progress or problems. Teachers to meet with parents include Mrs. Celia Martzahl, Mrs. James Toonen, Mrs. Dorothy Kufner, Mrs. Barbara Pontow, Fred Phillip, Mrs. Nancy Morey, Mrs. Mary Sell and Mrs. Leo Lamers.

Visitation Period Set For Village Parents

COMBINED LOCKS — A visitation period for parents of Janssen School third and fourth graders will be held from 9 to 10:15 a.m. Thursday, recess time at the school.

School principal, Mrs. Marie Couillard, will also be on hand to talk to parents.

Railroad Conductor Injured by Stones

A railroad conductor was cut on the face Tuesday evening when vandals threw stones at a moving train, shattering glass of a caboose window.

Ed Brager, employed by the Chicago and North Western Railroad, filed the complaint with police. He was cut on the nose and forehead. The incident occurred at the Superior Street crossing, as the train moved south.

He said he thought that four or five high school-age students may have been responsible.

About 700 People heard the case for private education at an open forum on state aid to parochial schools Tuesday at Xavier High School. Dr. Peter Danner, chairman of the economics department at Marquette

700 Attend CEF Session at Xavier

The role of parents in education has been greatly diminished through the years and with the decline in parochial schools, it is even more in danger, people involved in private education were told Tuesday.

The occasion was an open forum on state aid for nonpublic schools, sponsored by Citizens for Educational Freedom, at Xavier High School.

Dr. Peter Danner, chairman of the economics department at Marquette University, Milwaukee, spoke to the crowd of about 700, which he addressed as "friends of private education."

Planners had hoped to attract more than 3,000 from a 13-county area for the event.

"One of the principal reasons for nonpublic education is that parents' responsibility is central to the educational process. And with the diminishing enrollments in nonpublic schools, we have more than a financial struggle; we have a struggle to maintain the parents role in the educational process," Danner said.

Cites Parents' Role
The speaker, who was a member of the Kellett Commission on education as well as the CEF board of directors and executive committee, briefly detailed what has been done and was being done to promote action on the 1971 aid to parents bill. He concentrated more on parental responsibility in education.

"The obvious plight of non-public education is not due to loss of quality in education but for financial reasons. If these schools were to drop out because of financial difficulty, there would be a great loss to the entire state," Danner reminded the crowd.

The speaker said that 20 percent of the children in the state are currently attending parochial schools.

"Obviously we are doing a public service and if that is the case, we should be getting the best kind of public recognition—public support. A token pat on the back is not enough," he added.

If all the private schools were to close today, he said, the Wisconsin tax bill would go up by $160 million a year, Danner pointed out.

But it isn't all financial, he said. "If the schools were to close, there would be a great loss to the entire state in another respect, for the education in private schools is very sound.

Two-Thirds Go On
"Two-thirds of the private school graduates go on to higher education and this, by any standards, is good. And this, despite the fact that it costs private education only one-third as much to educate the child," Danner said.

Aside from the educational values, Danner outlined other reasons why parochial schools should not be allowed to die.

"For one, they provide the healthiest of American virtues—competition. They also provide an alternative for parents who want their children to get a Christian education."

Touching briefly on the latter point, Danner said, "Naturally, the state has a great responsibility in the educational process, because it needs good citizens who will act knowledgeably in the political process, and as morally disciplined people who respect the rights of others."

"But when we come back to the social problems of today all they are allowed to say is you must act reasonably because reasonable people act that way."

"In parochial schools, however, there isn't any question, we can go to the ultimate; we can use Christ's own words, 'When you do these things for the least of my brothers, you do them for Me.'"

CEF is a statewide grassroots citizen organization involved in obtaining state tax aid for tuition grants for the children in nonpublic schools.

In January the group sponsored a similar tuition-grant bill, which passed in the Senate by a 4-1 margin. Because of parliamentary procedure, however, the vote was blocked in the Assembly.

The committee views the proposal as "an economy move in the face of rising taxes," while believing the changing duties of the city treasurer would make the combined office "more compatible" with conditions facing the taxpayer-voter, he said.

The chamber statement omits mention of Ald. Winzenz's proposal that the combined positions be filled by a Certified Public Accountant.

Babbitt pointed out that statutes provide for four methods of filling the post of treasurer, which at present is filled in Appleton by direct election by voters. Statutes also allow direct appointment by the mayor, appointment by the mayor subject to confirmation by the Council or appointment by the Council, Babbitt said.

A move a few years ago to make some elective city hall jobs including treasurer appointment failed in a referendum.

"The fact that state statutes do allow several means of filling the office could indicate that some cities have chosen these alternatives," Babbitt said.

In Appleton, Babbitt added, there are some posts which are not elective even though statutes say they could be.

withdrawal of U. S. troops, with a provision for an extension if the President requested one.

In general, Obey falls neither among the harshest critics nor the staunchest backers of the Nixon Vietnam policies. "You can't fault the President for bringing troops out," he says, but he still believes either publicly or privately that the President should tell the Saigon government it will be on its own after a certain date.

"We've given them ample time for them to do what they have to do to gain the support of their own people. They have got to be pressed into making the kinds of reforms over there to gain the loyalty of their own people. That's the one ingredient that has been missing," Obey contends.

"Otherwise we could be stuck having hundreds of thousands of troops over there almost indefinitely," he fears.

Release of Prisoners
He believes this country's chief interest now, however, is in arranging the release of war prisoners held by Hanoi. Aside from that, he assesses the attitude of his constituents simply. "Most of all, they're sick about the whole thing."

Publicly, at least, Obey doesn't consider his liberal attitudes to be a handicap in the district, which his opponent insists is too conservative to be happy with Obey. The congressman said there have been "very few times" when he found it difficult to come home and justify the way he voted in Washington.

He has hardly sought to hide his views, judging by the volume and content of news releases and other announcements flowing from his office.

And he has had obvious success in making an imprint on the minds of the voters. Striding quickly from shop to shop on main streets in Iola, Ogdensburg, Manawa, Weyauwega and Fremont on his first day of full-time campaigning, he was greeted repeatedly with, "I recognize you from television," or, "I've seen your picture."

Voters Flattered
The people in the predominantly Republican county seemed friendly. "I've been getting your letters" was another common remark. Many people seemed flattered as he reached for their hands and said, "May I just say hello, please? I'm Dave Obey, your congressman."

He confessed he had to overcome innate shyness to force himself to get out and meet people in his first days in politics, as an Assembly candidate in 1962, when he won the first of four elections to that body prior to the 1969 special congressional election.

"I like to campaign mostly in these small towns," he remarked as he made his rounds. "I think they get the idea that because they're small they're not important, that political power is slowly drifting away from them. I like to get in there as often as I can to show them that just isn't so."

"Where to Go"
Seldom does he make such a stop, but that he fails to run across a constituent that he's seen before or who has con-

LeTendre for Nixon Policy

Obey Proposes New Consumer Protection Laws

During 7th District congressional campaigning, Republican candidate Andre LeTendre today repeated his support for Nixon economic policies, while Democratic Rep. David Obey said consumer protection laws also would protect merchants.

LeTendre told a Stevens Point party gathering. "There are two effective major weapons to fight inflation," reducing federal spending and tightening the money supply and credit. Both are being used by President Nixon, he added, "and they are working."

The Wausau Republican accused Obey of refusing to face the economic issues, instead "offering make-shift, short-term proposals that in the long run would only add fuel to the fires of inflation."

Obey had proposed wage-price guidelines as a presidential tool against inflation.

The Democratic incumbent, speaking in Wausau at a rally of Marathon County Democratic candidates, said Congress ought to adopt proposals to ban unsolicited mailing of credit cards, make warranties clear, fair and effective and permit consumer "class action" lawsuits against dishonest manufacturers.

"Consumers and retail businessmen alike are victimized by shoddy or unsafe merchandise and dishonest warranty practices," he said, adding that if the measures he listed fail to pass the 91st Congress' upcoming lame duck session, they should be adopted in the following session.

UWGB Library Construction Contracts Set

MENASHA — The University of Wisconsin-Green Bay Fox Valley Campus trustees Tuesday signed contracts for the construction of an addition which will add 2,100 square feet to the library, doubling the size of the present one.

Trustees, representing Outagamie and Winnebago counties which provide physical facilities for the campus, are Oliver Thomsen, Neenah, Herbert Helble, Appleton, Hubert L. Sherman, Menasha, and Herman V. Ripp, Appleton.

The general construction contract went to the J. L. Anderson Construction Co., Appleton, for the low bid of $29,428. Terms of the contract include starting on the project within 10 days and a completion date of about Feb. 1, 1971.

Heating and ventilating work was awarded to the Olson Plumbing and Heating Co., Neenah, with a bid of $4,360, and the Stephenson Electric Co., Appleton, won the contract for electrical work with a bid of $4,362.

Total for the three contracts is $38,150 or over $40,439 when the architect's fees, Boettcher & Ginnow, Inc., Neenah, is the architect.

Treasurer, Finance Merger Supported

The merging of the Appleton finance director's and treasurer's posts into one and making the job appointive rather than elective, has the support of a Chamber of Commerce committee.

John K. Babbitt, chamber president, announced that the municipal and county affairs committee has endorsed the proposal and will submit it to the full board of directors with a recommendation for support.

The chamber statement offered various arguments that could form the nucleus of a case in favor of the merger if it becomes an issue for serious council debate or goes before the voters in a referendum.

The proposal to combine the two jobs is being held for action in the City Council Finance Committee, awaiting supporting information from the author, Ald. Judith Winzenz (12th).

Babbitt said committee discussion centered around state statutory provisions that would permit the change.

The committee views the proposal as "an economy move in the face of rising taxes," while believing the changing duties of the city treasurer would make the combined office "more compatible" with conditions facing the taxpayer-voter, he said.

The chamber statement omits mention of Ald. Winzenz's proposal that the combined positions be filled by a Certified Public Accountant.

Babbitt pointed out that statutes provide for four methods of filling the post of treasurer, which at present is filled in Appleton by direct election by voters. Statutes also allow direct appointment by the mayor, appointment by the mayor subject to confirmation by the Council or appointment by the Council, Babbitt said.

A move a few years ago to make some elective city hall jobs including treasurer appointment failed in a referendum.

"The fact that state statutes do allow several means of filling the office could indicate that some cities have chosen these alternatives," Babbitt said.

In Appleton, Babbitt added, there are some posts which are not elective even though statutes say they could be.

GREENVILLE — The new parsonage of the Faith Community United Methodist Church, Greenville, will be dedicated Sunday, November 1 at 2 p.m. The Rev. Dale Strong, district superintendent, will officiate. Coffee will be served afterwards.

Incumbent Obey Never Stops Campaigning

triggered in Washington. For the 7th District, it becomes more pertinent because Obey was appointed shortly after his election to the powerful House Appropriations Committee which recommends what and how much the government should spend for which programs.

The day after the House recessed, Obey kicked off his final stretch effort with a news conference in Wausau at which he stressed a single point: Republican charges that the Democrat-dominated Congress is wildly overspending presidential budget requests are, in Obey's word, a myth.

Of 14 budget bills considered so far in the House, only three have been increased above Nixon recommendations, he said. The net difference is $2.5 billion below what Nixon sought, Obey said. The Senate still must act on several of the largest budgets, and is expected to follow its historic pattern of showing somewhat less fiscal restraint than the House. Even so, the net effect is expected to be a budget at least $1 billion below the President's proposals, according to Obey and other Democrats.

Little Difference
Even so, he stressed in recent speeches, there isn't much difference of opinion between Republicans and Democrats over how much to spend. The House cuts represent only one-half per cent of the total federal budget, he pointed out.

What is at issue is not how much we should spend, but rather how we should spend it," he contends.

He is referring in part to the three budgets the House voted to increase, actions Obey supported. The increases, including those vetoed by the President as inflationary and later adopted over his veto, went for purposes including education, water pollution, hospital construction and modernization, veterans hospitals and housing, Obey explained.

Those are purposes he supports strenuously, saying funds should be diverted from what he terms "fancy, symbolic programs" such as some aspects of the space program and the supersonic transport to "programs of human need."

Defense Spending
He also supports cuts in defense spending, saying waste in that area is extensive enough to support sizable cuts without hurting the nation's defensive strength. That stance puts him at odds not only with his opponent but with his highly popular predecessor, Laird, who while voicing his own views on how to achieve economy in his department has differed with the ways Congress has chosen to go about it.

On the President's Vietnam policy, Obey also agrees, though the congressman says the subject has fallen in rank among the major concerns of his constituents. At the height of Senate debates over dove resolutions on ending the war, Obey co-authored a House proposal to set a deadline for withdrawal of U. S. troops, with a provision for an extension if the President requested one.

In general, Obey falls neither among the harshest critics nor the staunchest backers of the Nixon Vietnam policies. "You can't fault the President for bringing troops out," he says, but he still believes either publicly or privately that the President should tell the Saigon government it will be on its own after a certain date.

"We've given them ample time for them to do what they have to do to gain the support of their own people. They have got to be pressed into making the kinds of reforms over there to gain the loyalty of their own people. That's the one ingredient that has been missing," Obey contends.

Construction of Garage Rekindles Street Controversy

A garage being built in right-of-way reserved for an extension of Calumet Street has rekindled the dispute over the construction of the street as a link between Garden Court and Cherry Court on the southwest side.

In a letter to the mayor, eight residents of Garden Court have objected to construction of the garage by Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Chudy, 2 Garden Court, on a permit granted by the city.

The City Council approved the couple's request on May 6 and the mayor and city clerk signed the permit on May 25. According to the complaint received today at the city clerk's office, the garage is currently under construction.

The complaint asks that the city preserve the Cherry Court-Calumet Street right-of-way for public use, invoke a 10-day notice clause in the permit ordering removal of the structure and halt private encroachment at the Calumet Street entrance at Cherry Court.

The petitioners reminded the mayor that city officials promised after a series of heated public hearings and meetings to give the construction of the Calumet Street link further study.

The complaint repeats statements made during the hearing outlining difficulties for residents of the area in entering and leaving the neighborhood in periods of heavy traffic on Memorial Drive.

Request Temporary Measures
The residents renewed requests for traffic lights or some other means of easing traffic problems on Memorial Drive "as a temporary measure until Cherry Court-Calumet Street is opened.

The residents of Garden Court must choose between Grove Street at the Appleton-Town of Gardner's Row, leading onto Appleton Road in the Town of Menasha when they enter or leave the area. In either case they frequently face heavy traffic.

They argue that opening the short stretch of Calumet to connect Garden Court with Cherry Court would provide access to Memorial Drive at two additional points.

Cherry Court residents opposed the plan on grounds it would mean increased traffic through their neighborhood.

The complaint also charges that a bond required to be posted under the statute covering such a construction permit was not posted by the Chudys.

They argue that the construction of the garage "causes damage to the taxpayers" of the city and would lend strength to future opposition to opening the street.

Good Neighbors
The complaint describes the Chudy's as "good neighbors," and expresses understanding toward their "trying to get the use of a city street upon which to place a private garage."

"However, we feel that as taxpayers and interested parties we must object even though it may result in an inconvenience to Mr. and Mrs. Chudy, and we do object," the complaint says.

The residents ask immediate action on improving traffic controls in the area, saying they shouldn't have to wait until Memorial Drive and the Memorial Drive bridge are improved since "such program is so many years away."

The letter is signed by Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Sigman, 50 Garden Court, Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard K. Willecke, 56 Garden Court, Mrs. Margaret Miller Harrani, 72 Garden Court, Mr. and Mrs. Norman A. McHan, 57 Garden Court, and Dean F. Bazile, 49 Garden Court.

The mayor, city attorney, clerk and Ald. Peter Peckley (10th), their City Council representative, were sent copies.

Grand Chute Man Nets Probation on Weapon's Charge

Circuit Court Judge Andrew W. Parnell this morning placed a 47-year-old Grand Chute man on a year's probation for carrying a concealed weapon.

Parnell stayed a nine-month term to the Outagamie County jail for Alvin Sam Carlson, 2002 N. Tillman St. with the first two months of the probation to be served in the jail.

Carlson was originally safety by conduct regardless of charged with end a n g e r i n g safety by conduct regardless of life in connection with a shooting incident that afternoon of Aug. 28, at which he fired a shot which barely missed a sheriff's department investigator.

County authorities had gone to Carlson's dwelling in Koehnke's Woods on orders from Sheriff Calvin L. Spice. The shooting occurred while they attempted to remove Carlson from an automobile, near where heavy equipment was being prepared to level the trailer home where he had been living.

Town of Grand Chute officials had ordered the dwelling removed when they decided it constituted a health hazard. They had received permission from the owner of the trailer, who rented it to Carlson.

Corps Director to Receive Award

William Schultz, director of the Americanos Drum & Bugle Corps will receive the first annual Jim Clark Memorial Award at ceremonies at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The award is given each year to an individual corps' director who has attained an enviable record in the various aspects of corps recruitment and excellence from among the 60 drum and bugle corps throughout the Badgerland District. Badgerland includes corps in Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois.

The award is named in honor of Jim Clark, former director of the Oshkosh Warriors Corps, who was killed last year in an auto accident.

The award will be presented to Schultz by Mrs. Clark.

Halloween Activities Make Learning Fun

child strives to meet only his own goals and not compete against others, who may be more advanced than he," the principal said.

Important Ingredient
"That's why fun is an important ingredient in learning. The child will pursue anything he likes to do and if we make school interesting he will like to study," Miss Wingarten said.

She points to a little Halloween musical the children had written and set to music, in which almost the entire curriculum was involved.

They wrote a story, then developed a poem, went to a church where an organist gave them a lesson on music, incorporating the "scary" tones. These were taped by the children, who went back and set the poem to music.

The result?
"Have you ever been out on a stormy black and blue night,

When you passed a haunted house and your heart pounded with fright.

And every noise you heard coming out of the night
Was a black cat and a bat having a fight."

It only took a few minutes to perform but the whole spectrum of the curriculum went into its planning.

To sum up the program, if witches hats and pumpkins stand for fun and fun is educational, then every little witches' hat must stand for learning and education progress.

At least it does at Washington School this week.

Claims COG Is Doing Job

strengthen acceptance of COG programs if delegates follow a suggestion move earlier this month. Town of Grand Chute Chairman Ira Livingston said he wanted to talk over priorities with his town board so that the planning is aimed more at what they feel the community wants than just his ideas as a delegate.

Franchett said that there could be needs in the area which these officials might see and which COG has not seen.

"We could fulfill these needs we were not aware of," he added. While COG carries more weight than a normal planning organization because its delegates are top elected officials of member communities, councils and boards within these communities must make the final decision that certain implementation.

This is partially the reason that certain regional programs, such as the sewerage proposals, have been stalled.

Franchett said that COG, the first such organization in Wisconsin, is a leader in programs and ideas.

And its members, he added, "are a step ahead of most municipalities in the country. They might want to see some new things out of the council."

Byrnes, Cornell Debate Issues

Students Quiz House Candidates

Capacity crowds of Appleton high school students and half a dozen members of the League of Women Voters tossed questions ranging from the Vietnam war and Red China to campus unrest and pornography at 8th District congressional candidate Rev. Robert Cornell and the incumbent congressman, Rep. John Byrnes, R-Green Bay, in league sponsored question and answer sessions Tuesday morning.

Cornell labeled the economic condition of the country as the major campaign issue, and offered two alternatives to the Republican policies of tight money and high interest rates.

"Eliminate federal expenses that are unnecessary and wasteful," he said. "Large federal spending is inflationary," and programs such as the superperson transport and an expanded ABM system are prime money offenders, he added.

Disagree on Priorities
"Both the Republicans and Democrats agree that cuts are necessary," Cornell said, but disagree on priorities, on where the cuts should be made.

Cornell's second suggestion was to establish federal wage and price guidelines, or that failing, wage and price controls. In the first case, the government would have to rely on its "moral persuasion" to keep industry to a set of increases felt to be non-inflationary, he said.

"Put presidential power and prestige behind them to make them effective," Cornell said.

"We have every reason to be optimistically cautious that we are getting out of the woods," Byrnes said of the present anti-inflationary measures put into effect by the Nixon administration. "Putting a damper on our expansionist economy has had results," he said, and without it, inflation last year and this year would be "sky high".

"We could get rid of our deficit tomorrow if you just let inflation run riot," he added.

Tax Increase
To the suggestion that a tax increase might help halt inflation, Byrnes said such a step would be "an error today, and should be avoided at all costs. It would depress the economy even more," he added.

"We need to get the economy moving," he said, and suggested that the Federal Reserve Board should exercise its responsibility to loosen up the money supply to meet that end.

"The real problem now is productivity," Byrnes said, "with wage and labor costs going up faster than productivity."

Byrnes and Cornell disagreed on the best kind of trade policy that should be pursued by the United States, with Byrnes backing the present policy of reciprocal trade, and Cornell holding out for a free trade policy.

"We have to promote mutual trade as much as we can, but this has to be done with fairness," Byrnes said. "I'm for placing some kind of limits to prevent this country from becoming some kind of dumping ground" for higher priced commodities that can be more cheaply produced abroad, he added.

"We are the one practically free market," he said. "Others really have been closing up. We generally have the lowest tariff levels."

Free Trade Policy
"As far as we can, I favor a free trade policy," Cornell declared. With the reciprocal policy we now have, he added, the country will end up with so many quotas on different trade items that it will have a protectionist trade policy.

A free trade policy is "best for the United States and best for the world," he said.

"We shouldn't be so provincial as to think only of the best interests of ourselves," he said, but must look at the total picture and consider the value of world friendship, our national image, etc.

The candidates also were asked for their views on the Vietnam war and the possibility of future U.S. involvements.

Gradual Withdrawal

"I am for immediate disengagement of troops in Vietnam," Cornell said, followed by a gradual withdrawal. "Immediate withdrawal is impossible and impractical, no matter how good it sounds."

Byrnes said such situations

Eggert Requests Extended Leave

Outagamie County Social Services Director Alfred Eggert has reported he may have to undergo heart surgery.

In a letter to the county board's Personnel Committee, Eggert has requested an extended medical leave of absence.

He said that "because of the amount of heart damage and impaired blood circulation" he had been advised by his doctor to enter St. Luke Hospital in Milwaukee for "further consultation, diagnostic tests and possible surgery."

Eggert suffered the heart attack Aug. 1 and has not been back at work since.

"should be avoided at all possible costs" in the future, and endorsed the "Nixon Doctrine" — "We will help people, but we're not any longer going to take the basic responsibility" as in Vietnam.

As for recognizing Red China and admitting her to the United Nations, Cornell said it was "ridiculous that those few Chinese on Taiwan should be recognized as the government of all China." He compared our attitude toward Red China to our early position toward the Soviet Union. "And what did that gain us?"

With recognition, Cornell added that the chances for improving relations between the two nations might be greater.

Not in Favor Now

Byrnes said he would not now favor recognizing Red China, but said that future international changes might make such a move feasible. "You've got to recognize that China exists," he said. "Whether we like the government or not, it's there."

Admitting Red China to the United Nations is difficult, Byrnes said, as long as the Chinese are proponents of the use of force. Part of becoming a United Nations signatory is denouncing the use of force, he said.

Cornell also declared that the United States is bound by its NATO obligations to provide military aid to Israel. "This is part and parcel of the NATO policy," he said.

Byrnes offered his views on revenue sharing, noting that with an anticipated $15 billion national deficit, "how can you talk of another aid program to send money back to the states?"

"I don't know what there is to share," he said.

TIPS ABOUT YOUR RUMMAGE SALE

- If three or more persons can get together for the event, so much the better. Assign persons to act as cashier while others do the selling . . . perhaps on a rotating basis.
- Be considerate of the persons who respect your privacy by adhering to the time you have set for the sale. Do not allow customers to enter and browse around ahead of this time. Answer questions about merchandise readily and honestly. Have items clearly marked. Use different colored tags so that sales may be tallied and divided correctly.
- In consideration of people who work, set your sales time for late afternoon and evenings. Make sure your merchandise is clearly displayed and easy to "rummage" through.
- After completing your plans and arrangements call 733-4411 or 722-4243 and place an ad in The Post-Crescent classified section. A competent, experienced Ad-visor will suggest the best and most economical ad for you.
- Call at The Post-Crescent for your FREE two-color "Rummage Sale" sign available to you as soon as you order your ad.

Challenger LeTendre Rolling After Late Start

good vantage point in the LeTendre organization said the candidate started running too late and too slowly, spending too much time checking over news releases — which he insists on approving before they go out — and too little in being seen around the district.

LeTendre was kept in the national Jaycee headquarters until his term expired in June, while Obey has been campaigning and making his presence known in every way possible since being elected in April, 1969.

"It doesn't exactly look like a Republican landslide," the party worker added glumly, indicating that if other GOP candidates fare badly in the election, it could add to LeTendre's troubles.

If the candidate got a slow start, his performance in the final three-week stretch of the campaign showed marked improvement.

First Obstacle

Poised, articulate and — from all appearances the day this reporter accompanied him — energetic, he charged from neighborhood coffee to radio interview to luncheon speech, then to the next coffee, plant gate handshaking and an evening speech.

While his views on the way government ought to be run differ sharply with Obey's, LeTendre admits that his first obstacle had nothing to do with issues.

When the campaign began,

Highest Pay Is for Latin, Agriculture

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The most remunerative fields in the public schools of Wisconsin for the last three years including 1969-70 were Latin and agriculture, and during those years the highest ratios of salary increase have been for teachers of kindergarten and Latin and junior high school librarians.

The state department of public instruction, reporting the trends, did not elaborate on the reasons but its statistics showed that there has simultaneously been a decline in the number of teaching positions for Latin, Russian, kindergarten and business education which resulted in loss of the number of such positions available.

The largest salaries were paid to teachers of Latin and agriculture, the latter resulting in substantial part from the fact that there is an extended school year for agriculture teachers. Latin teachers, conversely, typically have more years of teaching experience than is typical of those in other teaching specialties.

There also is a clear trend for the reduction of the number of courses in Latin and in the number of such teachers employed, officials said on the basis of reports filed by the local schools. Classes in Russian, business education and kindergarten also have been on the decline.

Agriculture teachers last year on the whole earned about $10,388, a gain of nearly 25 per cent over the three year period. Latin teachers earned slightly more than $10,000, on the average, or more than 26 per cent above the figure of three years ago, but the number of such teachers in the classrooms of the state continued to shrink, to a new low total of 206, or far below the number of instructors of French, Spanish and German.

TRY POST-CRESCENT CLASSIFIED ADS

"LeTendre wasn't exactly a household word," he observed. At the start of the campaign, red white and blue billboards dotted the district proclaiming, "LeTendre — a new way to spell leadership."

If his organization's intelligence reports are accurate, the approach had its effect. Many people were unsure what a LeTendre was. "One man told me he thought it was a meat tenderizer. Another thought it was a new kind of compact car," he jokes.

Little Professionalism

But people were noticing. Later, the original billboards were replaced with more conventional posters bearing his portrait and making clear that he is running for Congress. The words, "Spells Leadership" still appear near the bottoms of the ads.

The "teaser" technique, nothing new in the advertising business, is but one fairly sophisticated device being used in a campaign which is being run with a minimum of professional guidance.

LeTendre speaks proudly of the refusal to use professionals, adding that the supply of funds also helped lead to the decision. The disgruntled party worker, however, considers LeTendre's insistence on relying on non-professional volunteers a mistake. The party had professional help lined up, he said, and it should have been used.

A cameraman from the district did the filming and a Chicago advertising agency's political publicity men edited and added voice to his television ads. A Wausau woman who writes the daily press releases, however, says her experience consists of two years as Marathon County GOP publicity chairman.

The candidate and his volunteer staff wrote the TV scripts, and though the press releases are read to the audiences during each of his speeches, the bulk of his remarks are off-the-cuff.

He can't read a prepared speech comfortably, he says, so he leafs through a folder full of notes, newspaper clippings and other materials for reference as he waits to be introduced to his listeners and picks subject matter that seems appropriate.

Campaign Help

The state and national GOP campaign organizations have assigned a professional to his and other efforts, and they are used somewhat. His campaign headquarters also includes two-way electronic communications linked to the national GOP congressional campaign office in Washington.

Up-to-the-minute information on developments related to the campaign is transmitted regularly through the device, which LeTendre says he tried to reject at first but now finds he uses regularly.

He was giving a speech himself while President Nixon delivered his Oct. 7 peace message. LeTendre returned to headquarters to find the full text waiting on the machine.

Having the information available and delivering it are hardly the same, however. To deliver his message, like most contestants in difficult political battles, he frequently rises in time to be at a factory gate at 6 a.m., and doesn't end the day's schedule until he has given a speech as late as 9 or 10 p.m.

Obey won the special election of April, 1969, by a margin of 4,055 out of 123,079 votes cast. That thin edge is part of the fuel that makes LeTendre run hard.

Record of Incumbent

His message rests heavily on the record of the incumbent Obey. Addressing a Marshfield gathering that included at least one Democrat, a John Birch Society member and several regular Republicans, LeTendre remarked, "We have been criticized for running a negative campaign. That's not true. It's a very positive campaign, and it's called 'Defeat Dave Obey,' and I'm very positive about it."

While he enthusiastically attacks Obey, he insists he never gets personal, sticking strictly to the incumbent congressman's record. And he repeats often the claim that Obey "votes one way in Washington and talks the other way in the district."

A frequently employed tactic is to accuse Obey of failure to discuss his own record with the folks back home. "I have to tell the voters who Dave Obey is," he tells audiences. "That takes half my time. Then I can attack him."

He also likes to compare Obey with Laird, claiming that the present congressman fails to measure up to his Republican predecessor either in the way he votes or in the way he deals with his constituents.

'Opposite Way'

"Rep. Laird would have voted the opposite way on virtually every issue," he told the Marshfield audience concerning Obey's voting in the past 18 months.

"How long has it been since you had a good conversation with your congressman?" he jibes, while telling voters that the popular Laird was in his district often and took time to talk to individuals and groups about their problems and the issues in Washington.

"Sensitivity" is a word he uses to describe Laird, promising that as a congressman he would also have that quality.

As the campaign entered the final three-week stretch, LeTendre had narrowed the issues to those of campus unrest, taxes and spending, Indo China and national defense.

He talks in favor of tight control over college and university faculty members to curb those who encourage disorder. He favors the Nixon Administration's revenue sharing proposals, which he reminds voters was a Laird idea. He supports the Administration's Vietnamization plan and other proposals for peace in Southeast Asia.

Strong Defense

He is adamant about a strong national defense, telling audiences, "Clean air and clean water will not be of much value if we are not free and at peace."

While admitting he faces a difficult task, LeTendre insists he can win.

It would seem he could, if he is right in believing the district is a conservative one that should be dissatisfied with a liberal congressman, and one that supports a President with whom the present congressman often disagrees.

But even if he is right, his victory still depends on whether the voters — enough of them — have received his message.

Saturday to be 'Trick or Treat' Night at Chilton

CHILTON — Mayor Harry Thompson and Police Chief Dan Albeydl have designated Saturday as "Trick or Trick" night for the children.

Children of Ebenezer United Church of Christ will collect for UNICEF Thursday.

Chief Albeydl cautioned children to wear light clothing and not to wear masks that obstruct their view when crossing streets.

He also cautioned motorists to drive with caution and watch for youngsters crossing the streets.

Three Injured in Traffic Accidents

Separate traffic accidents Sunday morning resulted in injuries for three persons, one of them is serious enough to be hospitalized.

Larry L. Hahn, 27, 431 E. South River St., sustained a head cut and was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by squad car when his car and one driven by Mark T. Rabideau, 27, 2209 Riverside Drive, Kaukauna, collided in the intersection of Lincoln and Jefferson streets. Rabideau received a bruise to the left leg.

Charles M. Laga, 53, 1031 E. Kay St., complained of a sore left shoulder when his car, eastbound on Woodland Avenue, struck one driven by Carrol M. Johnson, 52, 1630 W. Summer St. Appleton police said the Johnson car was headed north on Rankin before the accident.

Key to Racing Outfit

BY CAPPY DICK

Boys and girls! Here's your chance to become the winner of a Double Dyno Racer outfit that includes two super-fast, long-rolling autos, each more than seven inches long, two power launchers and a six-piece scoring gate.

This is the racing set that requires no batteries and no speedway tracks. The lightning-fast little cars will run on any surface indoors or out and just a touch of your finger is all that is needed to get a thrilling race started. There is even a spin-out device that keeps the cars running straight ahead.

Five of these outfits, manufactured by Model Products Corporation, will be awarded as the national grand prizes in today's Halloween contest. To win one, a contestant's entry must prove to be one of the five neatest and most original correct ones received from any of the cities where this column for boys and girls is published.

In addition to the Double Dyno Racer outfits, there will be five local qualifying prizes. These will be mysterious Pop Bottle magic tricks. Using a piece of secret equipment that comes with each trick, a boy or girl who wins one can fill a soft drink bottle with water, turn it upside down, float a toothpick up through the neck of the bottle and the liquid will not spill. The Pop Bottle tricks will be awarded for the five neatest and most original correct contest entries received from boys and girls of the Fox Cities area. The entries winning the tricks will then be considered in the national judging.

To enter the contest, decipher the five Halloween words in the picture printed above. Each word has something to do with Halloween. For example, the fourth word, when unscrambled, is "cauldron," the utensil supposedly used by witches to brew their strange concoctions.

When you have figured out the five words, clip out the picture, paste it on paper, print the deciphered words beneath it, together with your name, age, address and Zip Code number, and decorate the entry in any neat, original way with paints, crayons or cutouts.

Address the entry to Cappy Dick's Midweek Double Dyno Contest at The Post-Crescent and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

Names of the prize winners will be published here and their awards will be sent to their homes by mail. Judges' decisions will be final. All entries become Cappy Dick's property; none can be returned.

Piano-Cello Duo Opens Lawrence Artist Series

Grant Johannesen, Wife Zara Nelsova in Concert Nov. 12 at Memorial Chapel

"There is no finer cello and piano team than Zara Nelsova and Grant Johannesen," wrote one of New York city's leading critics on a recent appearance of the two artists who will open the 1970-71 Lawrence Artist Series with an 8 p.m. concert Thursday, Nov. 12, in Lawrence Memorial Chapel.

"Each has a superb technique and aristocracy of taste and musical bearing," he continued. "Together, they illuminate the cello-piano literature with elegance, clarity, sincerity and complete stylistic penetration." Johannesen and Miss Nelsova met at the Aspen Musical Festival in 1961, and were married two years later. Both have gathered critical acclaim on their own as well as in their frequent joint appearances.

Going to Europe Johannesen, who appeared in a solo performance in the Lawrence Artist Series in 1965, is one of the most sought-after guest artists with the great symphony orchestras from coast to coast and in Europe. During the 1970-71 season, Johannesen will return to the Soviet Union for a three-week tour prior to an extensive European tour.

Zara Nelsova made her debut with the London Symphony Orchestra at the age of 12. Since that time has toured regularly in Europe and South America. Her tour of Europe last season was enthusiastically received, as was a performance with the Boston Symphony and a brilliant recital in New York's Alice Tully Hall.

Together, Johannesen and Miss Nelsova produce music full of "soul, feeling, emotion, intensity, drive, and drama," according to one critic, who added that he could "go on adding superlative after superlative."

The selections for their Lawrence recital include sonatas by Ludwig Beethoven, Frederic Chopin, and Cesar Franck, each of whom possessed great understanding of and love for the piano and cello, and composed exquisite pieces with both cello and piano in equal articulation. The program will open with Beethoven's Sonata in A Major, Opus 69. Beethoven was the first composer to offer sonatas of real importance for the piano and cello, and seemingly attracted by the tenor voice of the cello, did his best to bring out the singing quality by means of broad and slow phrases.

The Chopin Sonata in G minor, Opus 65, the second selection on the program, was Chopin's final composition, and the only work for cello and piano he wrote, except for the youthful "Introduction and Polonaise, Opus 3."

Johannesen and Nelsova will conclude their recital with Franck's "Sonata in A Major."

Bob Hope Guest on Thomas Show

BY TV SCOUT

7-7:30 Channels 11-9 — Bob Hope is a guest on Make Room For Granddaddy and while the story is predictable, Hope and Danny Thomas get every possible guffaw out of the lines given them. The plot has Hope asking Thomas to join him in a show for the troops. Most of the time is given over to Danny imagining the way things will be: freezing in an igloo, parachuting out of a plane, having Hope steal his jokes. Old hat, but very funny.

7:30-8 Channels 2-7 — The Governor and J.J. has an intelligent and witty piece of political comedy. Dan Dailey has to choose a new running mate. High on the list of candidates is a young man named Fawcett ("Drinkwater with Fawcett," the governor predicts the billboards will read), who has lots of qualifications, including the fact that he's young and good-looking and J.J. thinks that's just what the ticket needs. Lawrence Pressman is Fawcett Ed Platt, formerly Get Smart's Chief, becomes a semi-regular as the governor's frequent nemesis, Orin Hacker.

7:30-8 Channels 11-9 — Room 222 has its best script to date, about a clean-cut student who tries very hard to abide by rules, but who often finds himself wrong and ridiculed. He's captain of the track team, and Pete (Lloyd Haynes) is appointed temporary coach. Pete allows a long-haired pole vaulter on the team — a boy who thinks rules are to be broken — and the diametrically opposed pair, played by Rick Kelman (short hair) and Dennis Redfield (long hair, learn from each other

10:30-11:30 Channel 2 — Medical Center comes up with the story of a mother trying to deal with her hyperkinetic child who just isn't as bright as other kids her age, no matter how much momma wants to cover up. Mia Bendixson, who is 6, is remarkable in her acting debut as the child and Lois Nettleson and Jason Evers are fine as her parents.

8-9 Channel 5 — If you long for the good old gags of TV, tonight's Kraft Music Hall offering, "TV's Hit Parade of Comedy," should be just your thing. Milton Berle hosts with Phil Silvers and Sid Caesar.

8-9 Channels 11-9 — You may wonder what Louis Armstrong is doing on a country-western outing like The Johnny Cash Show, but what most people don't know is that Louis started as a c-w artist. One of his early jobs was backing the late Jimmie Rodgers (not to be confused with today's Jimmie Rodgers) on Rodgers' first recording, "Blue Yodel No. 9." That record, made in 1930, is recreated here with Cash singing Rodgers' part. Other guests: Tennessee Ernie Ford and the First Edition.

9-10 Channel 5 — The second of four series premieres on Four-in-One: San Francisco International Airport. This stars Lloyd Bridges as the airport manager with Clu Gulager as his security chief, Barbara Werle as his efficient secretary and Barbara Sigel as his daughter, here confined to telephone conversations with her dad. There is some imagination in the plot, as we see someone attach a device to some deadly gas, temporarily stored in a hangar at the airport.

Early Mailings To Mean Savings

Postmaster Francis H. Sumnicht has announced that parcel post customers will have an opportunity to save money by mailing holiday packages early. Previously approved increases of 15.4 per cent on fourth-class parcels and a 6 per cent on catalogs do not become effective until Nov. 14, 1970. Service-men's families and other early Christmas mailers will be able to dispatch their parcels at the lower rates if they mail before the 14th of November.

To insure overseas delivery before Dec. 25, Postmaster Sumnicht recommends special mailing dates.

Surface parcels should be mailed now through Nov. 7. SAM parcels (airlifted on a space-available basis with a five-pound limit) should be mailed now through Nov. 21. And PAL parcels (airlifted all the way on a space-available basis with a 30-pound limit and a $1 surcharge) should be mailed now through Nov. 28.

Lawrence Ensemble To Give Beethoven Program at Waupun

A Lawrence Conservatory of Music ensemble will present a Beethoven program at 8 p.m. Thursday in Waupun.

The recital is being sponsored by the Waupun Arts Area Council. It is the third in about a month for the Lawrence quartet, which performed at the Lawrence University celebration of composer Beethoven's birth and also gave a late September concert of Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh.

Members of the quartet are pianist Theodore Rehl, associate professor of music; cellist Frances Clarke Rehl, Conservatory lecturer; violinist Thomas LeVeck and pianist Edward Rath LeVeck and Rath are instructors.

Neenah Student at Milton in Comedy

Jeff Meyer, Neenah student at Milton College, will play Alfred in the Milton College Players production of "Rosenkrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead."

The comedy-drama deals with the look-alikes from Shakespeare's "Hamlet." It is scheduled for this weekend, through Saturday, in the Allen-Bradley auditorium on the Milton, Wis., campus.

Officials Report 2 New Notes In Kidnaping

MONTREAL (AP) — Two more notes purporting to come from Quebec's political kidnappers turned up Tuesday night. One said the body of British Trade Commissioner James R. Cross could be found near a bridge. The other contained "the old FLQ bull we've all heard about" and was probably authentic, a police spokesman said.

The fake note said the body of Cross, kidnaped Oct. 5 by the Quebec Liberation Front, or FLQ, was near the St. Rose bridge in Laval, north of Montreal. Police searched the area and found no trace of the 49-year-old Briton.

The other communique, a three-page letter, was accompanied by a passport page bearing the photograph of Paul Rose, one of five men for whom warrants have been issued in the investigation of the kidnaping of Cross and the kidnap-murder of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte. The last page of the letter also carried one of Rose's fingerprints, the police said.

The letter outlined the FLQ's revolutionary aims but made no mention of Cross, the police said.

Business Drops Off
Usually booming fall business in downtown Montreal's restaurants, art galleries, boutiques, theaters and department stores had dropped an average of 40 per cent since the beginning of the terrorist crisis, the Canadian Press reported in a survey today.

The area hardest hit appeared to be Old Montreal, where police barriers have been set up around City Hall, police headquarters, the Justice Department and other likely targets for the terrorists.

"Most of the streets are still blocked off, so it's hard for people to come down," said Francoise Beausoleil of the Collection Mode boutique.

"People coming down here see the fences and the troops, then turn back," said restaurateur Andre Pinet of A La Catalogne.

"Taxi drivers are nervous about bringing people down in this section because police search all the cars," reported Huguette Turcotte of Les Trois Guinguettes.

Hotels report some convention cancellations and slight drops in reservations, particularly from the United States.

200 miles east of Sinop, after killing a stewardess and wounding three crew members.

The father and son also have been asked for political asylum, while the Soviet government has demanded their return to face criminal action. The Turkish minister of justice is studying the case, and there have been indications that the government will let the Turkish courts decide whether the pair is entitled to refuge under a provision of the Turkish criminal code which says foreigners accused of crimes abroad that were politically motivated cannot be sent back for trial.

Use Colonel
The Soviet ambassador to Turkey hunted Tuesday that the Russians might use a Turkish colonel now being held in the Soviet Union in bargaining for the two Lithuanians. The colonel, Cevat Deneli, was aboard the small American military Beechcraft that the U.S. government says lost its way and landed in Soviet Armenia last week while taking two American generals on an inspection flight in Turkey.

"Right now in Turkey there are two murderers and in Russia a Turkish colonel," Ambassador Vasily Grubiyakov said in Ankara. "Both from the point of view of friendly relations between the two countries and according to international customs, they must be returned."

"The two matters should be considered separately," he said. "However, the two questions have similar aspects. The connection is that both Turkey and Russia have asked for the return of their citizens."

B52s Hit Enemy Supply Routes

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers flew more strikes today against North Vietnamese supply routes through southern Laos. The big bombers have flown more than 500 strikes in the region in the past 2½ weeks.

Many of the raids are concentrated in a 70-square-mile area just west of the demilitarized zone. The area is south of the Bang Hien River and north of Khe Sanh, and there have been reports of heavy North Vietnamese movement through it toward the northwestern part of South Vietnam.

A spokesman said Tuesday the commission received a petition on Oct. 23 from Lawrence W. Lichty on behalf of an organization called Better Television For Madison.

The spokesman said the petition alleged the station provided inadequate local news and public affairs programming although, as the only VHF station in that market, it could afford to do so.

The FCC has not yet received a rebuttal statement from the licensee, Television Wisconsin, Inc., which has operated the station since 1956.

Murder Charges Dropped by Army

FT. BRAGG, NC (AP) — The Army cleared Capt. Jeffrey R. MacDonald today of murder charges in the killings of his wife and two daughters last February.

Major Gen. Edward M. Flanagan, commander of the John F. Kennedy Center for Military Assistance, ruled there was insufficient evidence to justify the charges against MacDonald. MacDonald has returned to his duties as a specialist in preventive medicine for the Special Forces.

Wilson said the commander of Ft. Bragg, Lt. Gen. John J. Tolson, concurred in Flanagan's decision.

One of his civilian lawyers, Dennis Eisman of Philadelphia, said Rock's report to Flanagan said it cited several factors in MacDonald's favor.

Among them, he said, were the prosecution's inability to identify certain fingerprints at the scene of the crime, its inability to identify strands of hair in and near the hand of Mrs. MacDonald and its inability to identify a young girl whom Eisman said was seen by a military policeman near the MacDonald apartment shortly after the murders were discovered.

Eisman said the report also suggested further investigation of a young girl who reportedly said in the presence of police that she was under influence of drugs when the murders were committed and could not remember where she was or what she was doing.

The girl has been questioned several times by officers.

The Army had charged that MacDonald stabbed and beat to death his wife, Colette, 26, and his daughters Kimberly, 6, and Kristin Jean, 2, and then their raids along a 200-mile stretch of the Ho Chi Minh trail through the southern Laotian panhandle. The campaign is so concentrated that no B52 raids have been flown in South Vietnam since Oct. 10.

Despite the massive campaign, sources said, there has been a sizable building of North Vietnamese troops in the northern quarter of South Vietnam. Informants said one North Vietnamese division is pushing from the west and is poised just southwest of Khe Sanh, and that one regiment crossed the demilitarized zone and is within 12 miles of the provincial capital of Quang Tri.

Tons of supplies were reported moving along a four-lane highway running southwestward from the DMZ into Laos and then circling around eastward to the north of Khe Sanh.

Kidney Transplant Progress Noted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Kidney transplant techniques have advanced to the point where a surgeon's greatest worry is that a patient may neglect to take his medication after he goes home, a noted transplant surgeon says.

Dr. Samuel Kountz, speaking Tuesday to about 600 attending the American Association of Blood Banks convention, also reported that costs for the life-saving kidney transplant operation have been reduced sharply.

"A kidney transplant now costs less than to have one's stomach fixed," said Kountz, who has performed 262 such transplants since 1964 with a 90 per cent survival rate.

Kountz, on the staff of the University of California's San Francisco Medical Center, said, "At UC the first 50 cost an average of $35,000 each. The next 100 averaged $17,000 and now they are less than $5,000."

Referring to postoperative deaths, he said, "The greatest loss we've had in grafts is failure of patients to take their required medication after they leave the hospital."

Kountz said there was a 95 to 100 per cent chance of success in grafting a kidney if the donor is sibling or parent, and good results from other donors if there is close matching.

Unlike heart surgery, he said, the kidney can be preserved, outside the donor's body for two or three days, making possible better matching.

In many cases where rejection problems arose, Kountz added, investigation determined the kidney transplant patient was not taking medication prescribed to combat rejection.

Appearing with Kountz was heart transplant surgeon Dr. Norman Shumway of Stanford University Medical Center.

No Moratorium
Shumway said that despite a lessening of publicity about his specialty, there is "no moratorium on heart transplants."

He has performed 27 heart transplants, the most recent on Oct. 15.

Shumway said he performed operations on nine of the 23 heart transplant patients in the world who are surviving today.

One is Carl A. Shaeffer, 55, of Palo Alto, who observed the second anniversary of his operation last Monday.

Both surgeons, speaking at a luncheon, said the future outlook is for transplantation of virtually any human organ except the brain.

Ears Stick Out...Beautifully

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Elena Arroyo is happy—very happy—because at last she has ears that stick out like any other 7-year-old girl's.

Elena was born without ears, in a remote Otomi Indian village 200 miles north-east of Mexico City.

There weren't even any openings where her ears should have been.

"Several tribesmen told her parents that they should kill her," says Miss Vola Griste, a missionary of the Wycliffe Bible Translators who has spent 27 years among the Otomis.

"But her mother had been converted to Christianity, and she told them she couldn't do that, that the Lord gave her to them for some purpose. Right then and there, I pledged to help that little girl."

When Elena was old enough last year, Miss Griste took her to Oklahoma City, where an ear surgeon had offered her services.

"When the doctor finished he told me he didn't think he had done her any good," recalls Miss Griste. He was wrong. After a postoperative period, Elena could hear. Miss Griste considers it a miracle.

Elena began to learn to talk, but Otomi girls wear their hair long, pulled back off the ears, and if Elena couldn't do that she wouldn't have much of a future.

Executives of Realistic Industries, an Oakland firm that makes cosmetic restorations, heard about Elena and offered to help.

Money for the trip was raised through the efforts of James Santos, a United Auto Workers member employed at Realistic. A few weeks ago Elena was brought here to be measured for artificial ears.

This week she came back, a sober little girl with her black hair combed straight down, hiding ears that weren't there. She walked out radiant, her hair pushed back behind her new ears in proper Otomi style.

"She was all giggly," said Miss Griste. "Kept looking at the mirrors around her and taking her hair, a strand at a time, placing it behind her ears."

The plastic ears are attached with a special adhesive. Elena will stay with Miss Griste until she can be taken back to her home in Mexico.

Mathematical Gourmets

Twenty-four Appleton couples have launched both a problem in mathematics and a delightful program of eating while solving it. The solution may prove astronomical in scope, but the Italian dinners underway at six Appleton homes definitely are gastronomic successes.

It all started in the Newcomers Club when 24 couples decided to become acquainted by the culinary route with special dinners once a month in each other's homes. From Newcomers' interest chairman Mrs. Theodore Besta, the idea grew with the help of the new Gourmet Club chairman, Mrs. David Lee. This is where Mrs. Lee's husband, David, came into the picture. An industrial market planner and a man with an engineering background, he took over the problem or the purpose of the Gourmet dinner series ... the meeting of the couples socially at dinner.

Ah, there's the problem. How can 24 couples meet every other couple by way of monthly dinners without any of the couples dining with another pair twice? Perhaps another way of saying it is that each couple has to meet 23 other couples at dinner, but only once if at all possible.

The first decision was to divide the club into six groups of four couples each to keep the dinners in small party groups for friendlier dining. It was an excellent idea, but what seemed simple at first turned out to be a complicated problem.

After 100 or more clubmember hours later, the problem of how to meet each other without duplication still is unsolved. Mr. Lee points out that with 24 couples meeting in groups of four there are possible 10,626 combinations. In fact, the problem has been turned over to a computer firm with the hopes it soon will be solved.

In any case, since sociability is the goal of the new Gourmet Club. (The "Name of the Game") it's always possible to dine in foursomes as far as the program holds. Then a few Open House parties can solve the whole thing if the computer doesn't come through with a formula.

In the meantime, the dining plan goes forward with a different nationality food theme each month. The four host couples for the first dinners will follow the Italian theme. Then will come Greek, German, Mexican, Chinese, French, Japanese and Danish dinners with the host couples preparing the main course and the other three guest couples bringing an appropriate dish to fit the nationality menu.

This first round of Italian dinners comes from the family cookbooks of Mr. and Mrs. Mauro C. Mastrogiorganni, who entertained Saturday night in their home at 331 Michigan St. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Yoder, 1624 N. Edgewood St., also entertained Saturday evening. The same Italian dinner theme was followed Friday evening at the home of hosts Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carnes, 2111 E. Esther St. It will be served Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shiner, 59 S. Meadows Dr., and Sunday at the Fred Miller home. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Immonen are the sixth host couple for this first round of dinners.

Next month the scene will change with different dining room, different hosts and different guests. But the important food news now is the Italian menu with Mrs. Mastrogiorganni willing to share the recipes.

Her menu included appetizers of imported provolone cheese, prosciutto and salami with crackers. The large tray of antipasto held shining black olives, fennel, marinated mushrooms, marinated artichoke hearts, paper-thin slices of Genoa salami, anchovies, provolone, the sweet, sugar-cured ham called prosciutto, small Tuscany peppers and red peppers in olive oil.

Then came the pasta Manicotti, stuffed with cheese and served with meatballs. The Chicken Cacciatore literally coated with tomato sauce instead of being soupy was served with garlic bread and a tossed salad. Fruit, nuts and figs, piled beautifully in a handsome tray made a pleasant dessert. The coffee, in the Italian manner with Italian coffee, was made in an espresso pot (a drip pot will do, if necessary), then was served in demi-tasse cups with a dash of anisette. Sugar or a small piece of lemon peel may replace the anisette.

Mr. and Mrs. Mastrogiorganni had a few words of caution and explanation. The chicken pieces must be small, the garlic and onions must be chopped to minced perfection when the recipe so states and, for the Italian cook, the tomato sauce must be made from scratch to taste as it should. Although canned tomato sauces may be substituted, if a sauce is needed in a hurry, say both Mastrogiorgannis. It will do in a pinch, but never equal the homemade Italian sauce.

The basic sauce used with both the meatballs and the Chicken Cacciatore is the following recipe, which makes 3 quarts so that some of it can be frozen in serving portions.

The meatball recipe also is large enough (30 meatballs) so they may be frozen for later use. Also, the cheese filling for the Manicotti may be used for lasagne, ravioli and large pasta shells.

Marketing Memo

Turkey Good Buy, Plentiful, Plump

Expect to see turkeys in good supply this holiday season, says Rosemary Stare, consumer marketing specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

The number of turkeys coming to market in November is larger than in 1969. Cold storage turkey holdings are well above last year, so prices should be lower, Mrs. Stare says.

Although rice production is down slightly from a year ago, supplies are more than ample.

Potatoes Plentiful

Seasonal fall produce is reasonable and plentiful. Potato production is above last year so there'll be good buys in both Wisconsin and Idaho potatoes.

Sweet potatoes are reasonable and in most retail stores prices are lower than a year ago.

Due to recent rains, celery and head lettuce will be priced somewhat higher than last week. Cauliflower and broccoli hold steady. Green peppers, variety lettuce and green beans are still a good buy.

Dry onions are more plentiful than a year ago. Acorn, buttercup, and butternut squash continue to be a value for consumers.

Cranberry Season

Cranberry season is here and with quality high and the price reasonable. The crop is expected to be larger than usual. Canned cranberry sauce should be featured this month.

Fresh apples, canned applesauce and juice will continue to be reasonable in coming weeks.

Bartlett pears are diminishing in supply, but D'Anjou pears are replacing them. Supplies of D'Anjou pears are about the same as last year, so expect reasonable prices.

Citrus Fruit

Citrus is coming in rapidly. Florida and Texas are shipping grapefruit and juice oranges at reasonable prices. Tangelo and tangerine supplies from Florida are increasing.

Plentiful supplies of broiler-fryers are priced attractively for the consumer. Eggs continue reasonable.

Pork continues in good supply. Look for good values on loins, ham and bacon. Best values in beef will be highlighted as local features in indicated stores.

You don't have to be concerned about the shape of your shape to love Dean's Cottage Cheese. For Country Charm flavor, it tops others by a country mile. But isn't it nice that something so good is so good for you?

Two Samples of what sort of recipes are scheduled for this year's Pillsbury Bake-Off have been created by the firm's home economists. Left, in the division that features the use of refrigerated biscuits, is a fruit cobbler combining peaches and raspberries. Below, in the second category, a few deft culinary touches transform ordinary crescent rolls into delicious, sticky dinner rolls.

Cobbler, Rolls Bake-Off Clues

Pillsbury home economists have sent two delicious clues to prove a point — that it takes neither the world's best cook nor the fanciest recipes to win honors in the national bake-off.

Everyday kitchen happenings—such as favorite recipes, streamlined heirloom recipes from grandmother's day or a flavorful touch that creates a new main dish or dessert can make an ordinary homemaker a finalist in this year's "baking Olympics" scheduled for Feb. 6-9 in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Deadline date for entries is coming up, Oct. 31. The recipes this year are in two contest classifications — those using refrigerated biscuits for a creative dish or food and those featuring crescent dinner rolls.

Finalists in each division will have the chance to win a $10,000 first prize or a $2,000 second prize. Both first prize winners will vie for the big $15,000 Best-of-the-Bake-Off Award. This will make the grand prize winner the owner of $25,000.

The two clues are beautiful recipes. One is a familiar, old-fashioned family dessert, the cobbler. This one combines raspberries and peaches with a touch of ginger in the fruit filing. The topping is made from refrigerated biscuits, quartered for a new shape and coated with a sugar-lemon peel mixture. The other is for Coconut Rolls (good and gooey) with a filling of cream cheese and frosting mix to make a delicious coffeetime treat.

FRUIT COBBLER

- 10 ounces frozen raspberries
- 1 can (1 pound) peach slices
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1 pound can peach slices or 1 pkg. frozen peach slices
- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen red raspberries
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- Biscuit Topping
- Ice cream or cream

Drain fruits; reserve syrups. In medium saucepan, combine sugar, cornstarch and ginger; blend. Add butter, reserved syrups and lemon juice. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally until thickened.

Stir in fruit; pour into an ungreased 8-inch square or round baking dish. Arrange biscuit topping over warm fruit mixture. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes until biscuits are golden brown. Serve warm, with cream or ice cream.

BISCUIT TOPPING

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
- 1 can refrigerated buttermilk, fluffy biscuits

Combine sugar and lemon peel in small bowl. Separate biscuit dough into 10 biscuits; cut each biscuit into quarters. Dip pieces into melted butter; coat all sides with sugar mixture, place biscuit quarters (points up) in rows over warm fruit mixture.

To reheat cobbler, cover with foil and heat in 375-degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes until warm.

COCONUT ROLLS

- 1 pkg. Coconut Pecan frosting mix
- 3 ounces cream cheese, softened
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine, softened

2 cans (8 oz. each) refrigerated quick crescent dinner rolls

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup dairy sour cream
- Reserved frosting mix
- 1/4 cup pineapple, apricot or peach preserves
- 1/4 cup milk
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts
- 1/2 teaspoon lemon extract

Grease bottom and sides of 13x9-inch baking pan. In small bowl, measure 1 1/2 cups dry frosting mix (reserve remaining for topping). Blend with cream cheese and butter; set aside.

Separate crescent dough from each can into four rectangles. Firmly press perforations to seal (this prevents separation during baking). Spread about 1/4 cup cheese mixture over each rectangle. Starting at longer side, roll up each rectangle. Cut each roll into three pieces forming 24 rolls. Place seam side down in prepared pan forming three rows of eight rolls each.

Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes until golden brown.

To make Topping (second part of recipe): In small saucepan, combine all ingredients except nuts and lemon extract. Bring to a boil; remove from heat and stir in nuts and lemon extract. Spoon over warm rolls. Serve rolls warm or cool.

Rolls may be baked in an 8 or 9-inch square pan using half of recipe; use 1 cup dry frosting mix. Bake as directed.

Scouts Plan Folk Fair Trip

The Milwaukee Folk Fair will be the destination Nov. 21 when buses open their doors to all Girl Scouts of the Appleton Association interested in attending the annual event.

Departure time will be 8 a.m. from Edison School, where buses will return between 7:30 and 8 p.m.

Price of the trip for adults and children is $3.25, which includes bus transportation and advanced ticket sale. Lunch and dinner may be provided by the scouts themselves or purchased at the fair.

Reservations are to be made by Nov. 4 with Mrs. David Wolfson.

Love is ...

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

World Champions

TEAM CAPTAIN

Bid on or double the opponents? It's always a perplexing problem. The winning answer depends upon the uncertain factor. "How many points are available by doubling?"

One can never be certain about predicting results of a bridge hand during the bidding. Only good judgment, gained from experience, will guide the way to the winning action. Today's hand is an example of both good and bad judgment.

Opening lead: King of clubs.

South's opening bid and North's two-level response were normal. Many players would bid two diamonds with the East hand. South's pass to two diamonds was correct and, when North doubled, he was delighted to pass again.

North, Sam Epstein of Atlantic City, showed excellent judgment in doubling rather than bidding. His side had more than half the high cards; no known fit was apparent (singleton spade); game for North-South seemed unlikely; fulfillment of the contract would not yield a game and, finally, the opponent's were vulnerable.

South's opening lead was

Mothers Ready Families For Fun on the Ski Slopes

Chilling winds, warm clothes and little red noses signal skiing mothers that it's time to get their families in shape for a safe and enjoyable winter on the slopes.

Put the whole family in the skiing mood with the types of group exercise even the smallest child will enjoy. Running works wonders as a season-starter — especially running with ski poles. According to the Garcia Ski and Tennis Corp., this exercise builds your family's wind and leg muscles and aids that right pole-left ski, left pole-right ski coordination essential to good turning. While you're running, have one person set the pace by starting with a jog. Work into a run and add an occasional sprint or two.

If that one person set the pace by starting with a jog. Work into a run and add an occasional sprint or two.

If that one tires them out, try getting the kids ready for the slopes while they get ready for bed. Have them stand with the balls of their feet on the edge of a thick book placed on the floor. By lowering the heels and lifting, they'll develop the balance and leg muscles every junior Olympian needs to conquer the big ones.

Many families enjoy during-the-week armchair skiing as much as the real thing. Have your crew sit in chairs with their ski boots on. One at a time, lift each leg so it becomes parallel with the floor. Hold it there a few seconds, lower, and try it with the other leg. Repeat this several times. A few minutes a day of this type of armchair skiing will develop strong muscles to withstand a full day on the slopes.

Most parents know how important properly functioning equipment and well-adjusted bindings are to the safety and enjoyment of their family's skiing children grow up and some parents grow out during the summer months. Weight changes such as these necessitate minor start-of-the-season binding adjustments by your ski shop. Some bindings are designed to absorb the shocks and jolts of a child's normal skiing, before releasing for a fall.

In addition to a binding-check, look over the bottoms of your family's skis. A smooth running surface aids control — a safety element important to all skiers. Last spring's gouges should be cleaned and warmed before poking holes in their sides. Fill the area with the drippings from a special candle and, while still warm, smooth over with a knife blade. Once the patch cools, even off with a piece of smooth sandpaper.

Shopping for children's ski equipment is an art of its own. Each piece of equipment must be keyed to the child's age, weight and ability. Some special ski packages feature skis, boots, bindings and poles especially for the young.

Before the family troops to the slopes, be sure all safety straps are strong enough to prevent runaway skis. If cut or broken, they can be replaced easily and inexpensively.

Be sure all goggles are in top shape, too. Clear vision is a must for you family's safe skiing, and some goggles offer wide-vision lenses in highly ventilated, fog-preventing frames.

Now that equipment and bodies are ready for skiing, there's only one thing needed to put the brood in the mood for a winter in the hills. That will come one morning soon, when they wake up, look out the window, and see what everyone has been waiting for — snow!

The Ailing House Putting Needs One More Step

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: Every year, the putty just crumbles away from the glass. I am tired of having to keep replacing it. My husband says I should make my own. What do you think? — N. Tonawanda, N.Y.

A: Ma'am, the putty you buy is OK. You have been leaving out a very important step, that's all; pretty unkind of the dealer not to tell you, too. After you scrape off the old crumbled stuff, brush a coat of linseed oil or thinned-down (50 per cent) house paint where the new putty will go. This prevents the dry, thirsty wood from blotting the oil out of the new putty, which is what causes it to dry out.

Q: I have a cellar wall with some bad holes. Would like to fix it; how do I go about it? do I put concrete in the holes, then put something over the concrete? — West Seneca, N.Y.

A: For easiest handling, get bags of ready-mixed concrete; some come as light as 11 pounds. Also 25, 45 and 80. All you add is water. Wet the old concrete, after scraping out any loose stuff. Then pack in the ready-mix, smoothing it level onto the surface. Keep the new concrete damp for a week to promote slow, proper curing. Not necessary to put anything over this, unless the rest of the basement has waterproofing and you want to waterproof the repairs too. Masonry paint can be used when the concrete is thoroughly dry. You'll save plenty of bucks.

Q: A new vinyl suitcase has a very musty odor, after being stored in the basement. What will get rid of this?—Milwaukee.

A: Leave it wide open where the sun and fresh air can go to work on it. Then store it somewhere besides the basement.

TOMATO SAUCE
1/4 cup olive oil
2 cloves garlic, chopped fine
1 small onion, chopped fine
4 cans (1 lb., 2 oz. cans) Italian pear-shaped tomatoes
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon parsley
1/4 teaspoon bay leaf, or 1 leaf
1/2 teaspoon basil
1/2 teaspoon oregano
Sprig mint

Warm olive oil, then brown chopped garlic and onion in it. Put canned Italian tomatoes through food mill to remove skin and seeds; add to garlic-onion mixture; let come to boil, then cook, uncovered, over low heat for about one hour to thicken.

Add remaining ingredients to mixture; cook another hour to blend seasonings in sauce. If meatballs are being used, cook meatballs with mixture the last hour. Recipe makes about 3 quarts of sauce.

MEATBALLS
1 1/2 cups Italian bread crumbs
3 eggs
2 tablespoons parsley
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 pounds ground chuck
1/2 pound ground

Tomato Sauce
In a bowl put bread crumbs, eggs, parsley, salt and milk; mix together until crumbs are softened. Add meats; blend thoroughly. Roll into small meatballs; heat sauce until bubbling, then drop meatballs into hot sauce. Cook over slow heat for about one hour. Recipe makes about 30 meatballs.

MANICOTTI WITH CHEESE FILLING
1 pound manicotti
1 pound fresh ricotta cheese
1 egg
1 tablespoon parsley
2 tablespoons romano cheese, freshly grated
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup milk
Hot Tomato Sauce
Romano cheese topping

Boil pasta about 5 minutes, just to soften. Drain and spread out to cool.

Meanwhile, mix remaining ingredients, except tomato sauce, and topping, together with fork for cheese filling. Heat sauce. Fill pasta with cheese filling. Pour a little hot sauce in bottom of baking dish. Arrange filled manicotti in a single layer on sauce; top with more sauce. Cover with foil and bake at 350 degrees for about 40 minutes. Uncover and sprinkle with Romano cheese. Bake for an-discard. Tear escarole and rother 5 minutes. Serve with extra cheese and sauce.

3-pound chicken
1/2 cup olive oil
1 clove garlic, chopped fine
1 onion, chopped fine
1 1/4 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon oregano
1/2 cup wine vinegar
1 cup red Chianti wine
1/2 cup tomato sauce

Cut chicken into small pieces. Cook with oil, garlic and onion in skillet over high flame for 5 minutes, turning constantly.

Mix together salt, pepper, oregano, vinegar and wine; pour over chicken. Simmer uncovered until liquid is reduced by half; keep turning chicken pieces while cooking. Spoon sauce over chicken and continue cooking until done, turning the chicken as it cooks. Each piece should be coated; the dish should not be soupy. Recipe serves from six to eight.

After the Thrill Goes, Pain Is Impossible

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just finished reading the letter about the 13-year-old sex-bomb who teased the middle-aged man next door.

At 13, I, too, had some wild fantasies about married men. When I was 16 I got my wish. He was my high school English teacher. I teased him until finally he was mine. At first it was exciting. We met in the school storeroom and out-of-the-way motels. For two years, until I graduated, I believed he would marry me when he could honorably leave his wife. I was wrong.

I am 18 and there's a great big hole in my heart. Those wonderful high school years when I should have been dating boys my own age I was sneaking around with this married man. Now I have no confidence or self-respect. I'm ashamed of the way I allowed myself to be used.

If I could be Ann Landers for just a few minutes, I'd tell every girl in the world to stay away from married men. It's fun at first, but after the thrill is gone the pain is unbearable. — St. Louis Blues

Dear St. L.: I couldn't have done better myself. — In fact, not as well. And now, I urge you to put the past behind you and concentrate on building a good life for yourself.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: That letter from "Irate Sister" has given me courage to write this letter. My husband's wife left him when their son was 17 months old. For years Vic had no idea where she was. When the boy was eight, Vic and I were married.

Guess who wrote to Vic 10 years later to say she's like to come to town for their son's high school graduation? The Missing Link in person. She asked Vic to make hotel reservations for her. I insisted that she be a guest in our home.

Landers

When she arrived I knew I had done the right thing. She did herself in promptly by making such dumb remarks as "I really never stopped loving my husband..." and "If I had not left him, those adorable little girls would have been mine." Vic and I kept our sense of humor and no harm was done.

The next year, "Missing Link" returned for a few days and again we treated her as a guest. She was still making dumb remarks but we both managed to keep smiling. That was the last we heard of her. She saw our marriage was solid and there was no point in hanging around. If you think there's a lesson to be learned here, print my letter, Ann. Otherwise toss it in the basket — Traveled the Road

Dear Traveled: Your letter is too good for the basket. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are a group of working girls who take turns fixing gourmet dinners in our apartments. If a girl is unable to attend she is expected to call the hostess at least 24 hours in advance.

Miss B was not able to attend the dinner at my home last night. She telephoned three days ago and said, "I'm sorry but I can't be there." I asked, "Is anything wrong?" She replied in a cherry voice, "No, everything is just fine." I waited for her to tell me why she was unable to come but she didn't give a reason. I thought this was very rude and feel that Miss B should be dropped from the group. What do you think? — Florence, Ala.

Dear Flo: I think the call from Miss B saying she could not attend was sufficient. Why she could not attend was none of your business. Often when a person "regrets" they state a reason, but if no reason is given there should be no probing. That is rude.

Parents and Children

By Arnold Arnold

Make Your Child's Halloween Costume at Home This Year

It's not very difficult to make or to help make your child's Halloween costume. Existing or old clothing, like Dr. Denton's sleepers, with a rope tail attached, and a new mop died yellow in vegetable colors, can turn your child into a splendid lion. Kitchen foil, cloth scraps, masks of painted paper bags with eyes and mouth cut out, make-up or burnt cork... these materials can let your child be a Halloween witch or princess, a knight in armor or an astronaut.

All kids love to dress up, to pretend to scare or surprise each other and adults. Old and discarded clothing and hats, remnants and common household materials can be turned into funny costumes in a single evening. Don't buy your child's Halloween disguise ready-made. This year, with cash in short supply, it is especially important to demonstrate to him that there is more fun to be had by improvising, by making things yourself from scratch, and by using your... and his... imagination.

A child who is able to watch his parents make something out of practically nothing has incentives to invent on his own when he is old enough to build, to glue and to sew successfully. He will learn how to use, rather than consume what is available to him. Some schools give prizes to children for the "best" Halloween costume. Such contests should be limited to children who have made their own, or whose parents have made them. Otherwise these competitions are contests that determine who is able to spend the most money. Even your copying from patterns is less educational for your child than a costume that you, or you and he, whip up entirely out of your imagination.

Our children have too few opportunities to observe how things are made, how to use tools and materials, how to convert raw materials, and how to put skills to inventive use. They are exposed to too few models that they can imitate making. They are infrequently allowed to do things, and to make-do for themselves.

Sit down today with your child and talk about what he would like to be for this year's Halloween. Let him give you several choices and then, together with him, figure out what you can put together with available materials. Until your child is eight or nine years old you'll have to do most of the work yourself. But even before these ages you can encourage him to participate and to do as much as he can. Keep your child's costume safe. Avoid flammable materials. Don't permit him to carry candles in his pumpkin.

If your child is old enough and responsible enough to go out and trick or treat after dark, make sure that he carries a flashlight that you attach fluorescent tape to the front and rear of his costume.

What toys does your child need at different ages? Send for Arnold Arnold's booklet, "Recommended Toys and Activities." This invaluable check-list, taken from Mr. Arnold's book, Your Child's Play is age-grouped from babyhood to age 13. Send 20 cents and a large (no. 13), stamped, self-addressed envelope to Arnold Arnold, Dept. A, care of this newspaper.

One-Day Seminar For Cheerleaders

Cheerleading squads from junior and senior high schools from Northeastern Wisconsin will take part in a one-day workshop, Nov. 14 at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay (UWGB) Deckner building.

The cheerleaders' clinic, sponsored by the UWGB athletic office, will include instructions by Miss Cindy Williams of the university staff. Miss Williams, a high school relations specialist in the office of student services, is a member of the National Cheerleading Association (NCA). She will be assisted Chalice Circle of The King's Daughters at a recent meeting, as a part of their program in aiding the North American Indians.

Mrs. Chester Meyers, Indian chairman, announced that another shipment of clothing for the St. Croix band was ready to be sent and that toys were being collected for a special Christmas shipment.

Other donations made by the Circle were $200 to the Meals-on-Wheels project now being readied by The King's Daughters Council, and $100 to the Indian toy and gift collection.

A workshop was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Vincent K. Derscheid, 1112 W. Parkway Blvd. Stuffed toys and animals made at the workshop, a special Christmas project, will be given to the Indian collection and to local agencies.

It was announced that the kiln given to Outagamie County Hospital by the circle last spring is now completely installed and in use by the occupational therapy department.

Mrs. W. A. Spanagel, circle president, distributed year-

social, Mrs. Erwin Seybold; membership, Mrs. Robert Meyer; nominating, Mrs. Nathan Burstein; publicity and archives, Mrs. Derscheid; council representatives: Mrs. Verner Haag, president; Mrs. H. H. Hæmel, Mrs. James Veum, Mrs. Walter Jaeger.

Mrs. Ronald Veara and Mrs. Lyle Bauknecht are co-chairmen of the steering committee. Chalice Circle's representative on the board of Silvercrest will be Mrs. Veum, and Mrs. Burstein will

RED OWL'S BETTER TRIM GIVES YOU MORE VALUE FOR YOUR DOLLAR!

Appetite appeal, good nutrition and of course, economy are very important factors when it comes to choosing the meats for your table. And that's why so many homemakers rely on Red Owl — they know Red Owl's meats are a better buy! You see, we start with fine U.S.D.A. Choice beef and lamb, Government inspected pork and poultry — then our meat cutting experts "trim" each and every cut the way they know you want it! For instance, steaks have just enough fat cover left on to insure a flavorful, tender cut. But don't take our word for it... stop in today. Browse through the sparkling, clean meat cases... it's here you'll see Red Owl's "Better-Trim" to full advantage. YOU BE THE JUDGE!

Milwaukee Sports Past Rockets

Dandridge's 39 Leads Bucks

By BOB GREENE
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Oscar Robertson got the credit, but Bob Dandridge got the points—39 of them—Tuesday night as the Milwaukee Bucks topped the San Diego Rockets, 126-113, in a National Basketball Association game.

Dandridge, hitting from all over the court, broke his own personal high of 31 points set in his rookie season last year against Cincinnati and duplicated against Seattle. But the slim 6-foot-6 forward was quick to credit Robertson, the veteran guard, for his outstanding night.

"Oscar told me not to slack off, to keep shooting," Dandridge said. "My shots have been off in the last few games, so it's about time they started dropping."

Had Shots
Robertson admitted that he had given Dandridge, called "The Greyhound" by Milwaukee fans, a tip.

"He has had shots, but he would try to fake two or three times, looking for even a better shot," Oscar said. "I told him, 'when you get the shot, take it. Stop trying to look for another one.'"

The Norfolk State graduate's hot hand came in mighty handy as 7-foot-2 Lew Alcindor. Saddled with fouls, Alcindor managed "only" 20 points, way below his NBA-leading average of 36.5 points per game.

Roar Back
Despite winning their third game in a row, Bucks Coach Larry Costello was displeased.

"I'm happy to win it, but we blew a big lead," he said. "We can't seem to put teams down. We got a big lead by pressing and then we lost it."

After San Diego scored the first five points of the game, the Bucks roared back with a 10-point spurge and built their advantage to 46-24 early in the second quarter.

Then, with Alcindor sitting on the bench in foul trouble, the Rockets' Elvin Hayes went to work on reserve center Dick Cunningham. Hayes scored 12 of his 14 points in the second period against the 6-10 Cunningham, most of them coming from long range.

In the third period, San Diego continued battling back and pulled to within seven points, 82-76, when officials whistled a foul against Alcindor. The crowd of 9,565 disagreed with the call, but Costello refused to knock the referees.

"I can't talk because I can't afford a fine," Costello said. "But there's no question. I can't wait to see that on video tape."

The controversial call appeared to spark the Bucks as shoulder in an attempt to rebound the shot taken by San Diego's John Block (34). The Bucks won, 126-113, to sweep their 3-game homestand. (AP Wirephoto)

Milwaukee scored 11 straight points to end the third period with a 93-78 lead.

It was 105-86 before the Rockets could get untracked again. 126 points.

Chilton Rated Fourth

Cadets Now No. 1 In Prep Grid Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The jinx struck Sheboygan North last week and now Green Bay Premontre's football team has become "king of the hill."

Premontre took over first place in The Associated Press' Wisconsin high school "Big Ten" this week on the balloting of the state's sports writers and broadcasters. The Cadets compiled 159 points to 151 for second-place Schofield.

The Green Bay school is the fourth this season to sit atop the big school poll. Earlier leaders, all of whom lost afterwards, were Antigo, now No. 8; Oshkosh, now completely out of the poll, and Sheboygan North, which dropped to seventh this week.

Following Premontre and Schofield are La Crosse Aquinas and Chilton in third and fourth, respectively. All moved up one notch from last week.

Janesville Craig, the leader in the Big Eight Conference, advanced from seventh to fifth while Baraboo remained in sixth place.

Sheboygan North is seventh,

Antigo eighth, Sparta ninth and newcomer Waukesha replaced Wisconsin Rapids in 10th place.

In the Little Ten, top-ranked Gale-Etrick and No. 2 Auburn-dale held their spots for yet another week. However, Kohler leaped three places to third and Port Edwards dropped a notch from third to fourth.

Darlington held on to fifth while Pardeeville slipped two spots to sixth. Kewaunee is seventh, Amery eighth, Waunakee ninth and Spooner 10th.

Next week will be the last for the "Little Ten" this season. The "Big Ten" poll will conclude the following week.

One exciting twist to the polls is the ranking of Premontre and Aquinas, Members of the Wisconsin Independent Schools Athletic Association the No. 1 and No. 3 teams in the AP "Big Ten" could conceivably clash in the 2nd annual WISAA state championship game on Saturday, Nov. 14.

Other schools being considered for the four playoff berths include Milwaukee University School, Beloit Catholic, Milwaukee Marquette and Milwaukee Don Bosco.

while both Little Chute and the Wolves share second place with 3-2 marks.

Before the Bears and Mustangs get together Saturday, two Friday night finales are on the docket. Manawa entertains Wittenberg, and Wautoma heads for Marion. Shiocton finished its season last Friday.

Little Chute warmed up for its battle with Bonduel with a 19-0 triumph over Sevastopol in non-conference competition. The win boosted the Mustangs' overall record to 5-3 for the campaign.

Steve Mollen fired two touchdown passes to Steve Bevers and ran for another to pace Little Chute fortunes. For the day, Mollen hit on eight of 16 passes good for 116 yards.

Reinke Top Rusher
Hard-running Jim Reinke carried for 151 yards in 29 carries to lead Bonduel's last

Shoot-Out Set Saturday in Philadelphia

Marshal Dillon Duels Sundance Kid

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Marshall Dillon vs. the Sundance Kid...Is it Philadelphia or the wild, wild West? Kennedy Stadium or the O.K. Corral? The 20th century or the 19th?

It is Philadelphia, Kennedy Stadium, and the 20th century, but the shoot-out is on for Saturday.

To snap a 6-game losing string, Navy sends Ade Dillon, the "Marshal" from Appleton, Wis., against an Irish defense that in on everyone's "Eleven Most Wanted" list. Notre Dame counters with Joe Theismann, described in press releases as an Irish version of the Sundance Kid. Theismann is a top gun who has already carved five notches in his handle this fall.

Dillon, a sophomore who made his only start in the Washington game, played the entire second half vs. Syracuse last weekend and put the Midshipmen's only points on the board with a 6-yard toss to senior Scott Monson. For the afternoon, Dillon was 8-of-22 for 79 yards. He was intercepted twice.

"Ade moved us for a touch-

down and was able, on several occasions, to scramble away from pressure," Coach Rick Forzano says. "Dillon presents Notre Dame with some defensive problems form the standpoint of containment. He is probably our most mobile quarterback."

Mobility will be a necessity against an Irish defense that has surrendered only four touchdowns in five outings. Notre Dame has shut off its five opponents with an average of 211.6 yards per game. At South Bend this fall, ND bottled up the Navy attack, limiting the Midshipmen to 93 total yards — 19 rushing and 74 passing. The final was Notre Dame 47, Navy 0.

Forzano describes the Irish offense as "awesome." The Theismann-guided attack struck for 2,667 yards in wins over Northwestern (35-14), Purdue (48-0), Michigan State (28-0), Army (51-10), and Missouri (24-7) — an average of 533.4 yards per game.

"Notre Dame has all of the things a football team needs," Navy coach Forzano says, "including more plays than the pros, I am convinced that Ara (Parseghian) must put in some formations at the half. The different looks that they give you are just amazing."

'Minimize Brodie and You Minimize 49ers,' Says Hardy

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — Ready to play that fascinating television game, "What's the Word?"

This week's word is: "Noah Ebriod."

The first one to correctly unscramble these letters will receive, by return mail, two Willie buttons and a copy of the Confederate constitution.

Give UP?
They spell John Brodie, of course, who needs little further identification.

Certainly not in the case of the Packers, presently priming for Sunday afternoon's confrontation with the 49ers' golden arm in San Francisco.

The 35-year-old bombardier is the National Football League's leading passer and there is more than coincidental correlation between his current statistical stature and the Gold Diggers' perch atop the National Conference's Western Division standings.

Hurts 9 TD Passes
Brodie, who has been intercepted only three times in six games, thus far has completed 99 to 170 passes for 1,328 yards, a glossy 58.2 percentage, and nine touchdowns.

"He's having a remarkable year and he's inspiring his teammates," says Packer scout Wally Cruise, who Tuesday reported to the Pack on the 49ers' 19-14 victory over the Denver Broncos in San Francisco.

"And, of course, as it has been for a long time, it's still a matter of 'As Brodie goes, so go the 49ers,'" Super Scout pointed out.

Kevin Hardy, a former Brodie teammate who expects to be pursuing the 49ers field general Sunday as a successor to the injured Rich Moore, emphatically underscored Cruise's appraisal.

Green Bay scene, Hardy predicted San Francisco would win its division, despite the presence of the Los Angeles Rams, and he says he has seen nothing to make him change that forecast.

'Should be Undeclared'
"They're a real fine team," he said. "I've seen just about all of them and, player for player, they have as much or more than anybody else. They should be undeclared, too."

Hardy had reference to the Packers' experiences with the Atlanta Falcons and New Orleans Saints. The 49ers, a half game in front of the Rams at the moment with a 3-1 record, incurred their lone loss when kicker Bruce Cossett missed a 19-yard field goal attempt with six seconds to play at Atlanta.

With 42 seconds Left
The tie came the week before last when Bill Kilmer and Dave Parks, a pair of ex-49ers, collaborated on a 13-yard scoring pass with 42 seconds remaining to create a 20-20 standoff.

Hardy, who has had an almost unbroken string of injury problems since he came into the NFL, says he escaped from last Sunday's 30-17 victory over the Eagles unscathed and will be fully fit to face his former colleagues.

"I didn't get hurt at all," he said sardonically appending, "Just my ego... I didn't have a very good game."

"I'll be ready, regardless. They don't have to tell me anything about the 49ers."

It will be a special homecoming for Kevin, first player chosen in the 1968 pro draft, who was a high school star in neighboring Oakland before joining the 49ers by decree of NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Plays Out Option
Hardy, it may be remembered, was awarded to San Francisco in payment for wide receiver Dave Parks, who had played out his option with the 49ers and signed with the New Orleans Saints.

Despite the Packers' recent injury problems, he remains optimistic about their title chances in the Central Division.

"They've got to knock us out," he insists. "We're not going to knock ourselves out. Right now, everybody has a chance, except possibly the Bears."

Surgery on Rich Moore Successful

Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — Surgery for repair of the Achilles tendon in the left ankle of Packer defensive tackle Rich Moore was termed a success by Dr. James W. Neilen, a Packer team physician.

"It was a complete tear," Dr. Neilen, who performed the operation Tuesday morning, said, "But it looked all right."

"There is no question that Rich will be out for the rest of this season, but I would expect that he will be able to play next year."

Moore, the second Packer to undergo Achilles surgery this season, damaged the tendon in the first quarter of last Sunday's 30-17 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Linebacker Dave Robinson had a similar operation Oct. 14, after being injured during the Packers' 22-20 win at San Diego.

Wichita State Fund Reaches $23,000 Mark
WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A memorial fund for the Wichita State University football team members killed in the Oct. 2 plane crash has reached $23,000, a university spokesman said Tuesday.

Little Chute Battles Bonduel

while both Little Chute and the Wolves share second place with 3-2 marks.

Before the Bears and Mustangs get together Saturday, two Friday night finales are on the docket. Manawa entertains Wittenberg, and Wautoma heads for Marion. Shiocton finished its season last Friday.

Little Chute warmed up for its battle with Bonduel with a 19-0 triumph over Sevastopol in non-conference competition. The win boosted the Mustangs' overall record to 5-3 for the campaign.

Steve Mollen fired two touchdown passes to Steve Bevers and ran for another to pace Little Chute fortunes. For the day, Mollen hit on eight of 16 passes good for 116 yards.

Reinke Top Rusher
Hard-running Jim Reinke carried for 151 yards in 29 carries to lead Bonduel's last Manawa's lone moment of glory came on a 90-yard kickoff return by Gil Sager.

The Wolves, held to a total of 58 yards passing and rushing against Bonduel, will hope to get their attack back in gear at the expense of the Chargers.

Wittenberg comes off its initial win of the season, having dumped Wautoma, 16-6. The loss caused the Hornets to fall into a last-place tie with the Chargers.

Bruce Beversdorf provides the chief offensive threat for the Chargers after throwing touchdown passes to Dale Hartleben and Jon Alton against the Hornets.

The passing of Mike Meyer will be Marion's top weapon against Wautoma. Meyer connected for three touchdown passes and 270 yards as the Mustangs clobbered Rosholt, 57-0, last week.

By nature, Travis Williams is a sunny, carefree citizen. So sunny, in fact, that Packer equipment manager Dad Braisher will tell you, "It makes you feel good just to see Travis come in the dressing room . . . He always has a smile on his face and a friendly greeting for everybody."

The Road Runner couldn't muster a smile when he arrived at the Packers' green and gold quarters Monday, however. Hopping gingerly on one leg, to avoid putting weight on a swollen right ankle, he slumped heavily on a chair just inside the door as he entered.

His locker is located across the room, but he found it necessary to pause for a rest before proceeding to that point.

Talks in Percentages Customarily, Williams answers in terms of percentages when asked about the state of his health. He will reply, "I'm 60-40 today," if things are going well. Or, the standard response is, "It's just 40-60."

Monday, he shook his head sadly and announced, "I'm about 20-80 today."

Winning ever so slightly, he added, "... or less."

Surveying his "fat" ankle, he reported, "It got bent back under me when I was tackled early in the fourth quarter. It happened on an audible right up the center."

He exhibited a wry smile and added, "They (the Eagles) must have known it, too."

Limping into the training room, where he plunged the ankle into a bucket of ice, Travis took consolation in the fact that things could have been worse.

"I just had it X-rayed," he said, "and there's no break, thank goodness."

Assessing his 1970 tribulations, Williams added, "I've run into a streak of bad luck this year. First I had that groin pull the opening day of training camp, which bothered me for a long time."

"Then I sprained an ankle . . . and now another ankle."

Trainer Domenic Gentile, listening sympathetically to the Road Runner's tale of woe, interjected with elaborate irony. "If we don't run out of time, we can get the whole body before the year is over."

Noting that he is not used to being a patient, Travis declared, "I've done more injuries this year than in all the rest of my football career. And that includes three years of high school, four years of college and four years as a pro."

Finger in Eye

"The only real injury I've had was when Diron Talbert of the Rams caught me in the eye last year, and I missed a couple of games. And I wouldn't have missed those if the eye hadn't been so puffed up."

"That was a weird injury. When Talbert came to tackle me, he caught me with a finger right between the bar and the helmet. It probably wouldn't happen again in a hundred years."

Returning to his current problem, he sadly observed, "This is kind of discouraging, in a way, just when things started going right . . . Just when I was getting all together, something screws it up."

The former Arizona State speedball had reference to the fact that he has been running like his old self of late, punctuating his return to form with the first 100-yard performance of his career in the Packers' 22-20 victory over the San Diego Chargers two weeks ago.

Then, taking the positive approach, he said with admirable optimism, "You can't tell. I might wake up tomorrow and the ankle might be just a little sore."

Viking Frosh Lose, 33 to 10

Lakeland Jayvees Limit Lawrence to 57 Yards Rushing

The Lakeland College junior varsity football team handed the Lawrence University freshmen a 33-10 setback at Whiting Field Tuesday afternoon.

The game concluded the brief season for the Vikes who finished with a 1-2 record defeating Marantha College and losing to Ripon and Lakeland.

Lawrence got on the scoreboard first when Steve Ehrens booted a 28-yard field goal in the opening period, but the Huskie Jayvees struck right back and capped a 48-yard march with a 16-yard scoring pass and a 7-3 lead.

With two minutes left before halftime, Lakeland scored again on a 4-yard run and on the last play before the intermission, the Huskies added another TD on a 26-yard aerial.

A 17-yard run by Ron Lee netted a touchdown for the Vikes in the third period and cut the Lakeland lead to 19-10, but the victors added two more touchdowns in the final period to ice the win.

The tough Lakeland defense limited Lawrence to just 57 yards rushing and 55 passing. The Huskies gained 119 yards on the ground and added another 113 through the air on nine completions out of 21 passes. Each team lost the ball twice on fumbles and Lawrence intercepted three Lakeland passes.

Bud Poile played second fiddle to Purch Imlach at last June's National Hockey League draft in Montreal.

By a stroke of luck, the Vancouver Canucks general manager found himself taking second choice to Imlach's Buffalo Sabres in three phases of the NHL's system of player selection—the amateur draft, league draft and inter-league draft.

As the league's two new members, both clubs were starting from scratch and the players made available by the other 12 clubs were a motley group at best with few exceptions.

Tuesday night marked the first meeting of the season between the expansionists in the only league game scheduled. This time it was turnabout as Poile's Canucks turned in an impressive 7-2 victory over the Sabres.

The triumph firmly entrenched Vancouver in fourth place in the East Division with eight points, three behind Boston, New York and Montreal—all tied for the lead.

AP's Jack Hand Takes Position With NFL Films

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Hand, former Associated Press sports writer who specialized in baseball, pro football and boxing, has been named director of information and promotion for NFL Films. It was announced Tuesday by Ed Sabol, president of NFL Films.

NFL Films is the exclusive film representative for all National Football League teams.

Hand, an AP sports writer in New York for the last 27 years, will be based in the New York offices of the NFL.

Suit Not Affected Curt Flood Reportedly Has Signed Nats' Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Outfielder Curt Flood, engaged in an antitrust battle over baseball's reserve clause, has come to salary terms with the Washington Senators, the Washington Post reported today.

The newspaper said Flood flew from Copenhagen for a weekend meeting with Senators' owner Robert E. Short in New York. Flood's salary was estimated at more than the $90,000 he was paid by the St. Louis Cardinals.

No Pressure Short and baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn declined comment on the story. Flood, the Post said, presumably returned to Denmark after the New York meeting.

Tarkenton Is The New Hero Of New York

NEW YORK (AP) — A few weeks ago, New Yorkers were calling for Fran Tarkenton's head on a chopping block. Now they're tipping their hats to the Giants' quarterback following his finest hour in a decade of National Football League play.

Tarkenton, a convenient scapegoat when the Giants blew first-half leads in three consecutive losses at the outset of the season, silenced his critics last Sunday with a flurry of five touchdown passes that toppled St. Louis 35-17 and evened New York's record at 3-3.

The 30-year-old signal-caller was selected today by The Associated Press as the NFL's Offensive Player of the Week.

For some time, Tarkenton has borne the rap that, despite his passing and scrambling skills, he doesn't win the big games.

But he staged the most productive aerial show of his career against the favored Cardinals in a game the Giants could not afford to lose.

Tarkenton completed 10 of 10 passes in the first half for three scores and tossed two more touchdown strikes in the final quarter on the way to a 15-for-18, 280-yard finish.

BY ROGER PITT

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Natural rivalries will spice the Bay Conference's final weekend of action and an upset in one of the games could decide the league champion.

Oconto Falls (4-3) would like nothing better than to be the spoiler when it invades co-leading Oconto (6-1) Friday in one of the key games.

Pulaski (6-1) will be seeking to nail its share of the crown with its game at Bay Port (2-5), while winless Ashwaubenon (0-7) hopes to pull an upset at Clintonville (4-3).

De Pere (3-4) gets the league's dream weekend underway Thursday when the Waldo Koepke-coached Redbirds are the guest of West De Pere (4-3).

Seymour (3-5) has the unenviable task of stepping out of the league and traveling to Kewaunee, which possesses a 16-game winning streak.

Ashwaubenon can't be taken lightly by the Trunkers as the Jaguars have on several occasions almost risen to the task at hand and spoiled their opponent's victory bid. Last week Oconto escaped, 14-6.

The Jaguars have given up only seven more points (106) than Clintonville but have managed to score only 46 to the Trunkers 99.

Chet Jurkovic saw his team's last hopes for a share of the league title vanish last week when the Clints lost to West De Pere, 16-0.

Kewaunee, ranked No. 7, will seek to solidify its position in the Little 10 ratings, against Seymour. It will be a genuine Indian war as both schools bear that nickname.

The host team comes off a rousing 56-0 trouncing of Sheboygan Falls last week. Quarterback Joe Schleis is one of Kewaunee's aces and last week accounted for 26 points.

Bengals Obtain Gary McArthur From Green Bay

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League Tuesday signed 6-foot-five Gary McArthur, a 248-pound offensive lineman picked up on waivers from the Green Bay Packers.

McArthur, who played his college career at Southern California, was the fifth round draft choice of the San Francisco 49ers who let him go to Green Bay.

"We think he's a lineman with fine potential," said Paul Brown, coach and general manager. "He'll take the place on the reserve list that Dave Mendenhall held."

Mendenhall was traded to the New York Jets.

NCAA Body To Suggest Rule Changes

Hardship Cases, Recruiting Reform Will be Proposed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Council of the NCAA voted Tuesday to sponsor legislation at the group's convention in January to waive eligibility rules in extreme hardship cases.

The decision stemmed from the airplane crash which killed several members of the Wichita State football team earlier this year.

The 18-member council said it could not change the rules without an amendment approved by the full membership of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, although it was sympathetic to the Wichita State case.

The legislation to be proposed would stipulate that large numbers of a team would have to be disabled before the eligibility waiver would occur.

Allow Freshmen

In the Wichita State case, rules allow a freshman to participate in varsity football, but NCAA regulations would block these freshmen from participating in any post-season activity in their senior year.

In other action, the council informally approved a report from a financial aid committee to limit the number of scholarships each school can give and to require that scholarships be awarded only on a financial need formula.

The other part of the three-part program suggested by the committee would establish one date on which all member schools could issue scholarship invitations and establish a one week "quiet period" immediately after the scholarships are offered. During this period no coach could contact a high school prospect.

The idea is to allow the athlete to decide which school he wants to attend without outside pressure. Once the decision is made it can't be changed without forfeiture of a certain period of eligibility.

The net effect of the three-part proposal would be to drastically cut athletic costs and equalize competition.

Tom Hibbard Jr. Paces Pin Loop

Tom Hibbard Jr. put together games of 191, 197 and 195 for a 583 series in the Senior Traveling League which competed at Hahn's Lanes last weekend.

Mike Coonen took a share of the honors with a 209 game and finished with a 542 series.

Other high scores included Ron Lepz 503, Roger Wulterkens 197, Bruce Jensen 512, Dan Belonger 200 and Jeff Perlewitz 500.

The Green Revolution

An Iowa dirt farmer turned scientist who has developed a dwarf strain of wheat which has produced dramatically increased yields in many underdeveloped countries of the world has been honored with the Nobel Prize for Peace for 1970.

Dr. Norman Borlaug for the past 26 years has been working on wheat strains with the Mexican Ministry of Agriculture and the Rockefeller Foundation, of which he is a director. The progress made by he and his associates in the use of improved grains and farming techniques to produce larger crops with which to feed the hungry of the world has been so significant that it has been termed the "green revolution."

The dwarf stems of the wheat strain developed by Dr. Borlaug are strong enough to carry the weight of the heavier heads of grain produced by using fertilizer and irrigation in countries like India and Pakistan.

But Dr. Borlaug sounded an ominous note after being informed of his honor. He warned that the "green revolution" can buy only 20 years more time for a world faced with overpopulation. There must be a balancing of the increase in population with the increase in production of food, he declared, or the threat of world famine will not be erased.

He told an illustrative story. Before his new wheat strain was introduced in Pakistan, a rumor circulated there that his variety would make the women of the country sterile.

"Oh, if that were only true!" said Borlaug. "Then we would really merit the Nobel Peace Prize."

Aerobic Sewage Treatment

The Door County Board, in passing a long-needed subdivision zoning ordinance, included an amendment on sewage disposal systems that is long overdue in the state.

Specifically, the amendment states that "any system of sewage treatment that is approved by the Federal Housing Administration for use in single family dwelling units not connected to a public sewer and which removes at least 85 per cent of the biological oxygen demand from the primary treatment tank effluent may be used."

What this really means is that mechanical aerobic systems are approved. The only trouble is that the authorities in Madison have not approved the use of such systems.

Door County is a unique area and its particular sewage problems are caused by the thin layer of soil over the limestone that is the peninsula. The stone fences are picturesque but they also represent the situation of many rocks and little soil and sand. As numerous summer residents and year around owners well know, the present system of septic tanks, even with the rather new requirements of vents to enable some sort of aerobic treatment, will not suffice as the area becomes more crowded. Neither will the suggested switch to holding tanks which must be emptied regularly. Where will the relatively untreated effluent be dumped where it will not further contaminate the waters of Green Bay and Lake Michigan?

It seems reasonable that mechanical units approved by the FHA and which do remove 85 per cent of the BOD (much more than the old-fashioned septic tanks ever did) should be permitted in Wisconsin since they also are in more than forty other states. Door County is not the only area to be affected. As more and more people build and buy summer homes in Northern Wisconsin, also largely without centralized sanitary systems, the problems will become acute in those areas.

Ideally a system of holding tanks and regional treatment centers may be the best answer to the overall problem in resort areas. But as any realist knows, such widespread systems are years in the future, especially at a time of fiscal concern such as we are now experiencing.

The State Board of Health and the Department of Natural Resources should really get together on the matter before half the state becomes a smelly cesspool.

Slacks Versus the Mini

Hats off to the school administration of River Valley Junior High School at Spring Green! It has decided to accept a student council change, approved earlier this year, granting students the right to wear slacks to classes. This triumph of common sense did not, however, come about without a struggle.

Only a few days ago girls were not wearing slacks at River Valley. Then one did. Interestingly enough, she was the daughter of the operator of a Lone Rock go-go bar featuring topless dancers. He said he disapproved of his daughter's usual miniskirt dress. He thought it rather obvious that slacks would be better.

When the girl came to school, dressed in slacks, she was not permitted to attend classes. That, in turn, resulted in a rather unique kind of protest. The school, according to a newspaper account, "was overrun with young girls in slacks," and this "finally brought the school administration to its knees." Result: the change in rules, making slacks acceptable.

The incident has all sorts of ramifications. For instance, that the impetus for an action, the advisability of which must certainly be obvious to any thinking person (particularly the instructor in front of a girls' class for 50 minutes day after day) came, not from a clergyman, or from a faculty member, or a PTA president, but from a go-go bar operator. For another, that there are probably high schools a lot closer to the Fox Cities area than Spring Green which still forbid girls the wearing of slacks.

If that is the case, we hope that common sense will triumph here also.

Looking Backward

Crescent Defends Stringham

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent, Oct. 29, 1870

A report is being circulated through the River Valley that the Hon. Joseph Stringham, through the agency of the old "Bank of Wisconsin" at Green Bay, or in some other manner, defrauded the heirs of the Grignon estate in this county.

Mr. Stringham never lived at Green Bay; never owned a dollar stock in that bank nor owed it a dollar, but lost something by having its bills on hand when the Michigan "Wild Cat" Banks all failed, and never had any business connection, directly or indirectly, with the late Charles A. Grignon, so long a respected resident of this county.

The misrepresentation probably grows out of con-founding the Stringham who was cashier of the bank with Mr. Joseph Stringham.

was by far the biggest budget in the history of Appleton. Raymond P. Dohr, lieutenant colonel in the Army who was recently discharged after serving in Italy and Germany, was scheduled to speak the following Sunday at a breakfast for Catholic Order of Foresters and Boy Rangers. The Appleton City-Wide Youth Council met the previous evening to make plans for the coming year. Jean Van Wyck was elected vice president, corresponding secretary and telephone chairman. Violet Franzke was chosen secretary; Jane Zimmerman, president, and Coraline Steward, treasurer. Kraft Writes

Trudeau Crackdown in Quebec Related to Conditions in U.S.

MONTREAL — Americans worried by political violence should think hard about what has been happening here in Canada. For this country faces a supreme national crisis born of the selfsame stuff being used as a political football back home.

Thanks to the rare gifts of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, Canada may surmount the crisis. But in America the handful of leaders who could play the Trudeau role if serious troubles materialized are now being hammered by an Administration pleased to represent itself as a force for law and order.

The source of trouble in Canada is a submerged minority — the French Canadians centered here in Quebec province and comprising about a fifth of the country. For two centuries the French Canadians stood firm against the English ascendancy by holding fast to Frankish ways and the old-time religion. Postwar prosperity, financed by American investments and bringing along American culture, melted the resistance. In the early part of this decade, French Canada opened itself to the modern world through a "quiet revolution" against the old parochialism.

Economy Turns Sour

But when economic conditions turned sour several years ago, Quebec's effort to make it served only to reveal how far French Canada was behind English Canada. For example, while the unemployed in Canada at large rose from 3.6 per cent in 1966 to 4.7 per cent this year, in Quebec the comparable rise was from 4.7 to 8.9 per cent.

Butter frustration inevitably followed, producing a Quebec separatist movement with an extreme left wing — the Quebec Liberation Front, made up of workers confined to menial jobs and alienated intellectuals. One of these groups instituted the current round of troubles three weeks ago by kidnapping a British diplomat, James Cross. Another group — the chief suspects are two taxi-drivers and a part-time schoolteacher — then kidnapped, and subsequently murdered, a minister in the Quebec government, Pierre Laporte. From the beginning, Prime Minister Trudeau reacted against this violence in the toughest way. He refused to trade 23 convicts designated by the Front as political prisoners against the two men held as hostages. He denounced the 23 as "bandits," not "political prisoners." He charged that sympathizers with the Liberation Front were "bleeding hearts." When an escalation of violence threatened, he invoked war measures, providing for what is virtually a military occupation of Quebec. And he has held firm to that course despite the murder of Pierre Laporte.

These tough measures have so far gone down very well. Claude Ryan, the editor of Le Devoir and a chief spokesman for the French community here, acknowledged the other day that even in Quebec practically everybody supported the Prime Minister.

But Mr. Trudeau — and only Mr. Trudeau — could take these grave measures because he had previously established a rapport with those most in trouble. A French Canadian himself, he had published a magazine that was a focus of sympathy for the French community. As Prime Minister he has personified equal opportunity for French Canadians across this country. His political style has generated among the most restive Canadians — the young people — a warm sympathy once known as Trudeauism.

Even so, it is not clear how long the tough line will continue to work. Unless the killers are captured soon and unless special economic measures for Quebec are taken, support for the Prime Minister will fall off. French Canadians will find themselves swept along on a new tide of separatism that could carry toward revolution.

Same Elements At Work

Which brings us back to the United States. Many of the same elements are at work. Blacks constitute a submerged minority disappointed in newly raised hopes. They have produced an extremist wing, the Black Panthers, which has collaborated with white radicals. There have been acts of political violence in the ghettos and on campus.

But set against the real article here in Canada, the American situation is not dangerous. The vast majority of the blacks want nothing so much as law and order. Young persons have calmed down considerably since Cambodia. Despite scare talk by Vice President Spiro Agnew and Attorney-General John Mitchell, there is no good case for going beyond the ordinary political action to meet present problems.

In the end, maybe normal politics won't work. Many blacks and many young people have been powerfully turned off. Nobody can be certain that in time to come the United States will not face the kind of crisis now racking Canada.

But who then can play the American Trudeau? Who will have the bona fides to take a strong line against real troublemakers? Well, not the Vice President and the Attorney-General who are despised and mistrusted by so many. Not President Nixon, who has cynically unleashed the Attorney-General and the Vice President.

On the contrary, in a true crisis of law and order, the necessary measures can only be put across by those who have previously shown concern for the problems of blacks and young people. And the tragedy of the American situation is that the false prophets of law and order are now moving to drive these potential leaders from political life.

Wisconsin Report
Tax-Spending Issue Put in Perspective Over Recent Decade

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it, a wise philosopher said in an enduring legacy to mankind. The wisdom relates to the principal issue that has been endlessly disputed in the current campaign for the political control of the state government — namely, the extent and purpose of the enlargement of state spending for the next biennial state government that is likely, possible, necessary, or wise.

It is the most easily understood, and because money controls most significant state policy and service decisions, the most important difference in the chosen postures of candidates Jack Olson and Patrick Lucey, rival aspirants for the first four-year term as governor.

Lesson of History
First, for the lesson of history in Wisconsin state government fiscal terms.

Twenty years ago, the state authorized a budget of about 200 million, drafted and sponsored by a Republican administration.

A decade later the total had grown to slightly more than half a billion dollars. As it happened, that spending program was contrived by a Democratic regime.

A decade later, in the budget that is now supporting the state and its services that have constantly increased in number and scope and inflated in costs under the economic pressures of the times, the total of authorized spending has risen to about $1.6 billion.

There are two intriguing facts disclosed here. First, the acceleration of about two and one half times in the 1950s grew to a rate that exceeded tripling in the decade of the 1960s.

Second, to the naked eye of the reasonably observant but less than expertly trained taxpayer, there has seemed to be relatively little distinction in the record of spending increase between Republican and Democratic regimes. Objectivity requires the qualification that two Democratic governors during the period had to deal with legislatures controlled by the opposition party that had a veto power over them and presumably influence their decisions or inhibited their wishes to some degree.

Only Part of Record

That is one part of the historical record of state fiscal experience. But it relates only to the final disposition of the requests, the decisions hammered out in the infinitely prolonged and laborious political pulling and hauling of the budget making process.

Another necessary part of the record for those who wish to understand the implicit and explicit arguments of the gubernatorial contenders is the size of the requested appropriations of the aggregate of spending pressure groups and agencies against the sums finally authorized by governors and legislatures over a representative period. The most relevant period is probably the last 10 years.

In the first budget of the last decade, a Democratic governor reduced requests in his proposal to the legislature by 5.6 per cent.

His Democratic successor managed only a nominal cutback from the wishes of the agencies of 1.4 per cent.

Then came Gov. Knowles, who re-established the GOP in state control and was immediately confronted with spending demands far greater. In his first term, he cut out fat, as he saw it, amounting to 7.1 per cent.

Cut Back Severely

He cut back in his second term more severely, or 8.1 per cent, although during the interim as during every biennium of the last five spending demands were heavily expanded. In his third and final term, which brought the budget now guiding the spending level of the state, he trimmed 11.1 per cent out of department requests involving general purpose or tax revenues non-segregated.

But examine what is now going on. With agencies representing 90 per cent of usual spending having filed their proposals, the aggregate of demand appears certain to be about $2.3 billion. Accepting Mr. Olson's optimistic hope for a growth in revenue from the present structure and his ability to equal the record budget-request cutting performance of his predecessor and colleague, it is a reasonable conjecture that avoidance of a tax increase is not likely.

To be continued tomorrow.

Why Are Machines Named for Animals?

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When I traded in my Jaguar for a Cobra last spring, my youngest child asked me why so many automobiles had the names of animals — and rattles off a dozen from Cougar to Impala and Mustang to Road-Runner.

At first it would seem as if the auto companies themselves were responsible for such nomenclature — endowing their machines with the brute characteristics of a fleet or powerful animals. But, on reflection, I suspect that something deeper is at work here: man's primeval need to transform his mechanical tools from inanimate objects into "creatures".

We apparently find it psychologically easier to work with tools that have been given some animistic properties than with pieces of dead nature — for one thing, we can then blame the balkiness of the tool on the object itself, rather than on our own clumsiness.

A paving contractor in Toledo reminds me that dozens of the tools used in the paving and construction business likewise bear the names of animals — so this is evidently a widespread human tendency, not just a commercial gimmick of the auto manufacturers. He lists such items as "alligator" to describe a badly broken pavement; "bull" for a bulldozer; "beaver" for the extension on the rear of large trailers; "bob-cat" for a small rubber-tired end-loader.

A "caterpillar," of course, is a trade-name for heavy construction equipment; the tracks on bulldozers are called "cats"; a "dog" is a safety device on a wrench used for lifting; a "frog" is a switch used in railroad; while a "pig" is the connecting device between a semi-truck and trailer, for lights.

We call the large machine used for lifting and digging a "crane"; carpenters hold large slabs of wood on a "horse"; a "monkeywrench" is a handtool (oddly enough, called a "spanner" in England); a "pug" is a mixer in an asphalt plant, and a "pup" is an extra tank trailer on a semi-truck tagging behind.

Still not convinced? A "rat" is a round file with a handle, used by mechanics and repairmen; a "sheep" is a large two-type roller with pieces of steel welded on; a "snake" is a plumber's tool for cleaning out lines; a "spider" is a gear in the transmission of heavy equipment; and a "worm" is another gear used in transmission and differential systems.

Language does not evolve by accident, but grows to fit some pre-existing image in the human mind. We live in an almost totally mechanized world — but our primitive distrust of these instruments has led us to metamorphosize their names at least to the animal species we can curse if not entirely subjugate.

Samuelson
Text Basic In Economics

Nobel Prize Winner
Has Had Influence
For Entire Generation

NEW YORK (AP) — An entire generation of Americans, thousands of professors included, owes its basic knowledge of economics to Dr. Paul Samuelson, recipient of the 1970 Nobel Prize in economics.

Samuelson's massive "Foundations of Economic Analysis" was required reading in almost every college economics course and, in fact, was the only textbook in many of them. It covered everything.

That this enormously successful book, a classic which Samuelson updates every few years, was hardly the basis for his selection is a testament to the breadth of his work.

No one area of Samuelson's output, in fact, can be detached from the mass of his production. His writings and research covers the field generally and specifically: over-all theory, welfare economics, price theory, international trade.

Mathematical Analysis And while he has demonstrated an ability to write for the masses, as evidenced by a popular magazine column, the professor's greatest strengths are in the area of highly mathematical analysis.

Samuelson is considered a Keynesian, meaning that much of his thinking appears to have been influenced by the late John Maynard Keynes, a British economist who believed in governmental involvement in order to moderate the business cycle.

Keynes approach was fiscal. He felt that government spending could be used to regulate the up-down cycles that have appeared regularly in industrial economies. He didn't fear budget deficits, and even suggested they might be used to "spend" a lagging economy into health.

Against Friedman Many economists today consider Samuelson the foremost academic interpreter and systematizer of Keynes' theories, which therefore puts him, at least in a popular sense, against Prof. Milton Friedman and the monetarists.

Friedman, who reportedly also was considered for the prize, believes that the economy is essentially stable if not interfered with by the federal government. A steady growth in money supply is viewed as sufficient fuel.

In politics, Keynesians have usually been associated with Democrats and monetarists with the Republican party. Friedman, in fact, was the economic adviser to Sen. Barry Goldwater and still has entree to Washington.

To some degree, however, the differences may be growing less stark as they are practiced. Each has had its failures, and economic practitioners today tend to be less doctrinaire than a decade ago.

Redefine Ideas In the Nixon administration, for example, there may be detected some of each school, and many economists in academia, business and government feel free to borrow from either school and redefine the ideas to fit the situation.

Nevertheless, many observers who tend to view economics with a political connotation will find in Samuelson's award a victory for the notion that government involvement is necessary in modern industrial economies.

Samuelson and Friedman, however, are likely to put no such interpretation on the matter, for both are academicians who certainly could have choice jobs in Washington administration during the past decade.

Each, however, has chosen to remain in academic life, to pursue theories without the taint of politics, to guard carefully their freedom of expression and to remain close to the sources of research.

Samuelson respects the others, and Samuelson has been known to say jokingly that while he disagrees with some of Friedman's views, he values them for their contribution to the debate.

"The country should give two cheers for Milton Friedman," he has been heard to say. And in all probability Friedman today would agree that Samuelson deserves the full measure of three cheers for winning the Nobel Prize.

Six From Legion
Auxiliary Attend
Waupaca Council

CLINTONVILLE — Six members of the American Legion Auxiliary of the Tilleson-Strehlow-Klitz Post attended the Waupaca County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary Saturday afternoon at Iola, at the Legion clubhouse.

They were Mrs. Marshal Bodoh, Mrs. Myron Rand, Mrs. Milford Etheridge, Mrs. John Schroeder, Mrs. Eli Stickney and Mrs. Virgil Wulfson.

Six units were represented including King, New London, Deyauwega, Waupaca, Iola, and Clintonville. Mrs. Austin Trull, Waupaca is the county president. Various reports were given in addition to the routine business.

King will be the host for the next meeting of the Council to be held in May.

Refreshments were served during the social hour by the Iola unit.

Police Remind Drivers Of Parking Regulation

KAUKAUNA — Police Chief William Nagel has issued a reminder to motorists of state law which prohibits parking on the near side of a street or roadway adjacent to school buildings.

Motorists who have received parking tickets complained that areas are not marked as "no parking" zones, but this regulation is included in driver's manuals and the motor vehicle code, noted Nagel.

This regulation prohibits parking in these areas from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on school days and applies to all elementary schools in the city.

Drug Ring Breakup Is Announced

MADISON (AP)—Atty. Gen. Robert Warren announced Tuesday the breakup of an illegal drug distribution operation between Wausau and Madison and between Manitowoc and Green Bay.

Warrants were authorized in the counties of Marathon, Dane, Brown and Manitowoc naming five adult defendants.

"Some of the accused drug peddlers in this group have ties with members of a drug ring in the Green Bay area which was broken up last Friday," the attorney general said.

"This latest investigation," Warren said, "showed conclusively that Madison is the source of illegal drugs into the central Wisconsin area, particularly Marathon County."

Substances involved in the latest arrest included Marijuana, hashish, LSD, and a variety of amphetamines.

Warren said five defendants had been taken into custody. He identified them as John F. Kabisak, 21, Bryan C. Koenig, and Jerome M. Voigt, all of Wausau; Robert Lehman, Madison, and Mark Dolski, Manitowoc.

Lucey Given Endorsement By Milwaukee City Council

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Milwaukee's city council endorsed Democrat Patrick J. Lucey for governor Tuesday, declaring it is the first time in the council's history that a gubernatorial nominee has won a formal nod from the city's aldermen.

Council president Robert J. Jendusa said the action "is based on issues, not the political party," and was inspired by demands from Milwaukee and other cities for more state assistance in the battle against urban problems.

Lucey, Jendusa said, has provided better answers than Republican nominee Jack Olson concerning questions about urban matters. Lucey, a former Democratic state chairman, was endorsed in a statement by 18 of the Common Council's 19 members.

The council's statement said Lucey's position on taxes "is much more realistic" than that of Olson.

Olson said Tuesday the Nov. 3 election will be a "cliffhanger," and that he will take a three-day campaign swing across the state to shore up his chances for victory.

The tour, which will take place today through Friday of this week, will take him to Stevens Point, to Superior, Eau Claire, La Crosse, Milwaukee, Green Bay, Oshkosh and Kenosha.

Olson, in a statement, also said he was "pleased" to learn of the appointment of John Weaver as president of the University of Wisconsin by the Board of Regents.

"I have every confidence that they have picked a man with both the educational background and the administrative ability that is needed to maintain a great university system," Olson said.

In La Crosse, the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, David Martin, accused Lucey of "a deliberate distortion" by having contended Olson "would raise the sales tax if he were elected."

Martin Schreiber, the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, said Olson's zero-budgeting platform is a "huckstered hoax" containing "nothing more than what the state budget bureau has been doing for years."

Property Tax Hit
The Democratic candidate for state treasurer, Charles P. Smith, said the Republican-controlled 1969 legislature is to blame for "increasing property taxes to their present astronomical levels and literally causing the eviction of thousands of moderate income families from their homes."

"The deplorable situation," Smith insisted, "threatens eviction to one of every five Wisconsin homeowners by 1975."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., in a Marshfield statement, complained about a $5.24 billion public works bill which Congress approved and which Nixon signed.

"This was a golden opportunity to cut federal spending, and it was muffed," Proxmire said. "We can't spend our way out of a recession."

Proxmire's Republican opponent, John Erickson, said he favors Defense Secretary Melvin Laird's plans for greater nuclear strength while Proxmire wants a "throw-back to the old politics of the 1930s, the era of disarmament."

"I would protect the national security with a 'peace through power' defense posture," Erickson said.

Olson held out hope Wisconsin can be run for another two years without a tax increase but agreed during a Tuesday night debate with Patrick Lucey that if an increase is necessary it will have to be in

Bubolz Stirs GOP Wrath by Backing Lucey

MADISON (AP)—State Sen. Reuben LaFave, R-Oconto, issued a statement today critical of Gordon Bubolz, former Republican colleague in the Senate, who announced his support for Democrat Patrick J. Lucey for governor.

Bubolz, Appleton insurance firm president and lawyer, said last week he favored the Democrats over the Republican state because of their conservation policies.

"His endorsement of Lucey is nothing more than a blatant attempt to bid for an appointment to the board supervising the Department of Natural Resources," LaFave said.

Bubolz, in his statement, noted his long time ties with conservation causes.

LaFave claimed Bubolz does not speak for conservationists, declaring: "Former GOP State Senator Bubolz's remarks in support of Lucey are not well founded; sportsmen and conservationists in Wisconsin do not feel that he (Bubolz) is one of them, and they resent his implication that he speaks for such groups."

the personal and corporate income tax.

The two gubernatorial candidates met face-to-face for the first time during the campaign. The debate was in front of an audience of about 1,000 at Stevens Point State University.

The Republican lieutenant governor, more confident than he has been in recent weeks, clashed with Lucey on the issues of taxes and spending.

"Tonight I'm confident I am going to be the next governor of this state," Olson said. "A vote for Lucey is a vote for hundreds of millions of dollars in new taxes."

"I am not particularly confident I will be the next governor of Wisconsin," Lucey, a Madison Democrat, said. "But I will accept the judgment of the voters and if they vote on issues we will be successful."

Olson said he sees the election as a referendum on whether the Wisconsin voters want a tax increase. He and Lucey fielded questions from a panel of newsmen.

"The people are going to make a choice over millions of dollars in new taxes or a man who is going to do his darndest to hold the line on taxes," said Olson, who has conceded an increase might be necessary, but has said repeatedly the state can make it on economic growth.

Lucey said that if new revenue were needed there would be no choice but to rely on the income tax—not the sales tax. He said he does not consider sacred the seven per cent corporate tax and the 10 per cent limit on upper level income tax.

Lucey called himself "a remarkably frugal candidate" in terms of new programs.

"I do not feel I want to tax anyone for the fun of it," he said, "including corporations, believe it or not."

Personal Secret
Lucey criticized Olson's campaign slogan "zero budgeting," calling it the lieutenant governor's personal secret.

"I don't know whether zero budgeting is something that has been created for this campaign or whether Mr. Olson has been keeping it a secret all these years," Lucey said.

"State taxes have soared during six years of Republican administration," he added. "I think Warren Knowles would have found zero budgeting mighty handy to have. I don't think you should have withheld it from him."

Both men agreed some kind of limit is needed on campaign spending and attacked each other's commercials.

Weaver Stands Firm Against Disruption

'Discipline Is Not Born in Chaos'

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The selection of John C. Weaver as president of the University of Wisconsin brings to the campus a man who has never made it difficult for students, faculty and administrators at his home school to know where he stands on student discipline and disruption.

"Let it be understood at the University of Missouri there will be an unassailable freedom of speech and thought, but there also will be the protection of an orderly way of academic life," he said in the spring of 1969 after confronting campus disorders.

In a policy statement on campus speakers, he added: "An educated mind is a disciplined mind and discipline is not born in chaos."

Free Speech

"Let it also be understood that free speech does not include license for giving public expression to filthy speech. Society has the right to expect decency and dignity," said the man who once banned an underground newspaper from the Missouri campus.

One observer of Weaver since his appointment as president of the four campus Missouri system in 1966 summarized him in a curt manner:

"He has sort of a John Mitchell streak in him," said the newsmen.

Facing the continuing problems of The Daily Cardinal, the controversial student newspaper here which in the past has been given to four letter words, and the multitude of underground newspapers in the Madison area — and the liberal leanings of Federal Judge James Doyle of the Western District of Wisconsin — Weaver could be in for an earthy time reading the local campus press.

Agreed to Compromise
But Weaver, it must be pointed out, also consented to the appointment of a compromise committee which worked out the details for the return of the paper to the Missouri campus.

Campus authorities had banned it, just as hawkers of campus papers are being banned from campus grounds and facing arrest if they try to peddle their paper wares there.

Other events in the Missouri system give a clear understanding of Weaver's attitudes toward campus behavior.

As Weaver was coming to his job three students were arrested for chalking protest signs and slogans on sidewalks.

Ten professors led 600 students on a protest march to the local courthouse, and the crowd wrote in chalk on the sidewalk outside of the building.

'Damaging to Dignity'

Weaver called the participation of the professors "damaging to the dignity of the university's scholarly purpose in the eyes of the people of this state."

He alleged that almost all the participating professors were persons already on their way out of the Missouri system.

A professor, he said, "as a man of learning and an educational officer, should remember that the public may judge his profession and his institution by his utterances. Hence, he should, at all times, be accurate, should exercise appropriate restraint, should show respect for the opinions of others and should make every effort to indicate that he is not an institutional spokesman."

In his campus speakers statement, Weaver said that the freedom to discuss and to dissent are basic, but added:

Disruption Not Tolerated

"Nonetheless, the university cannot and will not tolerate disruption under the guise of the protection of freedom. The disruption of university life by some results in the loss of elemental freedoms for others and the academic community must stand at all times for the freedom of all its members."

Faced with possible disruption this fall, Weaver sent about 80,000 letters to students, parents and alumni.

"Academic freedom carries with it both rights and responsibilities. Academic freedom does not permit the dismissal or cancellation of classes as a means of expressing opinion and for permitting students to engage in political or protest activity," he said.

"At the same time, academic credit should not be given to any student who fails to complete his assigned tasks," he warned.

Weaver, acting on a directive of the Missouri board of curators, disciplined 11 professors who took part in or dismissed classes for demonstrations last spring over the Kent-Cambodia crisis.

Two part-time teachers were fired, seven lost a day's wages, one was cut two day's salary, and one was issued an official reprimand.

In the letter to students and their parents this fall, Weaver repeated an official board of curators policy position adopted in 1968.

The university will not tolerate action by anybody that interferes "with normal and regular activities of the university," the statement reads.

"Any student or employee who occupies a university building or disrupts is subject to suspension or dismissal, under the rule."

Weaver has not faced large scale disruptions such as those which have rocked the UW during the past four years.

THE TAX RAP

"I'm going to try every way possible to hold the line on new taxes, scrutinize programs and budgets, fight for more dollars from Washington. My opponent has already given up. He's talking new taxes, new spending, budget deficits, before the game even starts. Why give up? At least we can try."

Produce the Evidence, Mr. Lucey

On Oct. 6 the Democratic nominee for governor, Patrick J. Lucey, made the following statement before an audience in Madison:

"It is common knowledge in the Fox River Valley that every appointment that the incumbent governor made which had to do with natural resources was subject to veto of Kimberly-Clark."

This is a most serious charge against the present governor of Wisconsin, Warren P. Knowles, and against Kimberly-Clark Corp.

Gov. Knowles has been this state's chief executive for six years. In effect, Mr. Lucey has charged him with malfeasance in office.

Kimberly-Clark is one of Wisconsin's largest employers, and is a highly respected name among the nation's manufacturers of paper products. Its thousands of employees, stockholders and customers, have a right to know if it has been exercising improper control over appointments in the Wisconsin state government.

Mr. Lucey's charge was specific — against a specific governor and a specific company regarding specific acts.

If Mr. Lucey can prove his charge, he will deserve the admiration and gratitude of all the people of this state.

But if he cannot prove it, he will stand convicted of having made a wild, unfounded accusation in the midst of an election campaign. And that in turn will call into question his qualifications to be governor for this state's first four-year term.

We are waiting to see your evidence, Mr. Lucey.

Argument on State Of U.S. Economy Goes Three Ways

WASHINGTON (AP) — A firm McCormack's figures three-cornered political argument over whether the nation's economy is improving or getting worse under President Nixon's policies is enlivening the congressional campaign.

"There is no economic upturn in sight," AFL-CIO President George Meany, said Tuesday, and added that things could get worse. He cited 10 per cent rise in living costs and nearly 2 million more unemployed in Nixon's first 20 months in office.

Herbert Stein, top Nixon economic adviser, countered by saying the rate of inflation is declining, production output is no longer falling and the general economy is headed for recovery.

House Speaker John W. McCormack—a Democrat—chimed in by charging the administration had planned to withhold until after the Nov. 3 elections a new report showing five more major industrial cities with substantial unemployment of 6 to 8.9 per cent—compared with the national rate of 5.5 per cent.

1970—Good Year For French Wines

PARIS (AP) —A favorable combination of sun, rain and wind has made 1970 a good and perhaps a great year for French wine, experts are saying with the grape harvest half picked.

For red Burgundies, it may be the year of the century. White Burgundy is abundant and good.

In Bordeaux, vintners and wine-masters agree that this year's vintage is better and much more abundant than 1969. Last year's Bordeaux were the best for quality in a decade. But the harvest was thin. The grapes the workers are picking now are higher in sugar content — and therefore alcohol—than a year ago and have a generous tannin ingredient.

Beaujolais also will be plentiful and good, if lacking a bit of the body the 1969 vintage had. The abundance should mean a slight drop in price.

In Champagne, an expanded planting program in the last decade is proucing a record yield.

Government officials have argued that many youths still listing themselves as looking for work during the Labor Day week quit job hunting and returned to school within a few days, artificially swelling the September unemployment total.

Meany used his favorite epithet of "bunk" to describe administration claims of economic improvement.

"This is complete deception. It is plain, ordinary calculated deception. There has not been an improvement and there is no indication that there is going to be an improvement," said the 76-year-old leader of 13.6 million union members in an interview. The AFL-CIO primarily backs Democratic and liberal Republican candidates.

'Compatible' Spaceships Favored for U.S., Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — The president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences said today that the Soviet government considers it "expedient" to build spaceships sufficiently compatible with U.S. spacecraft to permit Soviet-American docking and rescue operations.

Mstislav V. Keldysh told a news conference that Soviet space experts had just completed two days of exploratory negotiations with representatives of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Moscow.

In answer to a question on the prospects of close U.S.-Soviet space cooperation, Keldysh replied:

"The fact that we had these talks shows that we are interested in having compatible spaceships. But this is a very complex matter that requires further study."

Bright Kids and Modern Morals

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of every 10 high school academic leaders contacted in a national survey say they personally use marijuana.

More than 22,000 youths 16 to 18 years old in 18,000 private, public and parochial schools responded to the 70-question survey distributed by Merit Publishing Co., Northfield, Ill.

Recipients, all juniors and seniors, were top scholars and student leaders recommended by the schools, the sponsors said.

When asked whether they use

marijuana now, 10 per cent replied yes, 88 per cent said no and 2 per cent didn't respond. In answer to another question, 21 per cent indicated that they would use it if marijuana were legalized.

When asked whether they approve of premarital sexual intercourse, 5 per cent failed to respond, 53 per cent said no and 42 per cent said yes. But 24 per cent of the respondents ducked the question when asked whether they participated in sexual relations. Of those answering, 16 per cent said they had and 60 per cent said they had not.

The sponsors said nine students were selected to write the questions, which ranged from Vietnam to drug use and national politics to ecology.

Most of the students said that ending the Vietnam war is the nation's No. 1 priority and a whopping 85 per cent said that respect for this country had suffered because of the Vietnam conflict.

On race relations, 68 per cent opposed busing students from either black or white communities, but 84 per cent said they would move into an integrated neighborhood.

On national politics, 75 per cent favored lowering the voting age to 18, and 85 per cent would abolish the electoral college. Forty-six per cent said they would have voted for President Nixon in 1968, 40 per cent for Hubert Humphrey and 5 per cent for George Wallace.

Fifty-two per cent said they felt Nixon is doing a good job as president.

Turks Question Second Soviet Hijacker Pair

Speculators Fear
Actions Will Harden
Life for Captives

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkish authorities today questioned two Soviet students seeking asylum after the second successful hijacking of a Soviet plane in two weeks. There was speculation that the hijacking would harden the Soviet government's attitude toward two U.S. generals whose plane crossed into Soviet Armenia last week.

Nikolai Ginlov, 20, and Vitaly Pozdeyir, 25, "put a bag over the pilot's head, trussed him up and landed the plane at Sinop themselves," Tuesday, the semi-official Turkish news agency Anatolia reported.

"They said let's go, and we came," pilot Alexei Menshikov, 50, said.

The Turkish government sent state security police and an interpreter to Sinop, on Turkey's Black Sea coast, to investigate. Anatolia said the pair had been planning their escape from the Soviet Union for two years.

The Turkish state radio said Ginlov and Pozdeyir told security police they wanted to go to the United States.

The plane, a small two-engine craft of the government-owned Soviet airline Aeroflot, was on a domestic flight from Kerch to Krasnodar, north of the Black Sea, when Ginlov and Pozdeyir took it over. One other passenger was aboard, Yuri Derbinov, 35.

Publications of Leftist Speaker List Is Barred

'Infringes on Individual Rights'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public distribution of an official House report on so-called radical campus speakers was prohibited today by a federal judge.

"The report of the House Committee for Internal Security is without any proper legislative purpose," U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell said in his ruling. "and infringes on the (Constitutional) rights of individuals named therein."

The American Civil Liberties Union, which won the permanent injunction against publication of the official report at public expense, called the decision the first ever in which a court restricted Congress' authority over its own reports.

65 Speakers
The House committee report lists 65 speakers it identifies as members of militant, radical or Communist-oriented organizations and concludes the campus speaking circuit is a significant source of financing for revolutionary and disorderly activities.

"There are undoubtedly individuals who would destroy our institutions and form of government," Gesell said in his ruling.

"If any of them are listed in this report, our Constitution nevertheless preserves their right to speak even though their acts may be restrained."

The judge said there has been an increasing tendency by Congress to investigate "for exposures sake" and said he hopes Congress on its own will limit its investigation to subject directly related to legislation.

Gesell's injunction is only

3 Spacemen Fly 747 Jumbo Jet

SEATTLE (AP) — American astronaut Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and two visiting Soviet cosmonauts took turns flying a Boeing 747 jumbo jet Tuesday.

Maj. Gen. Andrian Nikolayev, 41, who commanded the 18-day Soyuz 9 flight, took the plane off, Vitali Sevastyanov, 35, his companion on the Soyuz trip, put it through a couple of maneuvers, and Aldrin was at the controls for the landing.

Open Court

The judge indicated in open court last week that he could not realistically accept the ACLU's request that congressmen and everyone else also be enjoined against reprinting the official House report on their own.

A committee spokesman said "the case will be appealed and the matter undoubtedly be brought before the House when Congress reconvenes, but beyond that there will be no further comment until the injunction has been examined and brought to the attention of the committee chairman."

Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., chairman of the House committee, earlier announced he wants to challenge a court right to restrict publication of an official report.

ACLU lawyer Lawrence Speiser said he will not appeal the ruling, even though it does not grant all he asked. He said he will wait to see what Ichord and the government do.

Agnew Says He's Changing Tactics

No More 'Mr. Nice Guy'

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says he has "loved every minute" of his controversial campaign at the door.

But Agnew made Goodell, well, who has become one of the Senate's leading doves since he was appointed two years ago to succeed the late Robert F. Kennedy, a major part of his lengthy argument for strong national defense.

He began by saying that the Senate race, in which Conservative James L. Buckley appears to be leading Democrat Richard Ottinger with Goodell running third, "seems to be going rather

Israel's Golda Meir Flies to Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel has spent a day here visiting privately with friends and relatives.

She planned to return today to New York, where she had attended the commemoration of the United Nations 25th anniversary.

Airport Considered For Landfill Sites

County Looking at Noise Control Zones

The feasibility of locating sanitary landfill sites in the noise control zones off the ends of Outagamie County Airport runways will be explored by the special solid waste disposal study committee.

A meeting with the county board's airport committee, the airport manager and a representative of Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) will be sought by the study committee to determine whether there would be any conflicts in the use of the land.

Investigation of use of the noise control zones had been suggested by Supv. Joseph DeBruin, Town of Buchanan, a member of the study committee.

The airport area was one of two locations for which cost and use studies were then conducted by the Fox Valley Council of Governments. The second location is north of Appleton in the Town of Grand Chute.

Larry Michaels, public works director for COG, urged meeting with airport officials before proceeding with any technical studies. "When you put in a landfill you must know what use the land will be put to in the future," he said.

Use Limited
Use of the noise control zones was suggested by DeBruin because of the limited construction allowed in those areas. Under proposed FAA standards, no residential or commercial building should be allowed near the ends of the runways because of potential complaints of noise. The county now owns some of the land in the noise control zones and will possibly have to purchase more land in the future, officials said.

Michaels said both the airport and Grand Chute sites were found suitable for sanitary landfill and both could be operated for about $1.25 per ton.

In the evaluations, Michaels said, it was assumed Kaukauna would have solved its own solid waste disposal problems by the time the county got into operation.

The Grand Chute site, Michaels said, would basically serve Appleton, Grand Chute, and possibly Kimberly, along with any other neighboring towns that would desire to join. The airport would probably be accessible to the same communities, plus Neenah and Menasha, he said.

With User Fee
COG recommendations include operating the landfill on a voluntary basis with cost being born through a user fee.

If the recommendations for use of the airport would be approved, COG proposed adoption of a master plan for development of the airport to prevent land use conflicts, and an operational and restoration plan.

Robert Miller, Appleton public works director, reaffirmed the city's interest in joining a county program but again warned that time was running out for the city at its Mackville site.

Gerald Paul, Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission representative on the study group, contended selecting only one site for consideration now was not fulfilling the directive to the group to design a county-wide solid waste disposal program.

Supv. Henry Breiting, who represents three rural towns in the northwestern part of the county, agreed with the project as presented, however. "Appleton has the waste problem," Breiting said. "We should try it here first. If it works, the towns will be more favorable to it when we do need it," he said.

Breiting said rural opposition to a county-operated solid-waste disposal program had been based on the fear the cost would be put on the county tax roll. If the cost is paid through a user fee, Breiting said, he did not feel there would be much opposition.

Waupaca Candidates Trade Shots

Routhieaux Challenges Byers' Record

BY KERN SMITH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUPACA — The race for Waupaca County's state assembly seat finds the Democratic Party challenger trying to prove the Republican incumbent into a public defense of his two-year record.

Challenger Harold Routhieaux, Clintonville, also charges that Rep. Francis Byers, Marion, "won't discuss the issues — the tax mess we are in, agriculture, how we are to stem the rising unemployment right here in our own county, school aids or better law enforcement."

Byers answers that "I have no intention of taking part in meaningless debate. What would it accomplish?"

"There is nothing secret about where I stand and what I have tried to do during these past two years," he asserts.

Support of Farmers

Routhieaux, a finish painter at Four-Wheel drive Corp., Clintonville, "decided to run for the assembly when I reviewed the very poor record of Byers during the past two years."

"He did not support the farmers when he voted for the 4 per cent sales tax on items which the farmer needs for production of marketable goods, or when he voted in favor of corporation farming in nine of 10 roll call votes."

Nor did Byers support sportsmen, Routhieaux maintains, "by his vote to strip the outdoor recreation portion from the ORAP-200 bill, which passed by the voters in two referenda in Waupaca County and the state."

Byers counters that his Democrat opponent "has chosen to concentrate on misrepresentations and half truths."

"For example, my opponent

Routhieaux

says I voted against ORAP-200," he continues.

"What he should have said was that I voted for the first section of ORAP-200 which provided for $146 million to assist state communities in meeting sewage treatment problems and I voted against the second section which provided $56 million to acquire new lands for recreational purposes.

Tax Issue

"This just happens to be exactly how Waupaca County voted in the referendum held."

Routhieaux sees taxes as the greatest campaign issue.

"The Republicans put the tax burden on the people with the least ability to pay. If elected, I will work for the repeal of the 4 per cent sales tax in the area of home heating fuels, children's clothing and non-prescription drugs. I do believe that the sales tax should continue to apply to luxuries."

To the proposal Byers takes direct exception. "At the time this law was passed Wisconsin ranked fifth in the nation in terms of corporation taxes, first in personal income taxes and 44th in sales taxes."

"It would be ridiculous for a legislator to think that he could do other than go for a legislator to think that he could do other than go for the sales tax approach when most other states are following this procedure," Byers added.

Education Costs

Routhieaux, the father of four school-age children, wants to shift from property taxes to personal and corporate income taxes the burden of financing education. "At present 70 per cent of the property tax in

3 Girls Burned In Accident at Amherst School

AMHERST — A chemistry lab accident in the Tomorrow River Elementary School last week resulted in the hospitalization of three seventh-grade girls.

Vici Griswold, daughter of Mrs. Nora Griswold, Barbara Patoka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Patoka and Laurie Parnham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Parnham, all of Amherst, were burned when a can of alcohol burst into flames. The accident occurred as they were filling an alcohol burner, when a burning lamp was brought to them, which exploded fumes around the can from which they were pouring, according to the school district administrator, Walter Bohman.

Miss Griswold and Miss Patoka are in good condition, and Miss Parnham, who had more extensive burns, reportedly is in satisfactory condition at St. Michael Hospital, Stevens Point.

Brillion Schools Offer Hot Lunches for All

BRILLION — The public schools have issued an application form and income scale for families to apply for free or reduced price school lunches.

The lunch program, according to Supt. Gaylord K. Unbehau, strives to provide each student with a well balanced, nutritious meal. Regular cost is 35 cents per day for pupils in grades one through six and 40 cents a day for seventh through 12th graders.

Families who find it difficult to pay these prices are urged to fill out free applications for free or reduced lunches. The income scale for eligibility has been sent home with all children.

Unbehau said that the standards set in the scale shall not prohibit a family from applying for its children if there are sufficient reasons. All information on the applications is kept in the strictest confidence, he stated.

Neopit Pair Bound Over in Murder Case

SHAWANO — County Judge Ken Traeger Monday ordered Joseph Komenican, 20, and Gary Tucker, 18, bound over to Circuit Court for trial on a charge of first degree murder.

Komenican, also known as Joey Matchoma, and Tucker, both of Neopit, are charged with murdering 72-year-old Charlie Coon of Neopit on Sept. 16.

At the preliminary hearing Monday, Traeger denied motions by defense counsel that he dismiss the charges on the grounds of insufficient proof.

Matchoma, who is alleged to have shot Coon with his own rifle, claims self-defense. He said Coon threatened him with the rifle and a knife after Matchoma struck him in rejecting Coon's homosexual overtures.

According to the complaint, Tucker was with Matchoma at Coon's cabin, where the trio had gone after drinking together.

Budget Bureau Blamed

Little Hope Left for Action In ACP Program This Year

MANAWA — Although the Agriculture Conservation Practices program is approved, it will be too late for most farmers in this area to take advantage of it unless the Federal government provides the funds, it was confirmed Tuesday when representatives of the county Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service met at Cedar Springs Resort.

Guest speaker Rep. David R. Obey, D-Wausau, told the 120 men present:

"Unless funds for the ACP program are released by the budget bureau, now, it will be too late for most farmers to take advantage of the program this year."

"The ACP program has run into three roadblocks: "First, funds for the program were entirely eliminated in the President's budget, but both houses restored it."

"Second, after this was done, the southern congressmen used it and other agriculture appropriations as a hostage in the fight over farm payment limitations."

"Third, it is being killed, effectively, because the Budget Bureau refuses to allow the states to announce the $195 million ACP programs for next year."

"I hope that things will be cleared up in short order when we return on Nov. 18," he added. "It is not a pretty situation but I am not paid to bring you Pollyanna reports."

To Make Every Effort

"Every effort will be made to have the Bureau of the Budget announce that it will distribute the money and carry out the intent of the Congress," Obey said. "It could make life easier for the farmers."

He said he was concerned also about the future of soil and water conservation programs such as diversion ditches, terracing and sod waterways which are very much behind schedule.

"Once we have a freeze up," Obey observed, "work on programs of this sort will be virtually impossible." Even if the Budget Bureau announced today that the ACP program for next year would be funded, the congressman said he had been told that lime vendors would be able to spread only about 40 per cent of the lime they normally do.

He called attention to the fact that in the past Wisconsin farmers have spent about $5 million per year of their own money for the reduction and prevention of pollution through ACP cost-sharing conservation programs.

"Congress has made it perfectly clear that it intends to continue this program for next year," he concluded. "Now if the bureau will drop its arrogance and follow the wishes of Congress, you will get some action."

"If they are going to talk about saving money, they shouldn't short-sheet a program like this. There are more obvious savings when the space program costs $17 per person and the air and water pollution program cost $4 a person."

The ASCS board and committee, agency representatives and guests spent most of Tuesday touring the county, visiting farms where soil conservation projects are underway.

"Support President" Pointing out that as defense secretary "you are in a non-political position," Laird went on to say he hopes his former constituents will choose a representative who "will support the President's efforts to bring peace." Obviously, that shoe fits a Republican more closely than a Democrat.

Laird also said the nation must be strong militarily, economically and morally if peace is to come — a theme hit often and in closely similar terms by LeTendre.

Nixon said LeTendre is "like Mel Laird," whom he described as "tops in American," LeTendre, he said, is "one in that same mold."

The Laird and Nixon statements were made to a Wausau television newsmen and aired exclusively by that TV station the night of the President's appearance and again the next evening, Sunday.

But the LeTendre organization was unable to get hands on the video-tape until mid-morning Monday, proceeding to spread the news to other printed and broadcast media immediately. While broadcasters could air the release immediately, some printed media were unable to publish it until Tuesday.

by the tardiness of the news release — in sharp contrast to the general promptness with which the more mundane releases have been issued on a daily basis from the campaign headquarters.

The 7th District

Incumbent Obey Never Stops Campaigning

In a sense, to hold elective office is to campaign. In that same sense, Rep David Obey has been on the campaign trail since April, 1969, when he was elected to represent the 7th District in Congress.

The 32-year-old Wausau Democrat has visited his district an average, he says, of two out of three weekends since then while the House was in session.

He has sent out a newsletter to constituents each quarter, submitted a column to weekly and daily newspapers in the 15-county district, appeared on television in interviews and on taped announcements made in the House TV studio, and sent special communications to business and professional organizations and interest groups, when legislation of interest to them has come up.

He points out that he has to pay for own fare for trips in excess of the one per month allotted him for "legislative business," and similarly must either keep his stationary expense within his office budget or write a personal check to pay excess costs.

Uses Advantages
Nevertheless, he has made full use of the advantages that go to an incumbent — and which all of his colleagues use similarly, though to varying degrees.

While his opposition — the Republican challenger is Andre LeTendre, 32, of Wausau, until recently national president of the Jaycees — grumbles about the advantage Obey has, he has good reason to use it.

He beat his opponent in 1969 by a 3.25 per cent plurality, after his Republican predecessor, Melvin Laird, had rolled up a 2-1 margin over the Democratic candidate in the previous fall's regular election.

The district is known for its tendency to "swing" across party lines, depending on who the candidate is. To fail to use every means available to swing the vote his way would be foolhardy.

Campaigning in Waupaca County shortly after the House recessed for the election, Obey told several constituents he disapproves of the way elections have to be run, even though he uses some of the devices to which he objects.

Should be Educational

The object of his comments was the political "spot commercial." The 91st Congress' youngest member received a master's degree in political science from the University of Wisconsin in 1962. He says he believes that a campaign should be educational, and agrees with those that say spot commercials oversimplify and mislead.

He would like to see them abolished and replaced with debates or discussions with newsmen or a panel.

Nevertheless, he uses spot announcements extensively. "You have no choice. You have to, to compete," he told a butcher in Weyauwega and a weekly newspaper editor in Iola.

He voted for the bill recently vetoed by President Nixon, to limit the amount of money a candidate can spend on TV.

"All you are doing is guaranteeing that the guy with average means can get in the ball game," Obey explained in defense of the bill. Nixon vetoed it, in part, on grounds it would close only one loophole to heavily-financed candidates, and shift their spending to other forms of advertising. Obey calls this a "phony argument."

It's not his only disagreement with Nixon policies. A central theme of the 7th District campaign has been federal spending.

David Obey

The 15-county 7th Congressional District presents a race between 18-month incumbent David Obey, a Democrat, and former national Jaycees President Andre LeTendre, a Republican.

The Post-Crescent's political reporter, Cliff Miller, accompanied both candidates for several hours recently. Here are his accounts of their campaigns, the issues and their chances for victory.

Andre LeTendre

When Mel Laird was representing Wisconsin's Seventh Congressional District in the House, he used to put away his Democrat election opponents by 2-1 margins.

Now, Laird is secretary of defense, and a Democrat, Rep. David Obey of Wausau, has had his old job for the past 18 months.

But Republican Andre LeTendre (pronounced LaTahn) is running on a combination of the Laird popularity and the Nixon record, in the belief that is the formula that can win the post back for the GOP.

A conservative and proud of it, LeTendre says the 15-county Seventh is essentially a conservative district—too conservative to be satisfied with Obey, who LeTendre happily tells people was labelled in a recent national news magazine article as "an unabashed liberal."

LeTendre, who ended a year's stint as national president of the Jaycees before taking to the campaign trail, also believes that three out of four voters in the district "approve of the way President Nixon is handling things."

He received the President's strong support when Nixon attended the Bart Starr testimonial in Green Bay Oct. 17, and Secretary Laird issued a veiled statement that while avoiding direct endorsement of LeTendre, at least closely paraphrased statements made by LeTendre during the campaign.

"Support President" Pointing out that as defense secretary "you are in a non-political position," Laird went on to say he hopes his former constituents will choose a representative who "will support the President's efforts to bring peace." Obviously, that shoe fits a Republican more closely than a Democrat.

Laird also said the nation must be strong militarily, economically and morally if peace is to come — a theme hit often and in closely similar terms by LeTendre.

Nixon said LeTendre is "like Mel Laird," whom he described as "tops in Ameri-

Halloween Action Set in New London

NEW LONDON — Police Chief Jack Algiers has designated Thursday night as "Trick or Treat Night" in the city.

He noted that this was the night of the annual Jaycee program, and stated that if parents were going to allow their children to go trick or treating they should do so on Thursday.

The Jaycees annually put on a special program for the youngsters in the New London area, including a parade and program. At the conclusion of the program they hand out a "goodie bag" to all the children attending.

Jaycee president Tim Janke explained that the object of the program was to discourage youngsters from going out on the street for their trick or treating.

He urged parents to have their children participate in the program, and not face the dangers of the house-to-house collection.

Algiers noted that if parents insisted on letting their children go from door to door they should be very careful as to what the children "get their hands on."

In the past there have been reports of youngsters getting razor blades and glass in apples and treats, as well as laxatives and other items in place of candy.

He restated the fact that parents should check all the items the children receive. He also urged the parents to be sure the children traveled in groups, preferably with an adult or older child with each group.

It has been recommended that the youngsters not wear all black outfits and that they not have masks that block their vision, as both items have been credited with causing accidents and deaths in past years.

Saturday Proclaimed Halloween

UNICEF, Trick or Treat in Clintonville On One Day Only

CLINTONVILLE — Mayor Frank Sinkewicz has issued a Halloween proclamation, proclaiming Saturday as the official day for the observance of Halloween here.

Housekeepers are encouraged to keep their porch lights on between the hours of 6 and 8 p.m. for UNICEF solicitation and for "Tricks or Treats."

Mayor Sinkewicz stated that although it had been a practice for the people to observe Halloween on two separate days, except for the past six years, such double observance resulted in additional preparation and attention on the part of housekeepers, and provided double exposure to accidental injury for the younger citizens.

In view of this, he was again encouraged by civic groups, many individuals and the police department to issue a proclamation limiting UNICEF solicitation and "Trick or Treat" activity to one day only.

Both the United Methodist church and Christ Congregational church are having their Sunday School children collect for UNICEF Saturday evening, followed by a party at their respective churches. Activities are scheduled from 6 to 8 p.m.

Marion Group Plans Turkey Sandwich Program Nov. 14

MARION — The Women's Society of Christian Service will hold a public Hot Turkey Sandwich Supper Nov. 12 at the church.

Mrs. Douglas Mayne was named general chairman of the event when the group met last week.

Mrs. H. A. Bowers led the program "The Middle Years — A Time For New Risks." She was assisted by Mrs. Reynold Parkes, Mrs. W. Bergacker, Mrs. James Rogers and Mrs. Norman Pockat.

The Dorothy Barbo Circle announced plans for a supper and get-together for Marion senior citizens November 14.

Mrs. Herman Peters reported on the annual meeting of the Waupaca County Federation of Church Women held Oct. 6 at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Waupaca. Others attending from the First United Methodist Church here were Mrs. Ray Braun, Mrs. William Buress, Mrs. Hannah Ewald, Mrs. James Rogers, Mrs. Hilda Krueger, Mrs. K. J. Balderson and Mrs. Douglas Mayne.

Dessert and coffee was served by Mrs. Karl Babcock, Mrs. Lillian Umland, and Mrs. Reynold Parkes.

Parents Plan to Discuss Classes

BRILLION — The public schools will sponsor Parent's Night at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

The evening program will include a curriculum discussion of the freshman sociology and the senior family living class.

Mrs. Rock, instructor in both courses, has presented information about her classes to the Board of Education and the local clergy and has received encouragement from both to present her material.

Dairy Market in Danger

Dairymen Asked to Back Levy To Support Milk Promotion

FOND DU LAC — After dire warnings about the possible future of the dairy industry in Wisconsin, Glenn Pound, dean of the University of Wisconsin agriculture department, urged Pure Milk Products Cooperative to back a mandatory levy to support milk promotion.

Pound told farmers Wisconsin faces a "potential danger" because of its share in the nation's milk market unless dairying remains economically stable.

He pointed to a decline in the number of dairy farms and increases of herd size. "By the end of this decade the small operator of 10 to 20 cows will be virtually gone and forgotten and herds of 100 cows will likely be the norm."

Farmers may lose the race for increased production, warned Pound. "If we are not moving on to a plateau of productivity per cow, we soon will, and we cannot expect the degree of increased production per cow that we have experienced during the past two decades to continue."

He prescribed a two cent per hundredweight mandatory check-off on milk to cure the ills of waning production and to aid the uphill fight against imitation products.

Lagging Consumption Although production may dip, the lagging per capita consumption of milk was labeled as the state's number one dairy problem. He said a promotional program could fight for more dairy sales.

"We have sat back too long and counted on the people buying dairy products because they are nature's foods. The American people have shown that they do not consider nature's foods sacred," he said.

The dairy check-off, proposed by the Wisconsin Dairy Federation to raise $3.5 million, offers farmers a chance for real profit, declared Pound. "If you do not take this step and other steps, we will just back ourselves farther and farther into the corner."

A lack of unity among farmers has crippled efforts, he noted. "We must quit quibbling over our differences."

Inroads have been made in milk sales by soft drinks, alcoholic drinks and coffee. Pound called for an "intensive educational program," to voice the nutritional benefits of milk.

He also blasted health foods for leading to malnutrition in the name of fads.

The American Heart Association was berated for unfairly attacking dairy products without evidence. He said the association had not clearly linked dairy products as "high risk factors."

No Cause and Effect "Research has not established a direct cause and effect relationship between cholesterol and atherosclerosis in man," Pound said the heart association is having a detrimental effect on dairy sales although its "indictment" does not have a firm basis.

Dairy promotion should take the initiative when the cholesterol scare lessens and malnutrition becomes of national concern, urged Pound.

Research must play a vital role in the future of the dairy industry. Pound told farmers the dairy industry spent an estimated $5 million on research and development in 1967. This, he said, was .04 per cent of sales while "really aggressive" corporations spend from 4 to 10 per cent of their sales on research and development.

Paul Affeldt, Sparta, president of the cooperative also endorsed the promotion of dairy products. He predicted extensive shifts toward dairying with fewer farms and greater control of outlets by dairy cooperatives, during the next decade.

Members of the cooperative passed a resolution of the Kewaskum Local urging more spending for promotion. The resolution said, "We recommend that Pure Milk Products Co-operative use more of their funds toward advertising and research of dairy products."

Community Chest Kick-Off Breakfast Set for Nov. 2

MANAWA — The 1970 Little Wolf-Manawa-Royalton Community Chest Drive has been set for the first two weeks in November according to David Niven, chairman.

A kick-off breakfast for volunteer solicitors will be held at 9:00 a.m. Monday at Munding's Restaurant when materials will be distributed and instructions given.

The 1970 Community Chest committee met this week to elect officers and plan the drive. Assisting Niven will be James Sturm, vice chairman; Marvin Radue, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Elvin Prather, publicity chairman.

This year's committee members include Oliver Kesler, William Klemm, Mrs. Herbert Draheim, Miss Laura Frihart, Gerald Sabrowsky, Mrs. Arthur Patri and Lowell Feathers. This group represents various community organizations, the City of Manawa, and the townships of Little Wolf and Royalton.

Thursday night the group will meet to decide the goal for 1970. Manawa and Little Wolf will be solicited by house-to-house calls, but Royalton residents will receive their information by mail.

Mothers Group Agrees To Purchase Furniture

STOCKBRIDGE — The Christian Mothers Society of St. Mary Catholic Church voted Monday to refurbish the living room in the convent for the sisters.

New furnishings to be purchased from society funds include carpeting, draperies, davenport and chairs, endtable and lamp.

A food and coin shower for the five sisters who teach at the eight grade parish school highlighted the meeting.

Obey Hopeful of Waupaca Vote

MANAWA — Rep. David R. Obey, seeking his first full Congressional term representing the 7th District, was hopeful Tuesday, that he will be the election choice of Waupaca residents.

"I hope that Nov. 3 will be a fair day and that there will be a good turn out at the polls," the Democrat said. "If the voting is heavy, I have a good chance."

Obey has pledged himself to continue the fight in Congress for a strong economy, cut back crime and "give the farmers and the workers of middle America more money in their pockets."

"I am encouraged by the fact that the response from residents in this district has been continuous after they receive my news letters — so we are communicating," he said.

"Interest rates are at the highest level in over 100 years, resulting in a weak economy for the people in Waupaca County," he continued. "The lumber industry, for example, could put more people to work if interest rates were cut and people could put more people to work if interest rates were cut and people could buy homes."

"Unemployment, I believe, is more than twice the 6 per cent that the administration is talking about, which is taking a crippling number of dollars from the market place. When the buying power is cut, the inflation mounts."

Prudent Federal Spending

He said he would continue to call for more prudent federal spending. "I want a budget which does not spend four times as much on space as it does on water pollution clean-up; which does not make big handouts to large corporations, while trying to cut out the school milk program; which does not send dollars abroad to secure foreign streets while our own streets are unsafe," he said.

His position of toughness on crime is unchanged. "I know that we need to untangle our court system and have authored bills to do this. I have supported bills to hit the drug pusher and help the victim. Lawlessness and violence in cities and on campuses are unchanged — I have supported or sponsored over 30 bills aimed at stopping it."

"The entrapment of our elderly people at the poverty level must be changed," he also said. Wilbur Cohen, former secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, appears to have a sound proposal, Obey noted. Cohen proposed in Madison this week that by setting a base payment of $150 per month for Social Security recipients, with a 100 per cent widow's benefit, the picture would improve."

This could be done without additional cost to the taxpayers, Obey said. "The elderly with insufficient incomes are now on some kind of program to supplement their incomes. So the figure would be unchanged."

triggered in Washington. For the 7th District, it becomes more pertinent because Obey was appointed shortly after his election to the powerful House Appropriations Committee which recommends what and how much the government should spend for which programs.

The day after the House recessed, Obey kicked off his final stretch effort with a news conference in Wausau at which he stressed a single point: Republican charges that the Democrat-dominated Congress is wildly overspending presidential budget requests are, in Obey's word, a myth.

Of 14 budget bills considered so far in the House, only three have been increased above Nixon recommendations, while 11 have been cut, he said. The net difference is $2.5 billion below what Nixon sought, Obey said. The Senate still must act on several of the largest budgets, and is expected to follow its historic pattern of showing somewhat less fiscal restraint than the House. Even so, the net effect is expected to be a budget at least $1 billion below the President's proposals, according to Obey and other Democrats.

Little Difference

Even so, he stressed in recent speeches, there isn't much difference of opinion between Republicans and Democrats over how much to spend. The House cuts represent only one-half per cent of the total federal budget, he pointed out.

"What is at issue is not how much we should spend, but rather how we should spend it," he contends.

He is referring in part to the three budgets the House voted to increase, actions Obey supported. The increases, including those vetoed by the President as inflationary and later adopted over his veto, went for purposes including education, water pollution, hospital construction and modernization, veterans hospitals and housing, Obey explained.

Those are purposes he supports strenuously, saying funds should be diverted from what he terms "fancy, symbolic programs" such as some aspects of the space program and the supersonic transport to "programs of human need."

Defense Spending

He also supports cuts in defense spending, saying waste in that area is extensive enough to support sizable cuts without hurting the nation's defensive strength. That stance puts him at odds not only with his opponent but with his highly popular predecessor, Laird, who while voicing his own views on how to achieve economy in his department has differed with the ways Congress has chosen to go about it.

On the President's Vietnam policy, Obey also agrees, though the congressman says the subject has fallen in rank among the major concerns of his constituents. At the height of Senate debates over dove resolutions on ending the war, Obey co-authored a House proposal to set a deadline for Waupaca County goes to support our schools. The state repays the districts 26 per cent, while the national average of reimbursement is 40 per cent."

On education, Byers says, "We are ranked fourth in overall programs in the nation. The taxpayers have been most generous. The people are paying too great a portion of their pay checks on taxes."

Law and Order

"Law and order will continue to be an issue in the years ahead," Byers said. "People are going to insist upon expeditious justice and the time has gone when one person can assert his rights by infringing upon the rights of others." He would eliminate what he sees as the present penchant of the courts to protect the rights of the criminal more than the rights of the injured.

withdrawal of U. S. troops, with a provision for an extension if the President requested one.

In general, Obey falls neither among the harshest critics nor the staunchest backers of the Nixon Vietnam policies. "You can't fault the President for bringing troops out," he says, but he still believes either publicly or privately that the President should tell the Saigon government it will be on its own after a certain date.

"We've given them ample time for them to do what they have to do to gain the support of their own people. They have got to be pressed into making the kinds of reforms over there to gain the loyalty of their own people. That's the one ingredient that has been missing," Obey contends. "Otherwise we could be stuck having hundreds of thousands of troops over there almost indefinitely," he fears.

Release of Prisoners

He believes this country's chief interest now, however, is in arranging the release of war prisoners held by Hanoi. Aside from that, he assesses the attitude of his constituents simply. "Most of all, they're sick about the whole thing."

Publicly, at least, Obey doesn't consider his liberal attitudes to be a handicap in the district, which his opponent insists is too conservative to be happy with Obey. The congressman said there have been "very few times" when he found it difficult to come home and justify the way he voted in Washington.

Desire for Peace, Help for Minorities Spur Young Rebels

EDITOR'S NOTE — How do students who yesterday worried about entrance exams into college today manage to elude police and the FBI? Who are they, these new, young, political fugitives? Where do they hide? What new circumstances hinder the law in their pursuit? Bernard Gavzer, veteran investigative reporter, spent weeks traveling across the nation for this detailed, fact-filled report. This is the final installment of the 3-part story.

BY BERNARD GAVZER
AP News Features Writer

Harboring a federal fugitive carries a possible maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine. No federal charges have been made against Stringfellow or Towne.

Some people aided those on the run out of political conviction. Others out of religious conviction. Many have acted in the cause of peace. Few, so far as is known, have done so for money.

Generally, the fugitives have stayed clear of family and close friends, anticipating that such persons might be under surveillance. There are exceptions, of course. Susan Saxe inexplicably wrote to her parents and at least one friend. She was aboard a United Air Lines jet fleeing from the law. One of the four young men sought for the Madison, Wis., bombing, contacted a relative for money.

Common Attitude
"There's a whole sea of kids who will help," explains Dianne Donghi, a 24-year-old former Barnard student who had been a fugitive and who now is free on bail. "They will help because they know that the government is their enemy. The people who are being beaten and jailed are their friends. I can go anywhere in the United States and find kids to befriend me."

A young woman the same age as Dianne Donghi, but with a public life at the opposite political extreme—she works for a conservative, superpatriotic organization—perhaps typifies a common enough attitude about the fugitives.

She said she did not consider herself part of any movement. "Not the right wing and absolutely not the left, I'd say the peace movement." She said she would help people such as Father Berrigan or Mary Moylan, despite the risk.

She added: "It doesn't have to do with how old you are. It has to do with the idea that people who are for peace really care for kids and don't want to see them get killed. It's a gut thing with me. I just want to help those people."

Gut thing—or political fervor, or religious conviction, or love or orneriness? Whatever the motive, the end result is that for those on the run there are sanctuaries.

In a modest, working class neighborhood in Chicago's South Side, there is an eight-room house which had been until recently a sort of way station for young wanderers. Often enough, young people turn up with sleeping bags and flop on one of three cat-ripped couches in the living room, or two divans in the dining room.

"Who has been here?" says a 19-year-old girl, repeating the question. "We never asked. Once someone said Billie Ayers slept on that couch, but I think the Weatherman crashed in Evanston or on the West Side. He could have been here. We don't ask." Mary Moylan says she thought deeply about the motives of those who harbored her.

Opposed to War

"I think they share the usual things—opposition to the war, exploitation of the blacks and the poor, an outrage at the spoiling of our society—but mainly it has been from sisters who have recognized that we have to first win our freedom as women," she says. "The sisters have helped me. Straight ones and hip ones. Nuns and atheists. But sisters."

Since Miss Moylan had been shifting from one place to another every two or three days, sharing or using the facilities of different people, more than 100 different women had in some way aided or harbored her at the time of her interview.

She herself would harbor any of the Weather people or Black Panthers.

On Sept. 13 there were 41 persons who signed their names to a public statement that "we have been and will continue as members of the resistance underground until the poor and ethnic minorities of this country have fulfilled their liberation struggle and our nation ceases to use war as an instrument of foreign policy."

The statement also said: "Some of us have given shelter to Daniel Berrigan and other resisters in our homes. Others of us met with Daniel Berrigan in the underground, or were aware of his whereabouts. Many of us would have sheltered him had we been asked to do so. We stand ready now to shelter other fugitives from illegal laws or to support those who do so with money, refuge, transportation, food and silence in the face of questioning."

Not Afraid of Death

Addressing himself to the jeopardy facing those who harbor fugitives, Stringfellow says: "One form of jeopardy for a human is prison; another is death. To be a Christian is not to be afraid of death."

Among some radicals and avowed revolutionaries, a somewhat similar attitude is expressed when they are asked about personal jeopardy, or concern that their actions could produce a wave of repression.

"The pigs are already at us. We've been in jail. We've been vamped (beaten) by the pigs. What can they do, succeed in killing us? They've tried that every time they've busted our heads."

For all who go underground—fugitive or not—there is the constant risk of trusting someone who will inform.

Paper Mill Given New DNR Order

Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — A revised, tougher pollution abatement order has been issued to the Fort Howard Paper Co. by the State Department of Natural Resources.

The new order resulted from a hearing last June on a petition of Donald O. Peterson, Eau Claire, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for gubernatorial nomination.

Peterson said he was "extremely pleased" with the order. He had previously admitted that the filing of the petition was politically motivated.

The order, which supercedes one the DNR admits was "too lenient," reduces the permitted daily level of BOD (biochemical oxygen demand) discharges from 25,400 pounds to 10,200 pounds, and that of suspended solids from 27,300 pounds to 20,400 pounds.

The deadline for attainment of the standards remains Dec. 31, 1972. Speculation was raised today on what the new order may mean for other pulp and paper mills along the lower Fox River. Fifteen other mills have received pollution abatement orders.

Methodist Churches' Childrens' Group to Hold Halloween Party

GREENVILLE — The boys and girls Fellowship of the United Methodist churches, Greenville and Center will have a Fellowship meeting and Halloween party from 2 to 4 p.m. on Saturday in the Faith Community Church, Greenville.

Boys and girls from kindergarten through grade 6 are invited. Costumes may be worn, and prizes will be given for the best ones. Mrs. Don Schultz and Mrs. Robert Lohrenz are supervisors.

Wayne County, Mich., jail, said that while it might sound heroic, being on the run meant being apart from loved friends and family. He said it hurt not to be able to see his wife, Jeannie, and be able to be carefree about where he would go or what he would do. The other big problem was that he could never be sure about the people he'd have to count on in some way, or the people he'd meet.

Those in the underground, especially at the militant and revolutionary end of the spectrum, accept as a fact that the FBI and police will try to infiltrate, plant agents, or get people to inform.

"It wouldn't surprise me at all if one day there is an FBI nun," says Sister Elizabeth McAllister.

Police & Fire Beat

Chris O. Hendriks, 4333 W. Spencer St., told Appleton police Monday night that a stereo tape recorder and two tapes, worth about $80, were taken from his car while it was parked in a downtown parking ramp. The doors were locked, he said.

A gas burner on a kitchen range, which scorched a handle on a saucepan causing an odor, brought four units of the Appleton Fire Department Monday evening to the apartment of Andre Hendriks, 819 E. South River St.

Katherine A. Skenandore, 59, route 1, Shiocton, was fined $25 and costs Monday on a charge of public intoxication. She pleaded guilty. She was taken into custody Saturday in the village of Bear Creek, after passing out in Norder's Bar. She came before Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer. Village constable Willard Fletcher made the arrest.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer ordered a presentence investigation Monday for a 22-year-old Appleton man who was found guilty of battery. Trial was held for Ronald Kersten, 710 E. Franklin St., in County Court Branch 2.

Kersten struck an Appleton man during an unprovoked fight on July 26, 1969, in the vicinity of a south side service station. He will be sentenced Nov. 10. Police said that the man Kersten fought with needed medical treatment as a result.

Charles Sonnenleitner, 24, 1701 S. Lawe St., was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail in late August for his part in the incident.

Refusing to obey a police officer who told him to move from in front of the downtown H. C. Prange store Oct. 11 brought a fine of $25 and costs Monday for Douglas K. Krueger, 18, Krueger, 1106 S. Christine St., was found guilty after trial before Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller. The money was taken from a previously posted cash bond.

Driving while under the influence of an intoxicant last April 13 resulted in a fine of $150 and costs, plus the revocation of Eugene O'Connell's driver's license for a year Monday. O'Connell, 41, 623 W. Sixth St., pleaded no contest to the charge through an attorney. Appleton police made the arrest in the 2100 block of E. Newberry Street, Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer learned before making disposition.

A 55-year-old Green Bay man was sentenced to six months in the Outagamie County jail Tuesday, with Huber Law privileges, for driving after his license was revoked. Thomas Huff heard the disposition this morning from County Judge Nick F. Schaefer. It was his fourth conviction on the same charge.

Huff was named in the latest count on Oct. 18 by a Seymour patrolman who stopped him in that city. Schaefer revoked his license for another year. Huff pleaded guilty.

Further court proceedings on two counts of taking indecent liberties with a minor were continued to Thursday, for Ronald E. Wilke, 33, who appeared in court Monday. Appleton detectives charge that Wilke, 1510 N. Charlotte St., committed the acts at his home on Oct. 17 and 23, with a 7-year-old girl. Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer presided.

Three young men will come back into court later on separate charges of indecent exposure, after undergoing either psychological consultation or treatment.

Review dates in the cases of Richard Muenchow, 25, of 211 S. Casaloma Drive, Eugene Durkee, 24, of 311 Sarah St., Kaukauna, and Robin D. Loret, 23, of 2125 S. Walden Ave., were set Tuesday by Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer.

Muenchow, who Appleton police charged after an alleged incident Sept. 11 on Lindbergh Street, will reappear Dec. 29. He is free on a signature bond, and under a doctor's care.

Little Chute police charge that Durkee walked naked into a coffee shop in the village in the early morning hours of Oct. 19. His case was continued to Dec. 1, pending the outcome of a psychological consultation. Schaefer granted the continuance at the request of an attorney.

Loret, who will be evaluated at the Community Guidance Clinic, will come before Schaefer again on Nov. 10. Police said he exposed himself to four girls on Oct. 14, while driving an auto make restitution, if necessary.

Fifteen days in the Outagamie County jail was ordered Tuesday for Joseph Vanden Berg, 18, route 2, West De Pere, on a count of battery. County Judge Nick F. Schaefer also fined him $100. Vanden Berg became involved in a fight Sept. 8 with a 16-year-old Appleton boy, at the Fox Valley Lutheran High School Athletic Field. Police said he kicked the youth several times requiring him to be hospitalized.

The theft of two shotguns, .12 and .16 gauge, is being investigated by Appleton police. Robert C. Wohlrahe, 734 W. Wisconsin Ave., reported the weapons stolen Tuesday. He said he believed they were taken overnight from his car while it was parked behind his apartment. The car doors were locked.

An 18-year-old Appleton youth refused treatment for a head cut Tuesday night, after sustaining the injury in a one-car accident on College Avenue at Victoria Street.

Appleton police said that an auto driven by Joseph R. Rupiper, 801 W. Weiland Ave., who was cut, was going east on College when it left the road and struck a power pole on the opposite side, across from Victoria Street.

KAUKAUNA — Firemen were called to Victor Haen Elementary School about 5:45 p.m. Monday for a blaze in paper and rags which was started by workers. The workers had extinguished the fire with sand before firemen arrived.

LITTLE CHUTE — Ronald Van Bostel, 35, 107 W. Third St., Kimberly, pleaded guilty of shoplifting and was fined $40 by Municipal Justice Raymond Sanders Monday night.

Van Bostel was arrested after taking an 89-cent chicken roll from a grocery store.

LITTLE CHUTE — Ray McClellan, representative of McClellan Construction, 1170 Valley Road, Menasha, complained to police that a combination front door and door jam were broken on a house under construction near County Trunk 00. Considerable mud was thrown against the front of the home, according to the complaint.

LITTLE CHUTE — Volunteer firemen were called about 9:30 a.m. Monday to the Robert Vanden Boogaard residence, 413 E. Lincoln Ave., when a motor on an electric dryer burned out causing smoke in the basement. No fire damage resulted.

GREENVILLE — Fire trucks from here and Hortonville were called Monday night to the Greenville Co-op Gas Co. to extinguish a fire in a plumbing supply shed.

Two boys, Pat Peeters and Gary Sigl, age 12, were on their way home about 7:15 p.m. when they noticed the fire and summoned authorities.

Ray Steen, plant manager, explained that a wall and ceiling are charred, a truck is scorched, and he estimated damage at $500.

There was a major fire in 1948 at the same company.

Speaks to Women Voters

Generator Worries Ecologist

"Not enough is known of low level effects over long periods of time" to judge nuclear reactors either safe or dangerous, Vance Van Laanen, director of the Wisconsin Ecological Society, told members of the League of Women Voters Monday night.

"If the danger to an individual is small, the danger to a population, genetically, is significant," he said. "What are the long term genetic effects?"

Van Laanen's appearance in Appleton was part of a series of programs undertaken by the league to study the relative merits and demerits of nuclear power plants such as those at Two Creeks and Kewaunee.

Although all the requisite decisions and permissions have been made and received before the public is told about the coming construction of a nuclear reactor, Van Laanen said, the public can still voice its opinion and try to change that decision.

Public outcry has had some effect, Van Laanen said. A reactor planned in New York was not built because of environmental dangers claimed by the public. The Monticello plant north of Minneapolis, and Michigan's Palisades plant are all built and ready to go, but are not yet operating because popular outcry has locked them in litigation preventing operation, he said.

"Had we had the funds the same thing might have happened with the Two Creeks reactor," he added.

In itself, there is nothing in a nuclear power plant that "can make a bomb, cause an explosion," Van Laanen said. "What you worry about is a normal kind of industrial accident. Anything that interferes with the cooling system is extremely dangerous."

There are 1 billion curies (a unit of radioactivity) of radioactivity available for release in a reactor, Van Laanen said, a figure that might be compared to the 150,000 to 300,000 curies released in the bombs exploded at Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

"This is what worries insurance companies, and why reactors are located in relatively small communities," he explained.

One of the first explanations for building nuclear reactors is that they will fill the "needs" in a given area, Van Laanen said. All hydroelectric power sources are currently in use, and the option for provision of needed electric power falls to either fossil-fueled or nuclear power stations.

This need for electric power is now doubling every ten years, according to a league pamphlet.

The supporters of nuclear plants claim that operating costs are likely to be smaller than with a fossil-fueled plant, and that expendable quantities of coal, gas and oil needn't be relied upon.

Installation of a nuclear plant, run on a radioactive isotope of uranium, amounts to approximately $125 million, Van Laanen said, with a fossil-fueled plant costing less than two-thirds of that.

Another major difference in the two types of plants, and the one of primary concern to ecologists, is the amount of thermal wastes that must be released in the course of operation.

A 500 megawatt electrical plant (the two at Point Beach are 497) has a total heat production of 1500 thermal units, Van Laanen explained. Of this, 500 megawatts of electrical power are sent out over power lines, and 1000 units are dissipated as a heat loss into the environment.

This 1000 units of thermal pollution, released into the air and the water coming from the coolant systems, is responsible for heat increases of from 19 to 33 degrees in nearby waters such as Lake Michigan. This, in turn, tips the careful natural balance of life, killing off various fishes and plants.

This thermal effluent, according to the league's pamphlet, also may have some beneficial uses.

"Wastes heat may be used to prevent frost damage to orchards, or to extend the growing season of crops that bring premium prices in an early market. Cooling ponds can do double duty as recreational lakes. Thermal effluent might be used in desalination plants to aid in the evaporation process, or to improve efficiency of sewage treatment. Others suggest using the effluent for sea-farming with selected fish tolerant of warm water, for heating buildings, or for growing plants in water in a controlled way."

Supporters "try to show that the benefit is worth the risk," Van Laanen said. "But who gets the benefit? And who takes the risk?"

A petition for probate or administration of the estate of John J. Arens, deceased, late of the Village of Kimberly, Outagamie County, Wisconsin, and for determination and adjudication of heirship, having been filed.

IT IS ORDERED: That the time within which all creditors of the deceased shall present claims against such estate for examination and allowance is hereby fixed and limited up to and including the 25th day of January, 1971.

That proofs of heirship be taken and all claims and demands against the said deceased be examined and adjusted by the Court on the 26th day of January, 1971, at the opening of the Court on that day, or as soon thereafter as the matter can be heard. Dated October 27, 1970.

By the Court, URBAN P. VAN SUSTEREN, County Judge, Branch No. 1.

Busing Denied In Kimberly

Highway Crossing Claimed No Worse Than Any Others

KIMBERLY — Bus transportation for youngsters living less than two miles from school on Railroad Street south of County Trunk CE was denied Monday by the board of education.

Residents petitioned the board for bus service because of the hazardous crossing of the county highway. Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin Spivey investigated the crossing and reported that he didn't feel the crossing was more dangerous than any other.

At the request of the high school, student council, board members revised school policy on fund raising projects to permit unlimited fund raising activities in which the public comes to students for services or goods offered rather than having student solicitation. Students were previously limited to fund raising projects for a 2-week period each year.

The student council claimed that limiting fund raising activity was making it impossible for various clubs and organizations to carry out many activities set up as goals for the year.

Business Manager Myron Huth was authorized to proceed with the installation of end panels on wardrobes in hallways at Janssen School as ordered by the State Industrial Commission. Cost of the work was estimated at $135.

A low bid of $2,794 for a pickup truck and snow plow to clear school walks and parking areas was accepted from Fox Valley Truck Service, Appleton.

Miss Gayle Reader, second grade teacher, was granted permission to apply for participation in the International Educational and Cultural Exchange program for the 1972-73 school year. If accepted, she will be granted a 1-year leave of absence to teach in some foreign country.

State to Seek Funds for ETV

Board Asks Grant Of $385,000 to Establish Station

GREEN BAY (AP)—A grant of $385,000 will be sought from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to help establish an educational television station at Green Bay, the State Educational Communications Board decided Monday.

The station would join with WHA-TV in Madison and other proposed stations at Wausau, Eau Claire and La Crosse to form a state television network. The Green Bay station is expected to cost $700,000.

The board also decided to seek $13,000 to improve the FM radio station at Superior State University.

In another action the board approved a request from Milwaukee's educational stations, Channels 10 and 36, to seek an additional $318,000 for construction of a second floor studio and improvement of present facilities.
